NO RELIEF FOR WPA STRIKERS

HOUSE TO KEEP CONGRESS ALIVE TILL TOMORROW

Senate Ready to End Session Tonight.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A limitation of debate on the Guffey coal regimentation bill, last major "must" measure not yet passed by both houses of congress, encouraged the hope of administration leaders that it could be passed in the senate tomorrow and congress could be adjourned by Friday night. Previously the senate, in two test votes, had defeated efforts to kill the Guffey bill by eliminating the tax feature.

Senate Majority Leader Joseph T. Robinson said tonight that he was "ready to pull out tomorrow night but the house has made other plans." Robinson added that he saw no reason for keeping congress here longer than "a reasonable hour Friday night," and certainly not later than Saturday.

What Day Accomplished.

Other developments in the adjournment push today included:

1. Both branches approved and sent to the White House a conference report radically increasing the powers and "legalizing" the past activities of the Tennessee Valley Authority.

2. The senate, with little discussion, passed neutrality legislation demanded by members of the munitions committee, who had threatened an indefinite filibuster against the Guffey coal bill.

3. Conferees on the federal alcohol control and gold suits bills again failed to agree, but expected to compose their differences tomorrow.

4. House conferees rejected a senate compromise proposition on the long controverted Wheeler-Rayburn public utility bill, whereupon it appeared dead for the session until word came up from the White House that there "must be" legislation. Leaders planned to take it out of the hands of conferees for another test in the house, to be followed, possibly, by one in the senate.

The compromise which the house conferees turned down would have substituted for the senate's outright "death sentence" a slow death by torture of all holding companies beyond the third degree.

5. Conferees on President Roosevelt's 250 million dollar wealth confiscation bill, who agreed yesterday, delayed calling up their report in the respective branches with a view of making it the last order of business before adjournment.

George Startles Chamber.

A unanimous consent agreement to limit debate on the Guffey coal bill came after a speech by Senator Walter F. George [Dem., Ga.] which electrified the chamber.

"Outside of political circles, it is questionable whether there are five reputable lawyers in the United States who would declare this measure constitutional," Senator George said. "However, that is not the worst feature of the bill. The worst feature is the defect and infirmity in the legislative program that we are developing. This nation cannot remain free and happy, if we are to legislate for groups, and beyond all of that, if groups are to legislate for themselves the end of things is not very far distant.

"That is the situation we have confronting us. And to this kind of program the Democratic party is willing to commit itself!"

Assails District Boards.

Senator George was assailing the proposal to set up district boards in the coal industry, which would make their own laws as to trade practices and regulate wages and hours, allocate tonnages and fix prices, with regard only for their own interests.

"This is the type of absolutism from which we revolted to establish this republic," he declared.

Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.] offered an amendment to the Guffey bill which would have stricken out the provision for a 15 per cent tax on all coal tonnage. This tax is designed to force compliance with the code, for there is a 90 per cent rebate to producers who comply. When this amendment was rejected, 44 to 29, Senator Tydings offered another one.

RETURN TO WORK OR GO HUNGRY, IS ORDER OF U. S.

An ultimatum that no relief would be extended to those who refuse jobs under the federal Works Progress administration was delivered last night by government officials to 300 workers on a project in the forest preserve district of the Calumet area who struck for more pay yesterday morning. Both federal and state officials issued the warning, which was similar to the order that quelled a WPA walkout in New York ten days ago.

The strike was fomented by "soap box" agitators said to be communists, who harangued the men as they arrived for work. Officials declared many of the workers were loathe to quit, but feared retaliation if they refused.

The ringleaders demanded a thirty hour week and 82½ cents an hour, the prevailing state federation of labor wage in that area, and other changes.

WPA Agrees to Cut Hours.

Ralph H. Burke, deputy administrator of WPA in Illinois, announced last night that the required hours of the men would be reduced from 140 to 130 a month, the equivalent of 30 hours a week, but he refused to raise the monthly pay or make other concessions. The change in hours was the result of a long distance telephone discussion between Burke and Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator in Washington.

The men on strike had been on the WPA pay roll since last Friday at $55 a month as common laborers under an executive order of the President. On the basis of 140 hours a month they were paid roughly 39 cents an hour while at 130 hours they will receive 42 cents an hour.

Officials pointed out that there was no real basis for calculating the wage on an hourly basis because the men would receive the $55 a month rain or shine, one of the differences between employment on a WPA project and a job done by a private contractor. Until yesterday the men had been working five days a week and henceforth they will work four days a week with adjustments to fit the 130 hour a month schedule to be made by the superintendent on the job.

"No Work—No Relief."

Burke's orders, which will be read to the men this morning, also called attention to the ultimatum that if they do not work they can not expect to receive relief.

This "no work—no relief" ultimatum issued orginally by Howard O. Hunter, middle west director of the WPA and the Federal Emergency Relief administration, and later confirmed by state relief officials, was as follows:

"Funds granted by the Federal Emergency Relief administration for relief purposes will not be used to supplement security wages of people employed on WPA projects. If a relief client is certified for WPA employment and is assigned to a WPA job in his occupation classification and refuses to accept this job it will not be permissible to use federal relief funds to furnish relief for such a case."

Hunter said that the question of using state or local funds either to supplement wages or furnish relief to any one refusing WPA work was a matter for local administrative bodies.

State Relief Officials Act.

Wilfred S. Reynolds, executive secretary of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, immediately got in touch with John C. Martin, chairman of the commission, and other members by telephone. The result was an order that the IERC would not extend relief funds to those who refuse WPA jobs.

"We wouldn't have the money anyway," added Reynolds.

The policy adopted by the IERC and federal officials means, according to Reynolds, that a man must accept a WPA job and work on it if he is assigned, even though his relief budget may be larger than the wage he would receive on the WPA job. In case of direct relief some large families have received the equivalent of from $60 to $100 a month in rent, food, clothing and medical services.

The strike occurred in the morning

McCUTCHEON ON THE GRAF

Cartoonist Flies Along Spanish Coast; Due to Land Today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD THE GRAF ZEPPELIN, Over the Coast of Spain, Aug. 21.—The Moroccan coast was a fascinating panorama all forenoon. We flew over Mogador, Mazagan, Rabat, and numerous small towns. People waved and donkeys, camels and chickens hastily departed elsewhere in all directions as the great Zeppelin swept overhead at 80 miles an hour. Intimate household and courtyard views were revealed to those aboard the Graf, though they are not members of the Mohammedan inner set.

Yesterday's head wind, which cut the speed to 38 miles an hour, indicated a belated arrival at Friedrichshafen, Germany, but a favorable change today brought hope of arriving at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow morning.

Hazy in the distance are the Atlas mountains, scene of Riff warfare and tales of the French Foreign Legion. At 1 p. m. we flew directly over Tangier, our shadow trailing swiftly over the housetops, the streets and the market places. We passed into the Straits of Gibraltar, rich in history. On the left, up the coast, Columbus first sailed for India and Nelson won the battle of Trafalgar. From Tarifa, now peaceful in the sunshine, old time pirates sallied forth exacting tribute from passing ships—hence the word tarif, which some Democrats still regard as a form of piracy.

We had a closeup view of Gibraltar, which I last saw as a passenger on the revenue cutter McCulloch thirty-seven years ago. We are now cruising steadily up the mountainous Spanish coast, set with little medieval watch towers. There are many ships and big fish below. J. T. McC.

COOLEST DAY OF MONTH CLEAREST IN MANY YEARS

A northeast wind yesterday and last night swept the air clear of the muggy humidity which has prevailed during the first 21 days of August and provided the city and surrounding countryside with moderate temperatures and exceptional clarity. It was the coolest day of the month.

Motorists driving twenty miles from the loop reported that the tall illuminated downtown buildings could be seen easily. Trafic policemen at the intersection of Golf and Waukegan roads said the visibility was the greatest in many years. Forecaster C. A. Donnel explained that the lake wind kept the atmosphere to the north of the city clear of any smoke.

The average temperature for the day was 1 degree above the normal of 71. Since the first of the month there has been an excess of 10 degrees of temperature, or a daily average of 5 degrees above normal.

175 Monkeys Flee "Jungle" on Long Island

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Led by "Capone," their "hard-boiled" leader, 175 monkeys today escaped from Frank Buck's jungle camp at Massapequa and tonight most of them were swinging merrily through Long Island woods as everybody in Nassau county remained on the alert.

The wholesale escape was blamed on the carelessness of a keeper who absent-mindedly left a plank across the 10 foot moat surrounding the simian "Alcatraz."

Buck being somewhere on the Pacific returning from Singapore, county police tonight donned stout gloves and set out to bring the fugitives back alive—if possible.

Thirty Return "Home."

Twilight nostalgia prompted thirty of the holiday seekers to return this evening. They scaled the wall, leaping over the moat to the other side. Seven had been recaptured previously.

Other ramifications of the escape developed quickly. The most important were:

1. Residents of the vicinity, despite warnings that cornered monkeys bite and scratch with wild abandon, had joined the hunt, lured by offers of cash rewards and season passes to the zoo.

2. Broomsticks and other improvised weapons loomed in the doorways of fruit and vegetable stores following the reminder that the principal diet of monkeys consists of fruits and nuts.

3. Employés of the "jungle" strung up bananas inside the park in the hope that the monkeys would return to satisfy their hunger.

Live on Artificial Mountain.

The monkeys had been confined to an artificial mountain 100 feet high and surrounded by water. Altogether 570 of the little animals were imprisoned. Behind the moat is a ten foot brick wall, the top of which lies even with the surface of the water.

Shortly before noon a mountain bound keeper stretched a plank across the water and entered the camp at feeding time. He neglected to pick up the plank behind him. It was then that "Capone" was beset with the urge to see Long Island in a big way. And he wanted company.

Keeper Attacked.

With a terrifying screech "Capone" scampered across the plank to freedom. The keeper rushed back to retrieve the plank and 174 monkeys jumped on him, bit him in the back of the neck, and threw him to the ground. Without further fuss the parade to liberty followed.

The monkeys marched out onto Sunrise highway. Their first act of freedom was to stop the four lane trafic. A group of about 100 laborers was working on a nearby elevation project and stopped to grin at the motorists' plight. "Capone" must have seen the grins, for the monkeys started toward the laborers, who dropped everything and sprinted for the safety of the woods. The chattering monkeys chased them.

COUNTY BOARD SORRY TO HEAR THE SHERIF USES SUCH LANGUAGE!

The county board session turned into an indignation meeting yesterday with outbursts from several of the commissioners over their discovery that Sherif Toman and other department heads had been remodeling various county offices and incurring expenditures without authority of the board.

Commissioner Peter M. Kelly informed his fellow commissioners that the sherif was quite impolite, saying "To hell with the board" when his attention was called to unauthorized alterations of the sherif's offices.

"It seems we are only a bunch of pushbuttons and echoes," said Commissioner William Busse.

"When I tried to make a report about some alterations I was told to keep quiet," said Commissioner Lucy Palermo.

"By whom?" asked Clayton F. Smith, board president.

"By innuendo," said Commissioner Mary McEnerney, when Mrs. Palermo remained silent.

"It's all very well for Santa Claus to come down the county building chimney and decorate a lot of rooms," said Commissioner H. Wallace Caldwell, "but this board ought to check the spending of $300 as well as $3,000."

It was then disclosed that the commissioners themselves were partly to blame for the situation, inasmuch as requests for alterations were referred to subcommittees that failed to report recommendations.

IDENTIFIED IN 4 ROBBERIES; SAYS HE'S JUDGE'S SON

A youth who gave his name as Saul Taylor and said his father is a judge at Toronto, Canada, was identified last night at the Hyde Park police station by four persons as the "stop light" bandit who had held them up on the south side on recent nights. A friend of one of the victims told the police that he was from Toronto and recognized the youth as the son of a Judge Claiver. Taylor was arrested Tuesday night after he had been pointed out by Charles Le Viness, 6410 Kenwood avenue, as the man who leaped on the running board of Le Viness' car as the latter paused for a stop light at Marquette road and Woodlawn avenue and robbed the motorist of $1.

ITALY BIDS FOR HITLER AID; U.S. MOVES TO NEUTRALITY

Night Conference in White House on Plan of Action.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The Roosevelt administration, it was learned tonight, is moving for eleventh hour legislation under which it would be possible for the United States to join with the league of nations in a boycott of Italy if Mussolini makes war on Ethiopia.

This information came to light following the adoption by the senate of a neutrality resolution prohibiting export of arms to belligerents and the disclosure of efforts by Great Britain and France to bring America to their support in the invocation of measures to avert war in Africa.

Night Session in White House.

Chairman Sam B. McReynolds of the house foreign relations committee was summoned to the White House this evening for a conference with Secretary of State Hull on the administration aim. They were with the President for two hours.

When they left at 11 o'clock, McReynolds said he hoped to work out some compromise between his proposal to vest discretionary power on arms embargo in the President and the mandatory feature of the senate measure. He intimated that final legislation would include a ban on credits and loans to belligerents.

Doesn't Want It Mandatory.

He reiterated his opposition to the mandatory feature of the senate bill and at the same time declined to reveal the position of the President.

"I think the senate bill will be extended to include the ban on credits which is a feature of my bill. As for the mandatory arms feature I think we will be able to work out something which will be passed at this session without appreciably delaying adjournment," McReynolds said.

Secretary Hull expressed the hope that something will be worked out tomorrow satisfactory to the administration and the senate nationalists.

Powers Consider Economic Pressure.

In preparation for the meeting of the league of nations council on Sept. 4, the British and French are canvassing the feasibility of invoking against Italy the economic sanctions provided for in the league covenant as measures for punishing and coercing a nation that resorts to war in defiance of the covenant.

Such sanctions would take the form of embargoes by league members of exports of commodities and the prohibition of the extension of credit or other financial aid to Italy. If decreed by the league it would be obligatory for league members to put the sanctions into effect.

Call U. S. Help Vital.

Great Britain and France, however, take the position that such sanctions would be unavailing unless the United States, a nonmember of the Mussolini Wants a Military Pact with Germans.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Aug. 21.—With the aim of paralyzing any sanctions which the league of nations council might take against him, Premier Mussolini, it is understood here, is dickering with Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler of Germany. Thus is raised the specter of a European war if any attempt is made by France or Great Britain to thwart Italy's conquest of Ethiopia.

While unconfirmed, reports of negotiations for a secret military alliance between Italy and Germany have been current here for several days. However, the only tangible development so far is an exclusive dispatch from Berlin in the usually reliable newspaper Information tonight, stating that Rome has offered Berlin a ten year nonaggression pact.

Laval Is Worried.

In responsible circles here it is believed these reports represent a threat for the future rather than in the existing situation.

Nevertheless, the idea of being forced by the British into taking economic or other sanctions against Italy is causing Premier Pierre Laval to lose a lot of sleep. The huge Italian military maneuvers in the neighborhood of Brenner pass beginning Sunday serve as a reminder that the Italian army is an important factor to be counted with in a European war.

The Italian maneuvers ostensibly are intended to show that Mussolini is not relaxing his vigilance over Austria and is ready to meet a German attack at any moment. In Paris, however, it is a natural deduction that if the Fascist army can make an impressive showing on the Austrian frontier it could make just as impressive a showing on the French frontier.

France in Awkward Position.

The French realize very clearly that those million men, which Baron Pompeo Aloisi of Italy promised the other day at the abortive three power conference in Paris would soon be under arms in northern Italy, must be considered as a potential menace as well as potential support. The French realize this is especially so since, for diplomatic reasons, it would be very awkward for France to strengthen her defense on the Italian border unless there was an immediate menace of an attack, in which case it might be too late.

While Italy herself could not think of defeating the British fleet and the French army, to say nothing of Jugo-Slavia's army, France, with her relatively small standing army, would face a critical situation if invaded simultaneously on the southeastern and northeastern frontiers.

Paris Is Jittery.

While England remains France's main hope in the event of war with Germany, and the little entente [Jugo-Slavia, Czechoslovakia, and Rumania] and Russia would theoretically balance the defection of Italy to the German side, mobilization of these allied forces would be very slow. On the other hand, both the German and Italian military machines are geared for lightning attack. Thus France, in spite of her greater ultimate strength, might easily be put hors de combat before her allies could give effective aid.

This is precisely the idea Mussolini is trying to put across in a delicate way. It is enough to make the French very wary. They believe any actions for even economic sanctions against Italy might lead to war with Mussolini's warriors. They also fear that if such a conflict occurred it might seem to the Germans an ideal time to strike.

Austria Lines Up with Italy.

VIENNA, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Austria stepped to the side of Benito Mussolini today in his far-reaching dispute with Ethiopia.

The newspaper Wiener Zeitung, official organ of Austria's Fascist government, which Mussolini has fathered, placed a banner line on an editorial praising Il Duce and his African program. Il Duce, the newspaper asserted, "is not a hypocrite and openly admits his hunger—hunger for land, new sources of wealth."

Austria's worries about what Nazi Germany will do should Mussolini engage in war in far-off Africa were reflected, however, in the editorial.

"On account of Ethiopia there has been a tendency almost to forget Europe," said the paper. "The conviction must prevail throughout Eu-

BRITISH LEADERS MEET

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—"I regard the present position the most serious thing we have had to face since 1914. It is a very grave situation."

These were the words used by Ramsay MacDonald, at the moment still acting prime minister, on his arrival in London from Lossiemouth, Scotland, this morning. When Stanley Baldwin, actual prime minister, arrived later in the day he simply said:

"The situation is too serious to talk about."

Series of Conferences.

Every sign at No. 10 Downing street and the foreign office points to the truth of MacDonald's statement. Not since 1914 were there such comings and goings, consultations and conferences with ministers, former ministers, opposition leaders and public men without office and, what probably never happened before, all the representatives of the self-governing dominions were called to a conference with Sir Samuel Hoare, foreign secretary.

The subject, of course, was Ethiopia and what Great Britain is going to do about Premier Mussolini's slap in the face of the league of nations and his apparent determination to proceed with the rape of a weaker fellow member.

The first to arrive this morning was George Lansburg, veteran leader of the Labor opposition, who has appealed to the heads of the world churches, including the archbishop of Canterbury and Pope Pius XI., to pray for peace. He remained nearly an hour with Foreign Secretary Hoare and emerged looking very grave, but he refused to talk.

Lloyd George Summoned.

The next was David Lloyd George, wartime prime minister, who had been summoned from his country home at Churt, Surrey. He simply said he had been called in an advisory capacity as a statesman of great experience. He declined to express an opinion of the situation.

In the afternoon Lord Cecil and Winston Churchill called on Hoare and were equally silent. MacDonald shortly after his arrival hurried to Downing street. He remained there all day. Baldwin also sped to his offices and sent for the foreign secretary at once.

The most significant of all these moves, however, was the meeting called by Hoare of representatives of the self-governing dominions. They included Stanley Bruce of Australia, Sir James Parr of New Zealand, Col. Rainer, acting high commissioner of Canada, and John W. Dulanty of the Irish Free State.

Egyptian Envoy Calls.

As they left, Hassan Sabry, Egyptian minister, was ushered in. At the foreign office the only explanation of these meetings was that they were "informative." This apparently meant that it was the object of the government to let the political leaders and dominion representatives know what is going on. When it was pointed out that this was not done even before the world war, the only remark made was that times have changed since then.

All during the day crowds hung anxiously around Downing street in the hope of picking up some crumbs of information, but none was forthcoming. Naturally these movements gave rise to the gravest rumors of war, but THE TRIBUNE correspondent was assured on the highest authority that this is not yet contemplated.

What is a fact is that both England and France fear being ganged by the small powers at the league council meeting on Sept. 4 with the demand for action against Italy.

Small Powers Aroused.

These little powers are more aroused than they were over Japan's conquest of Manchuria or any other crisis that has arisen in the history of the league. They feel that if Mussolini is allowed to get away with this defiance none of them will be safe.

An actual league of nations war, however, is regarded as still far in the background. What is much more likely is a gesture of economic sanctions which are in actual effect now. These might also result in the closing of the Suez canal to Italian ships.

The meeting of the cabinet is called for 10 a. m. tomorrow and it may be necessary to hold several sessions.

The foreign affairs committee of the cabinet met late this evening. Baldwin presided at the session which was attended by MacDonald, Hoare, Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer; Sir John Simon, home secretary; Capt. Anthony Eden, minister for league affairs, and Walter Runciman, president of the board of trade. It is understood that the statement to be made to the cabinet was drafted. No details leaked out, although it was learned that Baldwin and his colleagues are convinced that Britain must be prepared to honor her obligations to the league in full.

The most formal denial was made that Britain or France is attempting in any way to get the United States to interfere in the Ethiopian trouble. All that is being done is to keep the United States informed of the true situation.

Wins Loan from Germany.

The Ethiopian government is not unduly disturbed over the possibility of war with Italy, according to an Ethiopian official in London, who declared that everything is progressing satisfactorily." He said the African empire was cheerful because it has financial backing from Germany. After being turned down by British bankers, agents for Emperor Haile Selassie went to Berlin and negotiated a loan.

A signed contract was exhibited in London today from a German agent for a preliminary order for 10,000 khaki drill shirts, 10,000 pairs of khaki shorts, 10,000 pairs of puttees, and 50,000 water bottles of standard pattern with cloth covering. The khaki must be of the best stout British weave. The agent said he had already turned down an offer from Belgium because the material was "rotten."

He is willing to pay up to $1.75 for a complete outfit, consisting of shirt, shorts, and puttees. Delivery must be made within seven days of the date of the order, which was yesterday, and payment will be made in cash on delivery. The German agent made no attempt to disguise the fact that he is buying for Ethiopia.

ETHIOPIAN KING VISIONS ENTIRE WORLD AT WAR

Ruler Reviews Fighting Men at Maneuvers.

[Copyright: 1935: By the Associated Press.]

ADDIS ABABA, Aug. 21.—Emperor Haile Selassie, weeping bitter tears of anguish, warned the world tonight his imminent struggle with Italy may touch off a conflict that will threaten "the very existence of humanity itself."

The lean and bearded "lion of Judah" stepped down from his golden throne to grant an amazing interview as his primitive empire stirred with frenzied preparations for war.

That war, he predicted in the solemn tones of a medieval prophet, not only would drench Italy and Ethiopia in blood, but might drag in the whole world.

Sees Threat to Humanity.

"Unhappily," he cried, "if such a conflict leads to a world struggle between the white and black races, the very existence of humanity will be threatened.

"We will be back in 1914.

"There will be no more security for the world than there was then. International treaties will have no more validity than the word of a thief. I fear that neither the United States nor England realizes the gravity of the situation."

His eyes smoldered as he proudly declared his own people have "sufficient courage and patriotism to bear the assaults of Italy alone."

But he warned:

"If other nations are drawn in, as they surely will be, it will be a disaster of the first magnitude.

"I pray to God each day that such a catastrophe may be averted."

Warriors Demonstrate Zeal.

As he spoke his tense capital, echoing to the weird ululations of frenzied warriors demonstrating their zeal in mimic war, heard reports from over the empire that a wave of patriotism is sweeping the land.

From the hands of native runners came word that the emperor's subjects in all provinces have been shaken from their traditional lethargy.

As the din of war preparations increased over the empire, the British legation began to prepare for possible war by assembling material for bomb-proof shelters. A first step was the purchase of 6,000 square yards of heavy corrugated galvanized iron sheets to protect buildings and make shelters for the legation guard and British nationals.

Gold Secreted in Caves.

Selassie, reviewing his fighting men, who wasted no powder in their maneuvers, showed the strain he is under from shouldering his arduous tasks. He was known to be worried over lack of arms and ammunition, but today's disclosure, from reliable sources, that he has millions in gold and silver secreted in caves, foundations and other hiding places, put a more optimistic face on the munitions problem.

Part of the hoard, several millions of dollars of it, was bequeathed to the country, for its defense, by the late Emperor Menelik. Ironically enough, another large part, some 10,000,000 gold lire, came from Italy as indemnity after the disastrous defeat of the Italians at Adowa. There are other large sums deposited by the present emperor, out of government reserves, specifically for protection of Ethiopian independence.

Selassie, who drove to the maneuvers in a shiny new American car and appeared before his troops in a smart military uniform and a lion's mane headdress, recalled Menelik's dying command to his relatives to defend Ethiopia's independence at all costs.

Hundreds of Boys Parade.

Hundred of Ethiopian boys, looking like southern pickaninnies—many not yet in their 'teens—strutted with deadpan seriousness alongside bearded septuagenarians — all eager to sell their lives for the defense of the last black empire.

Not a few militant women parked their babies on the sidelines and joined the chaotic scene, as they plan to do when the hour strikes and their menfolk march off to war.

Among the dark warriors were American colored veterans of the world war. Their "give 'em the works, boys" contrasted sharply with the savage war cries of the natives, many of whom brandished broomsticks and primitive spears.

FIRE AT GREENHOUSE.

Fire, believed started by defective wiring, caused damage estimated at $4,000 yesterday to packing sheds and equipment of a greenhouse at 6858 North Loleta avenue.

SEEK TO TRACE 'POLICE' STAR OF COCHRANE KILLER

Following a midnight investigation of the wanton murder of David K. Cochrane Jr., young attorney, early on Tuesday morning, the police last night were holding two women and three men for further questioning. The police admitted, however, that their two day inquiry had failed to yield a definite clew as to the identity of the saloon bully who killed Cochrane in front of a tavern at 721 East 75th street.

Acting on information that Cochrane's slayer had displayed a badge to a young woman in the tavern before the killing, Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney's police, ordered an examination of the rosters at three police stations on the south side. The slayer, according to Miss Julia Fremel, who danced with him in the tavern, had attempted to make her believe he was a policeman.

Investigate Policemen's Guns.

As Cochrane was shot with a bullet from a .38 caliber revolver the types of weapons carried by policemen from the three south side stations were being investigated. Capt. Gilbert said, however, that this study of the police rosters had given him no new clews and he had no other evidence tending to show that a policeman was involved in the slaying.

The five persons held for questioning are Mrs. Elsie Anderson, 30 years old, owner of the tavern, and her husband, Lage; Adolph Carlson, bartender at the the tavern, and his wife, Esther, and Joseph Zakar, employed in another tavern near by. Cochrane was shot after he had gone to Zakar's rescue while Zakar was being beaten by the slayer.

Believe Woman Withholds Facts.

Mrs. Anderson had been questioned before, but had not been held in custody until last night. The police said that they believed she could give them more information than she had, because it appeared the killer was a habitue of the tavern whom she must have known.

Toni Pallicau, 36 years old, 11418 South Park way, arrested as a suspect, was released last night when he convinced the police he had not been near the tavern at the time of the shooting. Michael O'Connor, a private watchman, and John McLaughlin, a friend of Zakar, were also released after questioning.

SWISS CONSULATE IN MUNICH SWEPT BY FIRE; 15 HURT

MUNICH, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Fire which destroyed the upper part of the Swiss consulate today caused injury to fifteen persons and property damage of $100,000. Twelve firemen were taken to the hospital after being overcome by smoke. The fire, extinguished after six hours of fighting, is reported to have been caused by a short circuit in an elevator.

CONGRESS ACTION TO CURB ITALY, PRESIDENT'S AIM

Would Help the League's Economic Pressure.

league, should join in the boycott. Otherwise Italy might get along very well with supplies from the United States despite the embargoes by other countries.

Visualizing just such a contingency as has now materialized, the British and French have maneuvered for years to commit the United States to a pledge of such coöperation against belligerents. Their efforts have proved unavailing, up to date, because of the American disposition to avoid foreign entanglements.

U. S. Reply Probable Today.

In the desperation of their efforts to check Mussolini's imperialistic venture the European powers are striving again to enlist America in support of the league machinery to avert war. That was the purpose of the British in inviting Ray Atherton, American chargé d'affaires, to the foreign office. Mr. Atherton has relayed the British representations to Washington. He will have the Roosevelt administration's reply by the time the British cabinet meets tomorrow.

Neither President Roosevelt, at his press conference today, nor Secretary of State Hull would disclose the burden of the interchanges with London or comment on the war crisis. Mr. Hull previously had indicated that the present attitude of the administration is that of moral support of the league's efforts to avert war.

Wants Discretionary Power.

The senate, however, had no sooner adopted its neutrality resolution than it became evident that the administration aims at something more tangible than moral support of the league. The administration wants neutrality legislation conferring discretionary authority on the President to embargo the shipment of war materials to any actual or potential belligerent.

By construction such an embargo could be applied to virtually every commodity the export of which to Italy could be banned by the league's economic sanctions. The neutrality resolution provides for a mandatory embargo on the export of "arms, ammunition, or implements of war" to belligerent nations. Under that resolution the United States would be obliged to embargo such shipments to both Italy and Ethiopia.

House Gets Resolution.

When the senate resolution reached the house Representative McReynolds, who reflects the administration attitude, asserted that the senate measure is unsatisfactory. He called a meeting of his committee for tomorrow. He predicted the senate resolution would be rejected there in favor of the bill drafted by the state department which authorizes the President in his discretion to apply the embargo to "such countries as the President may designate." Under such terms the President could boycott Italy and not Ethiopia in the same manner as in the application of the league's economic sanctions.

A liberal construction of "implements of war" would embrace almost everything Italy might wish to obtain from the United States. And under the Johnson act Italy, as a war debtor of the United States, in arrears, would be unable to obtain loans or credits in this country. If this new legislation goes through the administration will be in a position to coöperate with the league in the application of economic sanctions.

In 25 minutes the senate adopted a neutrality resolution that ordinarily would have consumed 25 days of debate. In addition to the mandatory embargo on implements of war, that resolution provides for a permanent system of licensing arms shipments, for a ban on the carriage of embargoed commodities by American ships, for authority to the President to prohibit Americans from traveling on ships of belligerents, except at their own risk, for a ban on transport of men or supplies to belligerent vessels and for authority to the President to bar belligerent submarines from American waters.

Control of Submarines.

After explanation of the measure by Senator Key Pittman [Dem., Nev.] chairman of the foreign relations committee, Senator Frederick Hale [Rep., Me.] asked whether it would interfere with existing law permitting ships of belligerents to enter American ports and remain twenty-four hours for the purpose of refueling. Pittman said it would merely require submarines wishing to refuel to remain on the surface.

Senator Borah then expressed his individual views with respect to American nationals traveling on belligerent ships. Such travel, he believed, should be prevented.

"I do not believe it is sufficient merely to provide that, after proclamation by the President, our citizens shall travel on belligerent vessels at their own risk," he declared. "The question of risk does not meet the real issue. I do not believe they should travel at all. If a citizen goes upon a belligerent ship and is killed, he, to a certain extent, involves his nation. It is a question of war psychology. I would make an exception only in the matter of returning home and escaping from war zones."

The resolution was then adopted by an overwhelming vote.

Wouldn't Heed Debtor Nations.

Senator James Hamilton Lewis [Dem., Ill.] had offered a resolution providing that no neutrality legislation be attempted, but he did not press it. Later he called attention to the press reports of the efforts of Britain and France to obtain the aid of America against Italy. He suggested that we turn a deaf ear to countries deliberately defaulting in payment of their debts to the United States. He cited the loans Britain and France are making, despite professed inability to pay America.

Senator Lewis said that if the debtor nations could pay principal and interest now due the United States taxpayers would not be subjected to the "tax bill levying $250,000,000 upon the taxpayers of our country at once payable."

Mrs. Jean Johnston, 26 years old, living at the Devonshire hotel, 19 East Ohio street, member of a stage troupe, filed a suit for separate maintenance in Superior court yesterday against her husband, Joseph, a salesman, on the ground of nonsupport. Her attorney, Norman Becker, obtained an injunction from Superior Judge Peter H. Schwaba tying up the husband's assets and forbidding him to "molest" her or their 5 year old child.

BERGDOLL SEEKS MILITARY PARDON FROM ROOSEVELT

WEINSBERG, Germany, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Grover Cleveland Bergdoll, America's No. 1 world war draft dodger, today appealed to President Roosevelt "as commander in chief of the United States army" to let him come home.

Comparing himself to Capt. Alfred Dreyfus, noted French military "martyr," Bergdoll said:

"I am open to the suggestion of Attorney General Cummings that I surrender to the federal court in Philadelphia. I'll surrender immediately to federal authorities, provided President Roosevelt orders the military to keep its hands off me until the Supreme court can decide the validity of my claim that the military has absolutely no jurisdiction in my case.

"Every American knows that the President, as commander in chief of the army, can dismiss court martial findings any time he chooses. It follows, therefore, it is up to the President alone to grant or refuse my pardon from the military charge."

Gift of Ex-Crown Prince to a Barber Excites Nazis

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Former Crown Prince Friedrich Wilhelm was held up to ridicule today by the Black Corps, official organ of the Hitler Guards and the secret police, in a general denunciation by the newspaper of everything smacking of monarchy.

The former crown prince's offense was that he presented a pocketbook — upon which was emblazoned a crown and the Hohenzollern monogram—to a barber who shaved him while he was visiting in Adenau, in the Rhineland.

The Black Corps admitted that this was not monarchistic propaganda on the part of Friedrich Wilhelm, but sarcastically estimated how many goat skins would have been required for pocketbooks if he gave his barber or each time he had been shaved in the last thirty-six years.

Schacht Protests to Hitler.

[Copyright: 1935: By the New York Times.]

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics, has lodged an emphatic protest with Reichsfuehrer Hitler against the censoring in the German press of the speech he delivered at Koenigsberg Sunday, it was reported in political circles today. In his speech Schacht denounced disturbances to German business through extralegal activities of National Socialist extremists.

Priest Fined $200.

BERLIN, Aug. 21.—(AP)—The secrecy of the Catholic confessional was placed in jeopardy in Germany today when a Roman Catholic priest, Father Horoba, was fined 500 marks [about $200] for "abuse of the confessional chair." The state's attorney at Gleiwitz prosecuted the priest for allegedly attempting to dissuade a woman during a confession from sending her son into the Nazi labor service. She afterward told her husband and he denounced the priest.

Ministers of the Protestant Confessional synod have received from Hans Kerrl, minister of religious affairs, an ultimatum which, many of them fear, may lead to dissolution of the Confessionals [Lutherans].

They must state on Friday whether they are prepared to accept state financial control, as demanded by the financial control commission established by Kerrl.

The ministers, it was reliably reported, had already decided they "will not worship the golden calf."

CUSTOMER SHOT IN TAVERN FIGHT; SEEK HOODLUM

Max Blitzstein, 43 years old, 1230 South Homan avenue, a junk dealer, was shot and seriously wounded last night during a fight in a tavern at 3148 Roosevelt road. Marquette police were informed that his assailant was Sam Jacobson, alias "Sam the Greener," bartender and brother of Morris Jacobson, owner of the tavern. Sam fled. Blitzstein was taken to the county hospital, shot in the abdomen.

Sam the Greener has a police record for burglary dating back to 1918 and is known to the police as a petty west side hoodlum. He has been arrested more than fifty times. He was called "The Greener" because he always said "No spik English" when questioned.

JOLIET, FOR LAST TIME, DEMANDS RETURN OF $5,100

The city of Joliet sent to President Roosevelt's former law firm yesterday a final demand for the return of $5,153.97 which the city contends was an overpayment. The law firm, O'Conner & Farber, was known as Roosevelt & O'Connor until Franklin D. Roosevelt withdrew in 1933.

As counsel for Joliet, O'Connor & Farber induced the controler of the currency, J. F. T. O'Connor, to sign an order giving Joliet priority of payment on $48,460 of its funds tied up in the closed Joliet National bank.

Joliet city council records, according to City Attorney Herbert A. Graves, show that the council authorized a contingent fee for the special counsel amounting to not more than 10 per cent of the amount recovered. On this basis, Graves says, the New Yorkers were entitled to $4,846.

Pay or We Sue, He Says.

Nevertheless, the firm sent a bill for $10,000 and Joliet paid it. Yesterday Graves wrote to O'Connor & Farber to return the difference or Joliet will sue to get it.

City Attorney Graves, who took office with the new Joliet city administration last May, was puzzled yesterday to discover that all correspondence between his predecessor, J. W. Faulkner, and the New York lawyers was missing from the files.

Faulkner said that the contract with O'Connor & Farber was "entirely verbal."

Faulkner was unable yesterday to remember how he kept in contact with the New York firm or who recommended the firm in the first place. He denied that Controler of the Currency O'Connor recommended O'Connor & Farber.

Related to Rule Chairman.

Basil is a brother of Congressman John J. O'Connor, chairman of the house committee on rules. Representative O'Connor was a leader in the recent lobby investigation which disclosed that Basil had received a $25,000 retainer from lobbyist sources.

The Farber of the partnership is John C. Farber, who was a junior partner when President Roosevelt was active in the firm. Farber it was who handled the Joliet case and who replied last month to City Attorney Graves' first letter asking an adjustment of the fee.

On July 25 Farber wrote that he understood the Joliet city council had "specifically approved" the $10,000 retainer. Graves, on this assurance, reëxamined the city records, but last Tuesday concluded that Farber was in error. Yesterday, accordingly, he sent his ultimatum to O'Connor & Farber.

V. A. CONNERY, 49, COAL EXECUTIVE, DIES SUDDENLY

Vincent A. Connery, 49 years old, 5228 Sheridan road, secretary and treasurer of the Miami Coal company, died suddenly last night of a heart attack when he stopped his automobile at Jarvis avenue and Sheridan road as he was driving some friends home.

Surviving him are three brothers: Joseph F., former fire commissioner and county recorder of deeds; James P., vice president of the coal company, and John T., president of the Edgewater Beach Hotel company, and four sisters, Helena V., Catherine A., Elizabeth, and Mrs. James Riordan. Another brother, Francis D. Connery, former city clerk, is dead.

Mr. Connery's father, William M. Connery, was an early settler in the city. He superintended the building of the first wooden bridge across the river at Rush street.

CAPTIVE'S SCRIPT GIVES NEW CLEW IN KENNETT CASE

Find Fake Signature on 2 More Checks.

District Attorney L. Sparks of Auburn, Cal., announced last night the discovery of a handwriting clew which he asserted may lead to solving the mysterious disappearance of James C. Kennett, 55 years old, former Chicago contractor. Kennett is believed by authorities to have been killed and his body hidden in or near abandoned mine shafts in the Sierra Nevada mountains near Auburn, where Kennett was prospecting for gold.

Earl Cramer, 21 years old, an itinerant prospector, is held for investigation by Sherif Elmer Gum of Placer county. According to Prosecutor Sparks specimens of Cramer's handwriting are similar to that in a letter which directed that Kennett's mail be forwarded to Auburn from Emigrant Gap, a mountain village.

Seized in Another Case.

Cramer was seized for questioning in the death of a red haired young man whose mutilated body was found in a water filled pit near an abandoned mining camp where Kennett was last reported. The youth is said to have been an acquaintance of Kennett. A letter written to Kennett was found in the young man's clothing. Cramer was reported to be wearing a suit belonging to the missing Chicagoan.

District Attorney Sparks asserted he would have Cramer's writing compared by experts with that on the forwarding letter and with photostatic copies of three checks which have been forwarded to Auburn by Chicago police. These checks, bearing forgeries of Kennett's signature, were given to Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan by Mrs. Emma Kennett, 6341 Sheridan road, divorced wife of Kennett, who has been sending him money for several months.

Search Area Thoroughly.

Sparks' announcement concerning the handwriting clew was made after he and Sherif Gum again searched the tumbledown shafts of the deserted mining camp where Kennett is believed to have been prospecting.

Kennett lived in a cabin not far from these diggings. Mountain folk have told authorities of seeing Cramer with the red haired youth.

Miss Helen of Troy

"Miss Helen of Troy" and her court were chosen last night from a group of American beauties of Greek descent, relatives of members attending the 12th annual convention of the Order of the American-Hellenic Educational Progressive association [AHEPA]. The beauty selection was made at the Aragon ballroom before 7,000 persons.

Miss Amanda Gatouros of Austin, Tex., was crowned "Miss Helen of Troy." The two members of her court were Miss Ann Hougiazou, 2801 Logan boulevard, as "Miss Penelope," and Miss Mary Karambis, 2408 Lunt avenue, as "Miss Helen of Sparta."

Demetrious Silicianous, Greek minister to the United States, was present at the presentation of the crown, which was made by Achilles Catsonis, supreme commander of the fraternal order. The convention closes Sunday. At a banquet tonight in the Sherman hotel Gov. Paul V. McNutt of Indiana will be the principal speaker.

WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO AS SHE STEPS OFF CURB

Five Other Persons Die of Injuries; Ten Hurt.

Mrs. Eleanor K. Smith, 75 years old, of the Central Plaza hotel, 321 North Central avenue, was injured fatally last night when struck by an automobile as she was crossing the street at Central avenue and Lake street. William Gluntoli, 20 years old, 5524 Crystal street, driver of the automobile, surrendered to the Austin police.

Mrs. Smith was taken to the Frances Willard hospital where she died. Gluntoli, who was held for the inquest, told police that the woman had stepped in front of his car as he was driving south on Central avenue. At Mrs. Smith's hotel it was learned that she had two sons, one living in Washington, D. C., and the other living in Chicago, but now out of town on a vacation.

Boy Killed, 7 Hurt in Crash.

James Weaver, 16 years old, 618 West 48th place, was killed and seven other persons were injured, four of them seriously, when two automobiles collided at Dwight yesterday.

The Weaver boy was killed when a car, driven by Arthur Shelton, also of 618 West 48th place, in which he was riding, collided with the machine of Henry Jorgenson of East St. Louis. Both drivers and five other passengers in the two cars were injured.

Jack Everett, 18 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Logan Dwight of 1443 East 65th place, was injured seriously near Templeton, Ia., yesterday, when the car in which he was returning from Templeton with his uncle, John B. Keeney, 71 years old, of Kansasville, Ill., overturned. Mr. Keeney, president of the Progressive Dairy company of Kansasville, was killed. The Everett boy is a Tilden High school student.

Newton D. Holman, 823 Woodbine avenue, Oak Park, an employé of the Natural Gas Pipe Line company, was injured and a companion was killed yesterday when the automobile in which he was riding collided with another car near Moline, Ill. The dead victim was C. A. Cadden, superintendent of the pipe line company station near Geneseo, who was driving the car. Milton Anderson of Andover, another passenger, also was injured. The other car was driven by Lloyd Engnell of Andover.

County Death Toll 585.

Mrs. Smith's death and two others increased the 1935 trafic toll for Cook county to 585. Until 4 p. m. yesterday 464 had been killed in automobile accidents within the Chicago city limits and 10,485 injured. The other deaths:

Charles Miller, 92 years old, 919 North Damen avenue. Died last night in St. Mary's hospital of injuries incurred when he was struck by an automobile at Augusta boulevard and Damen avenue Tuesday morning. Mrs. Stella Martin, 29 years old, 3845 West 51st place, driver of the car, was ordered to appear at the inquest today.

Henry Hawkins, 56 years old, 5605 Calumet avenue, died in the County hospital of injuries incurred Monday night when he was struck by an automobile driven by Ollie Hardy, 39 years old, 623 East 47th street, at South Park way and 55th street.

Woman, 86, Burns to Death Lighting Stove in Kitchen

Mrs. Constance Klarowski, 86 years old, 2136 North Damen avenue, was burned to death yesterday in the kitchen of her home. A son, Bruno, told police he found his mother dead beside the stove which she apparently was trying to light, when her clothing caught fire.

GROCER CHARGED WITH $147 FRAUD AS RELIEF CLIENT

Wasyl Korpan, 49 years old, who lives above his grocery at 7214 Greenwood avenue, was charged yesterday with defrauding the Illinois Emergency Relief commission out of $103 and grocery orders for $44 that he filled at his own store by pretending he was destitute. He was arraigned before Judge Francis Borrelli in the South State street court on a charge of obtaining money under false pretenses. Attorney G. B. Foley, representing the IERC, said that Korpan had a gross monthly income as high as $2,000 while he was receiving relief from Dec. 1, 1934, to April 1, 1935. The case was continued to Aug. 28.

TWO SUSPECTS IN COUNTRY CLUB HOLDUPS SEIZED

Two youths suspected of being members of the gang which recently raided several country clubs and resorts in the Chicago area were arrested by the state's attorney's police last night. The youths are Frank Chimento, 22 years old, and Rocco Prano, 23 years old. They were seized in an apartment at the Chelsea hotel, 921 Wilson avenue. Three girls, whose identity the police would not reveal, were also arrested in the apartment. One of the girls was said to be Prano's sweetheart and the other two were hitchhikers whom Prano had picked up at Iowa City, Ia., last night and driven to Chicago. Three other men, suspected of being members of the resort raiding gang, have been held in the county jail since their arrest last week.

Girl Killed Trying to Beat Train at Hammond Crossing

Miss Anna Urban, 18 years old, 13530 Avenue A, was instantly killed yesterday when she was struck by a slow moving passenger train of the Monon railroad at the Hohman avenue crossing in Hammond. Witnesses told police Miss Urban left two young women companions and darted under the crossing gates in an attempt to beat the train. Seven railroads use this crossing, which is known as Hammond's "death crossing."

POLICEMAN'S DEATH HELD ACCIDENT.

A coroner's jury yesterday returned a verdict of accidental death in the shooting of Patrolman Daniel Walsh, found shot to death in his apartment at 4040 Drexel boulevard, Tuesday. On sick leave, he was shot while cleaning his service pistol.

ROOSEVELT AID IS CALLED UTILITIES STOCK PLUNGER

House Cheers Pettengill's Attack on Corcoran.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The house staged a wild demonstration of approval today when Thomas G. Corcoran, White House lobbyist for the public utility control bill, was assailed on the floor by Representative Samuel B. Pettengill, Indiana Democrat.

Corcoran has been under fire before on charges of intimidating congressmen. Pettengill challenged the house lobby committee to summon Corcoran again and question him about his reported dealing in utility issues on the New York Stock exchange market at the same time he labored for legislation against utilities at Washington.

Resents Corcoran Tactics.

It was the boldest and most direct attack against administration lobbying at this session. The house expressed its resentment of the tactics of Corcoran, and those of other representatives of President Roosevelt, by giving Pettengill an ovation which lasted several minutes.

The Indiana representative thus brought out into the open the rumors, whispered about the capitol, that administration lobbyists were profiting secretly by stock market deals in securities affected by legislation for which they were exerting tremendous efforts.

Recall Former Admissions.

Corcoran once admitted to a committee that he had been a stock market plunger and had made and lost a small fortune.

"In view of this admission," Pettengill told the house, "the rules committee, investigating lobbying, should summon Corcoran and question him as to whether he is now in the market with reference to utility stock."

Until evidence in "black and white" has been presented, Chairman John J. O'Connor of the house rules committee, indicated, he will not summon Corcoran. That hot tempered, red headed chairman is reported to have told friends that, despite his personal antipathy to the administration, he will not summon any witnesses nor conduct any investigation which might throw discredit on the administration unless forced to do so by the presentation of specific evidence.

Recalls Maine Dam Threats.

Pettengill frequently referred to Corcoran as "the ambassador from Passamaquoddy." He referred to Corcoran's threats to Representative Ralph O. Brewster [Rep., Me.] several months ago to stop construction on the Passamaquoddy dam in Maine if Brewster voted against the utility control bill. Brewster did vote against the bill and construction on the dam has been delayed since then.

The utilities control bill still is in conference between the two houses, with practically no prospects of a compromise being reached before adjournment. Its clause on holding companies was a major point of attack.

A bit of cunning maneuvering by Corcoran last week led to today's outburst. Last Thursday Representative Otha D. Wearin [Dem., Ia.] arose and asked to insert in the Congressional Record a speech by his colleague, Edward C. Eicher [Dem., Ia.], who was ill. The request was granted. The speech was not read to the house. No one noted its contents until Corcoran himself called attention to it yesterday when speaking to reporters.

Corcoran Appears Pleased.

"That speech is going to be widely circulated," Corcoran remarked. He is also said to have chuckled over the manner in which the speech was inserted.

That speech contained an attack on Representatives Pettengill and George Huddleston, Alabama Democrats. They were the leading Democratic foes of the utility bill. The Eicher speech asserted that the dilatory tactics of Pettengill and Huddleston had aided the "lobby army of the utilities."

"All a lobby of that kind needs is time," the Eicher speech stated. "All it needs to ask of those who are to help it is to give them time. The unnecessarily overextended hearings on the bill were clearly the insistence of those two Democrats who worked the hardest to defeat the program of the administration, Mr. Huddleston of Alabama and Mr. Pettengill of Indiana."

Makes Additional Charge.

Then Pettengill told the house that he did not believe Representative Eicher had written the speech but Corcoran himself had prepared it.

"When he spoke before the house on the bill when he was a well man and there was no one to take advantage of his sickness, Mr. Eicher paid tribute to my sincerity in my opposition to the bill," Pettengill reminded his colleagues. The language in this speech is not his language.

"Why did Corcoran take it on himself to call the attention of the press to this speech, unless he was prepared to have it reprinted at government expense and used as a campaign document against me and Mr. Huddleston next year?"

House Applauds Attack.

Prolonged applause greeted Pettengill's assertion that the house was "getting well fed up with Mr. Corcoran."

"The delay in question was caused by Mr. Rayburn, the committee chairman," Pettengill continued, "and he will admit it. He wanted the senate to act first so as to have a tactical advantage."

If the rules committee will summon Corcoran, Pettengill said, he will present the committee members with the names of other congressmen intimidated by Corcoran. He himself, he said, received the following message from Corcoran through a high government official:

"Corcoran says to soften up on the utility bill or you'll never get that Pulaski memorial for your state."

Famed for Careless Speech.

Corcoran has become noted as the most outspoken of the corps of White House lobbyists. A fledgling lawyer with the Reconstruction Finance corporation, he gained President Roosevelt's notice and favor by his guitar playing and sweet tenor voice at White House parties.

The senate lobby committee today investigated the activities of the Cities Service corporation, which controls 160 companies in 25 states. Henry L. Doherty, warm personal friend of President Roosevelt, is head of that system. In contrast with the treatment given to Howard C. Hopson, head of the rival system, Associated Gas and Electric corporation, Doherty's name was carefully avoided by the committee for the most part in the questioning of William B. S. Winans, controler of the Doherty system.

Fees for Lawyer-Democrats.

Winans revealed that John W. Davis, Democratic presidential nominee in 1924, had been hired by his corporation to furnish an opinion holding that the Wheeler-Rayburn utility control bill was unconstitutional. Davis has not yet submitted a bill for his legal services, Winans said. Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to the late President Wilson, was another attorney hired by Cities Service.

Tumulty collected a $12,500 fee for his work in connection with the utility bill, Winans said. Arthur W. Mullen, former national Democratic committeeman from Nebraska, was another Washington representative hired by the same system. Other fees for law firms in New York City and elsewhere made the total fees paid by Cities Service about $100,000.

Cities Service spent another $100,000 on printing and mailing expenses in a campaign against the bill, Winans testified. Winans was asked if Doherty owned any newspaper. He said Doherty had an interest in the Kansas City Journal-Post.

Fosters Letters of Protest.

Chairman Hugo L. Black [Dem., Ala.] introduced copies of letters sent to all employés in that utilities' system, urging each employé to get at least ten letters sent to congressmen protesting against the bill. Twenty-three "form letters" were attached to each letter to an employé.

Senate Ready to Close Up Tonight.

to reduce the tax to 5 per cent and it was defeated, 40 to 38.

Accepts Borah Amendment.

Senator Matthew M. Neely [Dem., W. Va.] informed the senate that it would defeat the whole purpose of the bill.

Neely, however, accepted an amendment offered by Senator William E. Borah [Rep., Idaho] which eliminates a provision suspending the anti-trust laws with respect to complying producers. This amendment will send the bill to conference, unless the house accepts it, but proponents of the measure do not believe it would enable the federal trade commission to step in and put a stop to price fixing and marketing agreements.

Dieterich Assails Measure.

The bill was vehemently denounced by Senator William H. Dieterich [Dem., Ill.], who termed it "a coal baron's measure" designed to perpetuate West Virginia and Pennsylvania in "their monopolies founded upon cheap labor."

"I don't know of any measure that has brought about more activity for and against it in my state," Senator Dieterich declared.

"The miners are divided and the business men and chambers of commerce are almost unanimously against it. But I conceive it my duty to give the people my own honest judgment and not follow the dictates of someone whose motives and interests I may not know.

"I am opposed to this bill because it will be harmful to the business and industry and labor of my state, and that applies equally to every state in the union with the exception of West Virginia and Pennsylvania. If this bill had the correct title it would be 'an act whereby West Virginia and Pennsylvania will control the coal markets of the United States.'"

State's Tonnage Declines.

Senator Dieterich said the tonnage of Illinois producers gradually declined while they were maintaining fair labor standards and that the tonnage of West Virginia and Pennsylvania, with unfair labor standards, steadily increased.

"And now they are trying to allocate production to my state on the basis of 1934, when it production was down to the bottom, and the production of West Virginia and Pennsylvania was at the top because of cheap labor," he complained.

Senator Dieterich objected particularly to the inclusion in a single "minimum price" area of all the coal mines from Pennsylvania to Iowa.

"That means that mines fifty miles from Chicago will have to sell at a price that will not be unfairly competitive with the mines of Pennsylvania, 1,200 miles away," he declared. "They do that by fixing a price that is exorbitant in Illinois."

Calls Argument "Camouflage."

Senator Tydings, in supporting his motion to strike out the 15 per cent tax, said the contention that it would provide more work for the miners was "sheer camouflage."

"There is no reason on earth why such a tax will make more work, but it will make less," he declared. "When you put a tax upon coal you increase the price and decrease the consumption and throw men out of work. Industrial firms will turn to oil and will accentuate rather than relieve the grief of the miners.

"This is a tax on the fuel of the poor, even upon the 20 million persons on relief. It will increase the cost of the government in supporting those on relief. You might as well put a tax upon bread as to put a tax upon coal."

Woman Is Slain

MRS. GLADYS GLENA FAIR.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Long Beach, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The mysterious slaying of golden haired Gladys Glena Fair was described tonight as a "perfect crime."

"We have no clews as to the identity of the killer or the motives for his gruesome deed," said Captain of Detectives O. M. Murphy. "We are not able to establish within 10 hours the time of the slaying."

The attractive Mrs. Fair, 34 and an employé of the naval board of inspection and survey for eight years, was found slain yesterday in her bathtub.

She had been shot in the head as she sat in an overstuffed chair. Her body had been dragged to the bathroom and dropped over the rim of the tub. She wore a simple house dress.

Officers talked by telephone to the woman's husband in San Francisco, Evan A. Fair, but he was unable to shed any light on the killing. Mrs. Fair had visited with him over the week-end.

WOMAN PLUNGES TO DEATH UNDER 'L' TRAIN WHEELS

Mrs. Catherine Peabody, 35 years old, 1448 Argyle avenue, wife of a Rapid Transit lines motorman, plunged to her death yesterday morning under the wheels of a northbound express at the Belmont avenue "L" station. Two hours earlier she had talked with her husband, William, at the Wilson avenue station when he completed his morning run.

Sheffield avenue police last night were trying to find Peabody to notify him of his wife's death and learn the nature of their talk. His brother, Frank, made the identification at an undertaking room last night. He said Mrs. Peabody and her husband became estranged a week ago.

Charles Blade, motorman of the train which killed Mrs. Peabody, and other witnesses told police Mrs. Peabody leaped into the path of the speeding train.

SAN DIEGO FAIR AVERAGES 29,483 A DAY AT GATE

San Diego, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The California Pacific International Exposition today started the second half of its 167 day session with an average daily attendance record of 29,483.

Total attendance figures the first 84 days showed 2 million 470 thousand persons had patronized the enterprise. Though the fair offers many free attractions, concessionaires and show men generally reported brisk business.

Many special days scheduled later in the season, including a second fleet week starting Friday, also indicate the peak summer business is not yet over.

TVA Amendments Approved and Rushed to Roosevelt

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The TVA amendments, broadening the powers of the Tennessee Valley authority to push the Roosevelt power program, were passed by both house and senate today and sent to the White House.

Congressional action came in the approval by both houses with little debate of a report on the measure adopted by senate and house conferees. Its signature by the President is a matter of form, as it was one of the administration's "must" measures.

The house roll call showed a strictly partisan vote. The measure was approved 259 to 90. There was no record vote in the senate.

The measure was deemed necessary by the administration to save the New Deal's biggest power project from restrictive court decisions.

Chairman John J. McSwain [Dem., S. C.] of the house military affairs committee urged approval of the report, pointing out that the house conferees unanimously signed the "compromise" conference report.

The compromise keeps TVA's bond issuing authorization at 50 million dollars instead of raising it to 100 million as desired by the administration, but broadens the Valley authority's power so that it can lend proceeds of these bonds to municipalities to be used in purchasing electric energy distributing systems.

Extends Power Over Funds.

The measure also allows TVA considerable discretion in its expenditures and bookkeeping systems and gives it power to produce fertilizers for commercial use. This defeated the movement to put TVA expenditures under Controler McCarl's control.

Representative Donald H. McLean [Rep., N. J.], one of the chief opponents of TVA, told the house he signed the conference report because he realized that all legislation "is a matter of compromise."

In spite of his dislike of the measure, he said he believed opponents of the measure had done well in keeping it within its present restrictions.

The directors of the authority must report their recommendations as to the unified development of the Tennessee river system to congress not later than April 1, 1936, under the bill.

Congress retains partial control over the TVA through appropriations for its activities. An exception was made, however, as to funds necessary to carry on the business of generating and distributing electricity and in the manufacture and sale of fertilizer. The excuse offered was that long term contracts could not be made, if they were dependent upon appropriations by congress.

There was provided a further fund of 1 million dollars to be constantly kept on hand by the TVA to "meet emergencies."

May Purchase Land, Too.

The valley authority is empowered to buy up real estate "necessary to carry out plans and projects actually decided on requiring the use of such land."

A provision was added that any land purchased and not necessary for projects must be sold by the authority within five years. No land may be sold upon which there is a permanent dam, hydraulic power plant, fertilizer plant, or munitions plant built by the government.

WOMEN PROTEST MEAT PRICES AT PACKING PLANTS

Eighteen women from Detroit, delegates of the Women's League Against the High Cost of Living, yesterday visited the stockyards plants of Armour & Co. and Swift & Co., and presented their demands for a 20 per cent reduction in the prices of meats. The leader, Mrs. Joanna Porter, said that in Detroit, where they are "striking" against meat prices by picketing and boycotting butcher shops, the packing companies had reduced them to Chicago.

With them were fifty Chicagoans, including several men, who said they represented various Chicago groups which were members of the United Conference Against High Cost of Living, with offices at 160 North Wells street. Prior to walking to the plants they met in a hall at 3749 South Halsted street. Mrs. Dina Ginsburg, acting chairman at the meeting in the hall, said that a committee would meet tomorrow night to decide when a city-wide massmeeting should be held to take a vote on a proposed meat buying strike in Chicago.

A. W. Bates, public relations counsel of Swift's, met the women there and told them prices were controled by the laws of supply and demand and that the packers are not responsible for them.

Continue Inquest in Two Tavern Explosion Deaths

An inquest into the deaths of John Eckert, 38 years old, 3304 Parnell avenue, and John Farrell, 68 years old, was continued yesterday until Sept. 24, pending further investigation of the explosion in a tavern at 701 Root street Tuesday, in which both men were fatally injured. Eckert, a patron of the tavern, died yesterday morning at Evangelical hospital, where Farrell, a bartender, had died earlier.

UNION LEAGUE JOINS FIGHT FOR CONSTITUTION

Club to Take Part Sept. 17; Assails Burocracy.

In the rôle of a nonpartisan organization with deeply rooted patriotic principles, the Union League club yesterday joined the fight to preserve the constitution and announced participation in the Constitution day observance on Sept. 17.

To make its entrance into the battle memorable the club will stage a big meeting on the night of Sept. 16, at which the principal speakers will be former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois, an outstanding Republican, and former Gov. Joseph B. Ely of Massachusetts, an outstanding constitutional Democrat.

Assail Subversive Schemes.

This meeting is also expected to adopt a reaffirmation of principles already approved by the club's directors and its ways and means committee. Its text was made public yesterday by George T. Buckingham, former president of the club, and Dayton Keith, chairman of the ways and means committee. In it state socialism, burocracies, and dictators were hard hit and all schemes to take from the people their constitutional rights were branded as "subversive to the American system."

The second demonstration by the club will come on Armistice day, under the auspices of the American Legion. Gen. Charles G. Dawes is taking an interest in this affair.

At yesterday's announcement meeting, William J. Kelly, vice chairman of the club's ways and means, emphasized that the movement in support of the constitution had been pushed by the younger members and had gained the unanimous approval of all others apprized of it.

Cites Patriotic Founding.

Mr. Buckingham recalled that the club developed from an association of patriots who exposed and defeated a plot to seize Chicago and Illinois for the Confederacy during the civil war. This group was known as the "Union League of Chicago."

The reaffirmation of principles cites this fact and continues: "It was the Union league's purpose that the union, and the constitution on which the union was builded, should be preserved. To make this purpose effective, they risked life and fortune. When that crisis had passed into history, they organized this club.

"To it they bequeathed, as a sacred trust, the duty to carry on their patriotic purpose — to preserve the union, uphold the constitution, and to perpetuate the American system of government.

"They welcomed to membership in the club men of all parties whose creed was the union and the constitution.

Fight for Constitution "a Duty."

"Due to this background, genesis and history, the Union League club of Chicago is more than a club—it is an institution upon which devolves a duty when sinister forces seek to destroy, or to undermine, the basic concept of the American system of government. Its duty is to megaphone to the world that it stands, as always, foresquare for the constitution.

"In view of this, we denounce as unpatriotic any and all efforts to substitute for it any system of dictatorshop, burocracy, or state socialism, under whatever guise it masquerades.

"The union is a democracy which, because of its huge population and vast area, must function through representatives. These representatives, during fixed terms and within constitutional limits, are the government. Because no man is good enough, or wise enough, to be entrusted with absolute power, these representatives are divided into three departments—legislative, judicial, and executive. Each set of representatives is supreme in its own sphere and each is independent of the others.

Oppose Centralization of Power.

"We oppose all efforts, direct or indirect, to break down this distinction and to extend federal centralized control over the internal affairs of 'indestructible states.'

"Another basis of the American system, affirmed in the first ten amendments to the constitution, is the American bill of rights. These ensure protection to the humblest citizen against oppression from any source.

"We oppose all schemes to take away these rights, under whatever guise, as subversive to the American system. The constitution may be amended by the people in the ordained manner, but amendments, after the first ten, have not changed the structure of the constitution."

The Chicago Bar association will sponsor a pageant, "The Making of the Constitution," on the same night as the Union League dinner.

The pageant will be held in the Medinah Temple, which has a capacity of 4,300 seats.

Perfect Plans Today.

Plans for the celebration on Constitution day will be perfected today at a luncheon of the sponsoring committee at the Palmer house. Julius H. Miner, general director, will preside and will report upon the results of his trip east when he conferred with Senators Hastings of Delaware, Glass of Virginia, and Tydings of Maryland. He also talked with former Gov. Alfred E. Smith in New York. These and other leaders are being considered as speakers on the program.

Application for the use of Soldiers' field has already been made. Admission would be free.

All downstate bar associations have been asked by Harold R. Schradzki, chairman of the committee on American citizenship of the Illinois State Bar association, to stage programs on Sept. 17 appropriate to Constitution day. In a letter to the local associations.

ON THEIR THIRD HONEYMOON

Married in Daytona

Willard O. Colvin, sportsman and heir to the wealth of his father, Edwin M. Colvin, printer and publisher, and his former wife, Mrs. Hally McLeod Colvin, are on their third honeymoon. Relatives of the couple, whose domestic tiffs have been aired for several years in the divorce courts, received word yesterday that the Colvins were remarried earlier in the day at Daytona, Fla.

Colvin, who is 34 years old, and his bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving McLeod, 117 4th street, Wilmette, were married in August, 1922, in an elopement to Valparaiso, Ind.

Their married life did not run smoothly and in 1928 Mrs. Colvin sued for separate maintenance. A week later they were reconciled and left on a second honeymoon.

This lasted until 1934, when Mrs. Colvin brought a divorce suit, again accusing her husband of spending his inheritance in riotous living.

Recently Colvin returned to Chicago on a business trip and by accident met his ex-wife. They talked things over and on Tuesday told friends they were going on a motoring trip.

Driving day and night they arrived at Daytona yesterday, were married, and started out on another honeymoon, presumably to Canada.

DORMITORY RENT AND GRADUATION FEE CUT BY N. U.

Northwestern university announced yesterday a 50 per cent cut in the $20 graduation fee for seniors and reductions in dormitory rentals for undergraduates. The new rates became effective at the opening of the fall term, Sept. 16.

Miscellaneous expenses for students, including fees for athletic contests, laboratory work, and medical supervision, will be covered by a blanket charge of $15 for undergraduates and $7 for graduate students.

Remodeling of several dormitories and the addition of several new ones has resulted in a lowering of room rates, the university announced. Women may now obtain accommodations for a minimum charge of $350 a year in comparison to the uniform rate last year of $550. A similar saving is being effected in dormitory rates for men.

FIND WAY OUT OF TIEUP OVER RAIL PENSIONS

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—A "gentleman's agreement" involving the President was reported tonight to hold promise of breaking up the jam delaying final congressional action on the new railroad pensions system.

The proposal was submitted for the President's consideration after the house ways and means committee reached an apparent impasse on the plan.

Two bills are involved, one already passed and on the President's desk calling for pensions of as much $120 a month to railroad employés who retire at 65. The other, tied up in the ways and means committee, would levy pay roll and income taxes on employers and employés to finance the pensions.

The ways and means committee was informed that if the tax bill, with its 4 per cent levy on pay rolls and 2 per cent on income, were allowed to go through, the government immediately would be obligated to provide more than 2 billion dollars in cash. So they worked out this agreement:

Pass the tax bill and let the President, vice president, and speaker each appoint members to a special board to make a survey and report back to congress by next Jan. 3. Since the pensions law would not become effective until next March, this board would have time to determine how much the pensions should be reduced or how much the taxes raised to make the system self-sustaining.

CITY IS SUED BY CONCERN LINKED IN FRAUD TRIAL

The Electrical Contracting company, whose former president, Harry A. Johnson, was once convicted along with four city employés of defrauding the city of $250,000 in connection with the installation of light posts under a million dollar contract, filed suit in the Circuit court yesterday to collect $159,504 which the city refused to pay on the contract.

Johnson was fined $5,000 and sentenced to two years in prison. Less severe sentences or fines were meted out to four city employés who were charged with accepting bribes to overlook shortages of materials in the work. Recently, however, the Appellate court reversed the convictions and remanded the cases back to the Criminal court for a new trial on the ground of reversible errors.

The alleged scheme to defraud the city was made public by the Citizens' association after an investigation.

PARTY LEADERS AVOID HONORING HORNER TODAY

Kelly, Nash and Smith Cut Governor's Day at Fair.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Coolness, both climatical and political, will characterize Governor's day at the Illinois state fair at Springfield today according to expert forecasters in both fields.

Even a slight chill in the political atmosphere may blight some budding ambitions which have been watered and nourished for many months for this occasion.

Of these the most important is the frequently mentioned but not yet announced candidacy of Gov. Horner for the Democratic nomination for a second term. Dispatches from Springfield yesterday said there was still doubt whether he would announce himself. The conditions that prevail when he reaches the fair ground, it was said, may settle the question one way or the other.

How to Read the Signs.

It is believed that the conditions would be considered adverse to Horner's candidacy if Governor's day is not a success from the standpoint of the presence of the big leaders of the state and of Cook county, as well as of total attendance. If the leaders rally to the celebration in honor of Gov. Horner it will be taken as an indorsement of his record. If many of the important ones are missing it will be a different story.

Little significance is attached to the absence of the two United States senators, James Hamilton Lewis and William H. Dieterich, who had been billed as speakers, since they and the twenty Democratic congressmen from this state are tied to their desks in Washington.

Special weight has been given, however, to the question whether the heads of the Cook county organization would be on hand today. Mayor Kelly's office said in response to inquiries that word had been received from Eagle River that he had not been able to leave there because an attack of sinus trouble had grown more severe.

Similarly, it was reported that P. A. Nash, national committeeman and chairman of the Cook county committee, had postponed his return from the east for health reasons.

Interpreted as Straws in Wind.

In addition, it was found that Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board, and chairman of the county managing committee, had found it impossible to abandon his duties.

Despite the reasons given for these absences, they were considered as corroborating to some extent the widely circulated reports that sentiment throughout the Cook county organization has been swinging away from Gov. Horner and toward Michael L. Igoe, the present United States attorney at Chicago.

Igoe was reported motoring to Springfield last night but it was said that he told friends during the day that he was going solely as a loyal Democrat and not as a candidate.

Jewish Lawyers Spring Coup.

Nevertheless, the Igoe tendency cropped out on the eve of Governor's day at a surprise sprung on him at a noon meeting yesterday of the Young Jewish Democratic Lawyers' association at the Hotel Sherman.

The district attorney went to a meeting, attended by about forty members, prepared to deliver a nonpolitical speech. But he was prevented from doing so by Attorney Sol Andrews, chairman, with a declaration against Gov. Horner and a proposal that the organization at once put into circulation a petition for the nomination of Igoe. Igoe made a noncommittal reply.

State's Attorney Courtney's office said that he would be in Springfield today. Sherif Toman, who was in Michigan, is expected to be there. So are Coroner Walsh, County Clerk Flynn, and a number of others.

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Friends of Diana Forbes-Robertson, youngest daughter of England's famed classic actor, Sir Johnston Forbes-Robertson, and James Vincent Sheean, American author, said today the couple probably would be married within a week or so. The couple, whose engagement was announced last night, now are attending the Salzburg music festival.

James Vincent Sheean, who won considerable success with his autobiography, "Personal History," was born Dec. 5, 1899, in Christian county, Ill. He has had extensive experience as foreign correspondent for American newspapers, including THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Miss Forbes-Robertson is a member of one of the great English stage families.

ANNOUNCE 200 APPROVED FOR FIREMAN JOBS

The civil service commission posted yesterday the names of 200 men ranking high in tests for fire department positions given two years ago. The men will be called, in groups of 50, for duty with the department under the terms of the city's supplemental budget, which provides $149,000 to expand the department for the remainder of the year. Robert E. McLaughlin, 7247 Peoria street, ranked high among 1,687 men who took the 1933 examinations with a grade of 91.90. Others at the top of the list, with grades of 87 or better, are Edward M. Sheehan, 4539 Congress street; Jeremiah J. McAuliffe, 750 Bittersweet place; Allen G. Cuger, 922 East 47th place; James L. Carr, 8549 South May street; Dennis A. Breen, 5536 Drexel avenue; Joseph Nisivaco, 2722 South Wells street; Donald G. Grimes, 4007 Arlington street, and William Conroy, 9830 Avenue H.

Two Indiana Young Men Drowned in Old Gravel Pit

ROOSEVELT CITES CONSTITUTION IN TALK TO SCOUTS

Service to Others Is Its Principle, He Says.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight defined the underlying principle of the constitution as service to others in a radio address to the Boy Scouts of America. He told his youthful audience that those who resist community effort are holding back civilization.

His reference to the constitution was unexpected. Only a few days ago Herbert Hoover called upon him to state his ideas on changing that document.

The radio address was occasioned by the calling off Aug. 8 of the national Scout jamboree by the President because of an epidemic of infantile paralysis in the Washington area. Mr. Roosevelt was to have reviewed the Scouts today.

He expressed regret that circumstances forced his action and made known his hope that a jamboree to replace that canceled may be held here in the new future. Thirty thousand Scouts from throughout the country and 27 foreign nations were to have attended.

Cites Historic Preamble.

The President told his audience they constituted a very real part of American citizenship. We are bound, he said, in a democracy operating under a constitution whose purpose is stated in its preamble.

"The success of that constitution is dependent upon the attitude of mind and degree of unselfish coöperation that can be developed in individuals. Scouting is essentially and clearly a program for the development of that unselfish coöperative attitude of mind.

"Scouting revolves around not the theory of service to others, but the habit of service to others. Scouting makes the individual boy conscious of his obligation to his patrol, to his troop, to his community, to his state and to his nation.

"When you go out into life you will come to understand that the individual who always says 'I can't' or 'I won't'—the individual who by inaction or opposition slows up honest, practical, far-seeing community effort—is the fellow who is holding back civilization and holding back the objectives of the constitution of the United States."

Urges Motto as Life Guide.

The President charged his auditors to carry their enthusiasm, energy, and love of outdoor life with them into the stream of life. He told them the Scout motto "be prepared" applies as much to wider service which is their opportunity when full civic responsibility is attained.

"Just as you are individually a necessary part of your patrol or your troop today, so will you become necessary parts of the citizenship of your communities," he went on. "I do not have to remind you that one individual who lags behind slows up the whole troop. In the navy we have an old saying—that the speed of a fleet is no greater than the speed of the slowest ship.

"We need more Scouts—the more the better—for the record shows that, taking it by and large, boys trained as Scouts make good citizens.

Proud of Scouts' Records.

"We older citizens are very proud of the many contributions that individual Scouts and Scout organizations have made to the relief of suffering, to the maintenance of good order and good health, and to the furtherance of good citizenship and good government."

"I hope a jamboree, in place of the one we missed this year, will be planned for some time in the future. In the meantime I send you my warm greetings, personally and as the honorary president of the Boy Scouts of America. Good luck to you and carry on!"

Invite Horner to Attend Columbus Day Activities

Paul V. Colianni, sanitary district trustee, headed a delegation of Italian-Americans which left for Springfield last night to invite Gov. Horner to participate in the Columbus Day celebration Oct. 12. Mr. Horner will be invited to review a parade during the day and attend a ball at the Congress hotel in the evening.

EDIFICE PLANNED FOR MEMORIAL TO WILL ROGERS

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Plans for an auditorium or some other public edifice as a memorial to Will Rogers were being formulated tonight on the eve of the funeral services to be conducted tomorrow for him.

Mary Pickford, Fred Stone, and Billie Burke were members of the committee of 13 in charge of the plans. It was determined the memorial for the man who scorned pretense above all else would be a useful one to perpetuate his place in the nation's life.

A tribute such as never before has been bestowed on an individual will be paid Rogers tomorrow in connection with the funeral services. Simultaneously in all motion picture studios tomorrow afternoon, work will cease and ministers will lead devotions in tribute to Rogers, killed last Thursday with Wiley Post in a plane crash in Alaska.

Services at 2 P. M. Today.

The private funeral service will be at 2 p. m. tomorrow in the Wee Kirk o' the Heather in Forest Lawn. Only 125 persons can be seated in the chapel. The Rev. J. Whitcomb Brougher, a friend of Rogers, who will officiate, arrived this morning from Portland, Ore.

A nation-wide broadcast is planned of the public service, conducted at the same time, in the Hollywood bowl, which accommodates more than 30,000 persons. There Rupert Hughes, author, will deliver a eulogy; Conrad Nagel, film actor, will read a selection, and Lawrence Tibbett, baritone, will sing a selection to be chosen by Mrs. Rogers.

Still another service will be conducted in the Beverly Hills Community church, which Rogers was instrumental in founding. Two hundred of the available 650 seats will be occupied by aviators.

Family Comes Home.

The Rogers family gathered tonight at the rambling ranch home in Santa Monica canyon after having parted for a few hours earlier today at Victorville, Cal.

There Mrs. Rogers and two of her children, Mary and James, left the train that bore them from the east and completed the homeward journey by automobile. The other son, Will Jr., covered this last 100 miles by rail.

HOME TOWN HONORS POST

Maysville, Okla., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Wiley Post's home town paid him its last tribute today. The quiet crowd that gathered from the farming countryside was too large for the little church where the flyer's body lay, and the grief service was conducted in front.

The Maysville service was arranged to comply with the aged parents' wish, so those who knew him long before he flew to fame might attend.

Final Rites Today.

Final rites will be at Oklahoma City at 3 p. m. [Chicago time] tomorrow.

Words were brief at the church today. W. E. Showen, the town editor, introduced Mac Q. Williamson, state attorney general, who lives at nearby Pauls Valley.

"We who call this spot home are gathered to pay solemn tribute to one of the best citizens of this valley," Williamson said.

Crosson Visits Parents.

Joe Crosson, the Alaskan ace who piloted the plane that brought Rogers and Post's bodies to the United States, was among the escort which brought the body from Oklahoma City earlier today. Later he went to the parents' farm. They had sent word to town they wanted to see him.

When Williamson finished speaking Showen invited the people to walk past the bier. Many were in denim overalls, many in calico, some in their Sunday best. They gazed mutely at the country boy who never forgot that he was one of them.

STRUCK BY STRAY BULLET.

George W. Schroeder, 50 years old, 318 North 1st avenue, Maywood, was wounded in the thigh by a stray .22 caliber bullet yesterday as he stood at his garage, the Auto Renewal shop, 19 North 2d avenue.

WILL ROGERS, COWBOY HUMORIST
HIS LIFE STORY

BY CHARLES COLLINS.
CHAPTER V.

THE story of Will Rogers' motion picture work did not end with his death. When he flew off toward the Arctic Circle in Wiley Post's airplane for his last adventure, he left behind him in the studios of the Fox Film corporation the films of two completed pictures—"In Old Kentucky," based on Charles T. Dazey's play about the racing stables of the Blue Grass region which had a long-lived vogue, dating back to 1893, and "Steamboat Around the Bend," a version of a novel by Ben Lucien Burman.

The fact that they will be released for exhibition—the former on Dec. 6 the latter on Aug. 24—marks a departure from the traditions of the motion picture industry and illustrates the unique position that Rogers held as a national character. The decision to release was arrived at, after much discussion of the question, four days after his death.

Former Experiences Recalled.

Heretofore it has been motion picture policy to suppress the posthumous work of outstanding players in spite of the financial waste involved. There was an unwritten law to the effect that dead stars should not be seen in screen entertainment.

This rule was based upon past experience, with the cases of Rudolph Valentino and Wallace Reid as major precedents. The public stayed away from the posthumous films of these romantic heroes as if the theater were affected with the plague.

Valentino and Reid, however, were the subjects of a maudlin sentimentalism on the part of over-emotionalized women and green rhapsodic girls. When the faces of these two actors were seen upon the screen after death, hysterical worshipers broke out into gooseflesh and had superstitious conniption fits.

Rogers a Man's Man.

The case of Will Rogers, however, is different, and the film executives have wisely decided to depart from precedent so far as he is concerned. His popularity was based upon a healthy mass psychology. He was a man's man. Every one felt a genial affection for him, but he was never a love image, a sublimation of suppressed desires, among sub-adult women patrons of the movies. Moreover, the audience point of view toward the talkies is saner and more wholesome than that of the silent screen followers.

Therefore, in "Steamboat Around the Bend" and "In Old Kentucky" the spirit of Will Rogers will have its last laugh.

Now for a glance at the third important phase of Rogers' prolific and many-sided life. It is time to speak of Rogers, the writer.

A Popular Philosopher.

He had no formal literary standing, and yet he produced a large amount of manuscript which found its way into type to divert and refresh the minds of a myriad of readers. He was a popular philosopher in the thumbnail skits for the daily newspapers. He wrote numerous long articles for the magazines. Republication of his essays and utterances in book form made him an author to be reckoned with by the library catalogers.

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

There is no evidence to suggest that Rogers employed a "ghost" to meet editorial demands for his jocular opinions. On the other hand, visitors at his dressing rooms in theaters and film studios have often found him tapping away at a typewriter with the one finger method. No one has ever asserted that he didn't write his own stuff. It was too typical of Rogers to have been an imitation.

Articles Widely Syndicated.

As a writer specializing in illiterate humor and current folk speech he has been called a lineal descendant of Artemus Ward [Charles Farrar Browne, 1834-1867].

His widest distribution in print came from his brief daily contributions to the New York Times, which were syndicated to 500 newspapers in the United States and Canada. This association began in a whimsical way.

On July 29, 1926, the Times received a message from Rogers, then in London, asking if the paper would pay cable tolls on a brief message. The answer was "Yes," and presently the Times received the following paragraph in the form of a letter to the editor:

"Nancy Astor, which is the nom de plume of Lady Astor, is arriving on your side about now. She is the best friend America has here. Please ask my friend Jimmy Walker to have New York take good care of her. She is the only one over here that don't throw rocks at American tourists."

Cable Leads to a Contract.

This was published in a display "box," and without further instructions Rogers continued to send a nightly cablegram. Two months later a contract for the syndication of "Will Rogers Says" was signed. The arrangement continued for years.

In November, 1932, Rogers said something saucy about the war debts and the Times took issue with him mildly in an editorial. This brought the following retort, which was published in the usual form:

"I would like to state to the readers of the New York Times that I am in no way responsible for the editorial or political policy of this paper. I allow them free reign [sic] as to their opinion, so long as it is within the bounds of good circulation gathering. But I want it distinctly understood that their policy may be in direct conflict with mine."

Booklets Out of Print.

As a humorist in bindings, Rogers has the following booklets to his credit:

"Rogerisms," "The Cowboy Philosopher on Prohibition," "The Cowboy Philosopher on the Peace Conference," "The Illiterate Digest," "Letters of a Self-made Diplomat," "The League of Nations," "What We Laugh At," "There's Not a Bathing Suit in Russia," and "Ether and Me." An inquiry at a Chicago book shop on the day after his death revealed the fact that the latter title is the only one "in print"—that is, still on the market. These works are reprints of magazine articles, averaging about 10,000 words in length.

President Coolidge was one of Rogers' favorite targets, particularly in his thrifty, parsimonious Vermont aspect. The "Letters of a Self-made Diplomat" were addressed to Coolidge.

Pokes Fun At President.

Here is a typical shot:

"I would have come up to your house in Washington, but I didn't know whether you had any help or not, and keeping up a big house when you have always lived in a small one is quite a problem. Then I didn't know what you might charge me."

Nevertheless, Rogers' admiration for Coolidge as a statesman could be read between the lines, and the teasing was always friendly. When Coolidge himself became a journalist, after his term had expired, Rogers paid him a rival's compliment:

"No one had any idea he could write such human and plain, straightaway interesting stuff."

'WORK OR GET NO AID!' ULTIMATUM TO WPA STRIKERS

300 Relief Employes Quit in Calumet Area.

between Riverdale and the Chicago city limits, between 129th and 134th streets south of the Little Calumet river. The men had been removing topsoil from a 120 acre tract. The plan had been to place spoilage from deepening operations in the river over this area, replace the topsoil, and then landscape the elevated tract.

Agitators Distribute Circulars.

When the WPA workers arrived on location yesterday morning mimeographed sheets containing various demands were circulated among them. Besides the wage and hour demand the literature asked free transportation for the men, shelter on the job, and weekly instead of bi-weekly pay checks.

Frank J. Kelly, superintendent on the job, called the men together in front of his shack. By this time the crowd had been augmented by 200 men who were awaiting for their "pink slips," or transfers from the relief rolls to the WPA project.

Twenty-five state, county, and Riverdale police armed with tear gas and clubs arrived on the scene about this time, but there was no disorder.

Kelly then told the rebellious workmen to elect a committee of three of their members to confer with Burke, and to go back to work.

Meanwhile Raymond Sarocco, 120 West 116th street, a correspondent for the Unita Operaia, a radical New York paper, had mounted a stump nearby and the milling throng gravitated away from Kelly and toward him. After repeating the demands Sarocco said the committee idea was a good one, but that the men selected should not be "influenced."

Sarocco Heads Strikers.

Sarocco was then picked as chairman. The other two committee members are Lawrence Rayborn, 541 West 31st street, and Walter Seals, 5912 State street, the latter colored.

Burke listened to the demands of the strike committee before putting in the call for Hopkins late yesterday, after which the workmen threw aside their shovels and, disregarding Burke's advice and Kelly's plea that they go back to work, departed from the location in small groups.

Sarocco denied that communists had anything to do with the strike, although he admitted that he personally was connected with the American League Against War and Fascism, supported by the communist party.

Efforts to reach Sarocco at his home last night and get a fuller explanation of the workers' "grievances" and present intentions in face of the "work or starve" edict proved futile. He could not be found.

DESTITUTE NEW YORK RELIEF WORKERS DUE FOR $13 ALLOWANCE

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—After 100 white collar pickets, some bearing placards caricaturing Gen. Hugh S. Johnson as a sinister figure wielding a scimitar labeled "wage cuts," had paraded several hours before his headquarters he announced this afternoon an arrangement by which destitute workers on relief projects would receive a $13 allowance to tide them over until the shift to the federal pay system could be completed.

"The shift from weekly pay to payment every two weeks, when applied to destitute people, leaves them for one week without means to live," said the New York City WPA administrator.

"Mr. Hopkins [Harry L. Hopkins, national WPA administrator] today authorized me to give as a relief allowance $13, or, roughly, one-fourth of the minimum security wage to all people on the security wage affected by the shift."

Today's demonstration was the climax of a three hour strike by approximately 3,000 white collar workers employed on Federal Works Progress administration projects against wages and working conditions.

Plants Get New Plan.

Newark, N. J., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A plan under which unemployed men would be trained for industrial employment in plants with training facilities, while carried on WPA rolls at the security wage, has been placed before several of the larger plants in New Jersey by the Works Progress administration for that state.

BALK STRIKE MOB

Charleston, Ill., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Embattled broomcorn farmers, carrying shotguns and pitchforks, patroled their fields today after turning back strikers who had sought to entice away their harvest hands.

A vigilante organization, numbering approximately 300 landowners, rallied quickly at the Joe Driscoll farm this morning when informed that 100 strikers had ordered 40 workers out of the field.

Yesterday at the same place some 100 workers had fled when strike sympathizers, armed with rifles, curtly bade them to quit working.

Workers Continue Harvest.

Protected by the landowner's armament, however, the workers continued today at their task—harvesting one of Coles county's most important crops.

The landowners insisted the strikers' demands for pay increases were not justified, although this year's harvest scale is somewhat lower than last year's.

"The crop is standing straight, where last year it was beaten down by wind and rain" one farmer explained. "A man can make $3 to $4 a day with the same effort he put in last year, despite the lower hourly scale."

Seek Higher Wages.

The strikers want a 15 cents increase from the prevailing rate of 30 cents an hour.

Sherif Roy Clark, who was watching the situation closely, said he believed he would be able to maintain order.

The vigilante group indicated it was prepared to protect the crop until the cutting was completed, probably in a week or ten days.

Darkened Movie Screens to Form Rogers' Tribute

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Motion picture screens in more than 12,000 theaters in all sections of the United States will be darkened for two minutes tomorrow afternoon as a tribute to Will Rogers, it was announced tonight by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

LET PRELIMINARY CONTRACT FOR A $5,000,000 SEWER

The Chicago sanitary district board yesterday took definite action toward the construction of a $5,000,000 intercepting sewer along the Des Plaines river from Pershing road to Dempster street, to serve all towns along the river in that area and free the river from waste. The contract for the digging of test pits to complete an underground survey of the section to be traversed by the sewer was awarded to the Underground Construction company.

Money for construction of the sewer has been requested from the Public Works administration by the sanitary board. It is expected construction will be completed in 1938.

Marjorie White, Actress, Dies from Crash Hurts

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Marjorie White, actress, died in a Hollywood hospital this morning from injuries suffered in a Santa Monica auto crash Sunday. The actress was the wife of E. J. Tierney, dance director.

3 PLANE CRASH DEAD REMOVED FROM MOUNTAIN

Glendo, Wyo., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The burned and broken bodies of three Indianapolis residents were taken tonight from the crypt their private plane dug when it smashed into the side of Laramie Peak during a storm last Thursday.

The three were Burnside Smith, prominent Indiana business executive; Dick Arnett, airfield manager who was piloting Smith's ship, and Arnett's bride of three weeks, the former Eleanor Clark. The Arnetts were on an aerial honeymoon and Smith was on a business mission.

Dr. A. C. Arnett of Lafayette, Ind., father of the pilot, waited to claim the body of his son and the young flyer's bride.

The bodies, swathed in canvas, were brought to Glendo tonight and transferred to a funeral car which left for Cheyenne, Wyo.

KILLED BY TRACTOR.

Green Bay, Wis., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—John Servais, 36, was killed in New Franken, near here, today when he was run over by his tractor, which he had just finished repairing and was backing out of the garage when the steering wheel came off, throwing him under the machine. He is survived by the widow and seven children.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—
Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go
The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.
Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

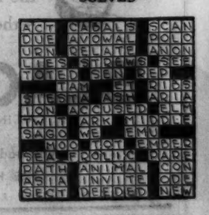
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED



STE. GENEVIEVE RECALLS 200 YRS. WITH PAGEANTRY

"Mother of West" Tells Her Own Story.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ste. Genevieve, Mo., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—This little town on the Mississippi, Ste. Genevieve, "mother of the west," is in the midst of its bicentennial celebration and pageant, a four day affair in which the entire population is taking part, nearly half of them on the pageant stage where the life of their ancestors is depicted in nightly episodes.

This is not a story of material greatness and progress, but of something, perhaps, more precious. In 1804 St. Genevieve had 2,870 population. Today it is 2,600. It is built around its cemetery of 3,000 pioneers, its church and schools, not in discouragement and dismay at the glories of young Chicago and St. Louis, but in pride, reverence and stability. It prefers its old stone houses to anything new. It is neighborly, neat, thrifty. Chickens cackle in the back yards.

Cool Breeze Is a Gift.

Men lock up their shops to go home for noon dinner. Air conditioning is something unknown. A breeze from the south this hot August day is "a gift from God."

Roy Coleman, one of the bi-centennial poets, has captured the meaning of it all in the following lines:

Here in the heart of a new world men gave their bone and sinew in a fertile cause. They built a town and left a monument of loveliness that has come down out of the dust of these two hundred years and bids see that in simplicity doth beauty live.
How, by the labour of men's souls, the dignity of love has built a harbor for the mind within this quiet valley where once

World 200 Years Ago.

The American democracy was forged here and lives on unchanged. Look at origins and at the world scene two hundred years ago for a moment.

In those days this Missouri country was a "land of savages," a pawn around the diplomatic table of France, Spain, and England, part of the royal province of Louisiana. Spain touched it from the south. France from the north. The story of the American colonies on the Atlantic seaboard is fairly familiar, but that of Ste. Genevieve, with its priests and traders, had a more important impress on this wilderness.

De Soto is said to have come north as far as this site in 1543 in his search for gold. Marquette and Joliet passed this way in 1673, having come over the Chicago portage.

On Fur Trade Route.

This led to the later French explorations from Quebec, the opening of fur, salt, and lead trade, the establishment of missions at old Kaskaskia in Illinois and on the west bank at the St. Genevieve site. It was not a story of agriculture, but of trade and exploration.

The traditional date of settlement is 1735. The Rev. Francis J. Yealy, S. J., writing of the importance of this anniversary, says:

"The little city of Sainte Genevieve was the first permanent settlement made in Missouri. For many years it was commercially important for its trafic in lead, salt, and furs. From the very first it was a center of religious activity and of Catholic culture, and, from an early date in its history, of educational influence as well. During the nineteenth century its commercial prominence was lost, but its Catholic faith has survived and developed with the growth of its population. This celebration is an event of no small interest to American Catholics."

Alvin F. Petrequin, historian of the present celebration, writes:

"Man must always have an incentive for conquest. In our own history of the colonization of the Mississippi valley the desire to impart the teachings of Christ vied only with the desire to find valuable minerals, thus it was in the latter part of the seventeenth century the French began to move down into the Mississippi valley from Canada. The emigration formed a strange parallel. Side by side men in the black cassocks of the Jesuit societies of France and men burning to possess the fabulous riches of a new and untried land walked and fought their way into the heart of America."

The centennial pageant, written by the Rev. J. B. Platisha, C. M., M. S., is being performed in four episodes, staged in a natural amphitheater a mile outside town, where a stream has been dammed to make the appearance of the river on which many of the scenes take place. The women of the town have worked more than a year on the costumes.

Pioneers' Descendants There.

Artistic lighting, orchestral music, an audience of 5,000 watching the recreation of the past, make this a scene of great beauty. Many of the descendants of the pioneers walk upon this stage. The queen is Miss Mary Elizabeth Rozier, descendant of one of the earliest traders and merchants. The big red church and convent are in the center of town and from there has flowed much of the inspiration for the celebration.

The story, told in four episodes, begins with the prehistoric race of mound builders, who have left their remains near here. They are presented as sun worshippers, superior to the red men in intelligence. The historic Indian tribes next appear. Marquette and Joliet, passing along the river, indicate the coming of a new chapter in history.

STAGES 4 HOLDUPS IN 2 HOURS.

In four successive robberies within two hours, a bandit yesterday held up four groceries at 7059 South Halsted street, 1025 West 63d street, 8549 South Halsted street, and 6531 South Albany avenue, obtaining a total of $80.

Sail for Honeymoon in Europe

Jeritza on Normandie

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Maria Jeritza, on board the Normandie with her husband, Winfield Sheehan, motion picture executive, said she had "sacrificed" thirty-two pounds to the talkies, although she has not yet made her screen début.

She waved aside the reported threat of her former husband, Baron Von Popper, that he would refuse to recognize her divorce in this country.

"I have an engagement to sing in the opera in Vienna," she said. "That shows what I think of the threat."

Mr. and Mrs. Sheehan are making their honeymoon trip.

N. Y. TURNS DOWN MILLION POUNDS OF INFERIOR FOOD

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A million pounds of foodstuffs—rice and beans filled with weevils, canned goods in rusty containers, shrunken eggs, rotten vegetables—intended for consumption in city hospitals and institutions, has been rejected in the past six months by a vigilant staf in the office of Controler Frank J. Taylor, it became known today.

The reorganized inspection division in the controler's office is charged with food inspection under the law establishing the new department of purchase.

Some of the meat delivered, including poultry for invalids, was found to be stale; meat had been frozen and subsequently thawed and carcasses of meat were rejected due to a thin and scrawny condition.

Quantities of milk were not acceptable owing to their delivery in old and rusty cans, in some cases improperly sealed—a requirement to insure an untampered delivery. The presence of spots in a number of egg deliveries resulted in their rejection.

AMERICAN PAPER IN CHINA TARGET OF JAPAN'S IRE

Tokio Official Threatens "Serious Action."

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Aug. 21.—Lieut. Gen. R. Isogaya, Japanese military attaché here, in an interview circulated through the Rengo [Japanese] news agency, today threatened "serious action" against the local American newspaper, the China Weekly Review. The Japanese are angered over the paper's publication in its issue of July 27 of editorial comment on the so-called New Life magazine case. The Japanese military attaché said:

"The Life affair caused serious repercussions at the time and has not yet been completely settled. Hence we are at a loss to understand the motive of the American paper in reviewing the case and reprinting in a summarized form the objectionable portion of the article. Therefore we believe that the Japanese authorities will soon take serious action in connection with the matter."

What Editorial Said.

The Review's editorial on the sentencing of Editor Tu Chung-yuan of the New Life magazine by a Chinese court to a term of fourteen months in jail and the subsequent refusal of an appeal stressed that the editor was not sentenced under the press law. It charged the court rendered its decision under an obscure clause of the criminal code which is generally recognized as not applicable to the case. However, the judge ruled that "in cases of this character no appeal is acceptable."

The Chinese New Life magazine several weeks ago published an article entitled "Gossip About Emperors." It referred to several of China's past emperors who met violent ends. The article then declared that, in the present stage of history, emperors are more or less nominal.

Referring to Emperor Hirohito of Japan, the magazine said: "As a young man Hiroto was interested in the study of biology, but tradition and inheritance brought him to the throne. He possesses little power and takes little part in public affairs and supports the militarist and capitalist rule of the country.

Says Name "Hides Evils."

"But Japan will never discard the name 'emperor,' because it contributed much to the sovereignty of the country and avoids class collisions, and at the same time hides the evils committed by particular groups who use the name 'emperor.'"

The article aroused the anger of the Japanese militarists against China, causing them to present a series of demands on the Nanking government. In addition to demanding punishment for the editor of the New Life magazine, the Japanese asked the abolition of the Kuomintang [National People's party] in Shanghai on the grounds that the article in the New Life magazine was previously approved by Kuomintang leaders.

The inquest into the death of Thomas Kirran, 26 years old, 1309 Washington street, Des Plaines, a special policeman on the village force, who was fatally shot Tuesday night in a dispute over a $480 room and board bill, was continued yesterday until Sept. 5 to give police time for further investigation. John Walsn, 52 years old, Kirran's landlord, is held for the shooting which occurred outside Ghandi inn, a roadhouse on Rand road just west of River road.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Congress completed action today on a bill authorizing a survey and construction of a highway to connect the northwest with Alaska. It now goes to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature. The bill would authorize the President to negotiate with Canada for construction.

LEAD PHOSPHATE USED IN RELIEF OF CANCER CASE

San Francisco, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The apparent relief of a few "hopeless" cancer cases by the administration of lead phosphate to a degree producing lead intoxication was reported to the American Chemical society today.

Dr. A. E. Osterberg, Dr. J. A. Bargen, and Dr. B. T. Horton of the Mayo clinic, Rochester, Minn., said favorable results were obtained in fourteen out of eighty-five instances.

All were "individuals who were considered hopelessly inoperable and for whom no other type of therapy seemed to offer the least amount of hope."

Of the fourteen, however, seven also had been given the irradiation type of treatment. Consequently the lead phosphate treatment was credited with achieving the results in only seven of the cases.

The conclusion drawn was "consequently it would appear from this preliminary attempt at this type of therapy that lead compounds offer some hope in the chemo-therapy of cancer."

GOSSIP OF KIN SNARES SLAYER AFTER 27 YEARS

Poplar Bluff, Mo., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—His relatives gossiped—and as a result, Oscar Prince, 52, prosperous farmer, is in jail for a murder he confessed having committed 27 years ago.

Prince, who came to Missouri 22 years ago under the name of Oscar Parkison, was arrested yesterday by Sherif C. D. McKinney and turned over to authorities in Kentucky who held a warant accusing him of slaying 16 year old Ira Ison at Crockett, Ky., in 1908.

Three months ago, Sherif McKinney said, he overheard a conversation between two farmers, one of whom said that Parkison had killed a man in Kentucky and "nothing ever had been done about it."

The sherif began an investigation which led to the discovery of a Kentucky warant charging murder. Arrested at his farm, Prince confessed and said he was glad his days as a fugitive were over.

SHOTGUN KILLS BOY, 12.

Benton, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Ira Toney, 12, of Christopher, was killed today by the accidental discharge of a shotgun while hunting.

COURT RULING HITS WILD LIFE REFUGE IN HORICON MARSH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Waukesha, Wis., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—In a decision regarded as a sweeping victory for owners of land adjoining Horicon marsh in Dodge county, Circuit Judge Charles M. Davison here today decided that the conservation commission has no legal authority to operate the Rock river dam at Horicon to raise the water level until the state has acquired the right to flood the lands either by gift, purchase, or condemnation.

The court declared that the lands in question, owned by some 200 farmers and others, are privately owned and the state has no title "excepting public right of navigation and incidental rights of hunting and fishing along the navigable streams."

The conservation commission likewise is powerless to maintain a wild life refuge on any of the privately owned lands, Judge Davison asserted, and may not maintain a permanent or fixed water level by the use of a dam or in any way interfere with the seasonal water levels as they naturally exist.

The decision "perpetually restrains the state from maintaining a permanent water level of 75.3, an elevation set by the public service commission." It is believed certain that the state will appeal to the Supreme court.

"The Newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and lead public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."—Chicago Tribune.

THE COMMERCE DEPARTMENT GIVES IT AWAY.

While the conference committees of the two houses of congress wrangled over which of the two share-the-wealth bills to report back for passage the department of commerce made public a study which would have stopped any consideration of either bill by a conscientious and intelligent congress. The commerce report disclosed that the theory on which wealth sharing was based was utterly erroneous.

The theoretical basis for wealth sharing was stated by the President in his astounding message of June 19. He said: "With the enactment of the income tax law of 1913 the federal government began to apply effectively the widely accepted principle that taxes should be levied in proportion to ability to pay and in proportion to the benefits received. Income was wisely chosen as the measure of benefit and of ability to pay. This was and still is a wholesome guide for national policy. It should be retained as a government principle of federal taxation. Our revenue laws (however) have operated in many ways to the unfair advantage of the few and they have done little to prevent an unjust concentration of wealth and economic power."

If, as the President said, income is the measure of ability to pay and of benefits received, then income must be the measure of wealth and economic power. The President was asking that higher taxes be imposed because he believed income was highly concentrated and becoming more highly concentrated. That is but a variant of the Huey Long representation that 1 per cent of the people have a very large percentage of the income and wealth.

The report of the commerce department, released on Aug. 12, showed that the President's assumption about concentration of income was not founded upon fact. It disclosed that not only was it untrue that a small number of people receive the bulk of the income of this country, but that 67 per cent of the income paid out in 1934 went to labor. Out of a national income of 49 billion dollars last year labor got 33 billions. Equally erroneous was the President's assumption that income was becoming more concentrated, for the commerce department found that the share of income going to labor, instead of declining, has been increasing, having risen from 63.9 per cent to 67 per cent during the past two years alone. Dividends of corporations, which bulked so large in the President's imagination, actually were found by the commerce department to be so small that, if all dividends were added to wages, labor income would rise by only 7 per cent. The report showed that if all landlords were banished and their incomes confiscated the government wouldn't get enough to pay for what it is spending on relief.

When, despite this report of government experts that the alleged wrong did not exist, the President persisted in demanding that a share-the-wealth bill be passed, it became clearer than ever that the only excuse for the bill is politics. The thought that some may have had that the legislation had something to do with the revenue policy was previously disposed of by the secretary of the treasury, who refused to discuss the bill, and the expert of the ways and means committee, who declared that the measure couldn't be expected to raise much revenue. Politically there is an explanation. It is that Mr. Roosevelt, recognizing that he has forfeited all claims to the support of the thoughtful citizens, sees that his only chance of a political future lies in rousing the uninformed by the methods of Huey Long.

THE ROGERS-POST AIRPORT.

No other nonflyer has contributed so much toward making the traveling public air conscious as did Will Rogers. He was the country's leading air passenger, and his example and the constant comment in his writings were powerful influences in the transformation of air travel from a novel adventure to a commonplace convenience.

Mayor Kelly's suggestion that the projected island air field be named the Will Rogers airport is most appropriate, for the primary advantage of the field will be its greater convenience to the air passengers, among whom the humorist was so prominent. The field should also commemorate the name of Wiley Post, who did as great things for aviation as a flyer as Rogers did as a passenger.

Five years ago, when transcontinental races were preparing the way for the high speed transport planes of today, Post was a leading race pilot. His two 'round the world dashes were the most spectacular and significant contributions toward long distance flights since Lindbergh flew to Paris. The importance to the future of flying of his stratosphere experiments cannot be overrated.

The Rogers-Post airport would be a fitting memorial to two great men, the one who did so much as a passenger to popularize aviation today, and the other who as a pilot and investigator made the greatest single contribution of recent years to the aviation of tomorrow.

CAESAR AND THE KING OF KINGS.

When Mr. Eden offered Mussolini a slice of British territory as compensation for not taking Ethiopia it was thought that he must be slightly affected in the head and if he had the consent of Mr. Baldwin in making the offer that the British government was in a dizzy spell. There was considerable alarm at home and questions in parliament were bulking large when it appeared that the Italian would have nothing to do with such astonishing British generosity. It wouldn't satisfy him at all. Meanwhile Mr. Eden had been reminded that he was bartering away British subjects or proposing to do so.

The Briton does not mind thinking that he will do a great deal for humanity, much more than the lesser breeds and all that any generous spirited persons could be expected to do, but we were reminded when a transfer of the British West Indies was suggested as something on the debt that the British were a proud people, the empire was a proud empire, and none of it could be laid on the bargain table, not even in settlement of an honorable debt.

The British were too honorable to pay their honorable debts that way, even if they couldn't or wouldn't pay them any other way. Recollection of the British decision in the case of the West Indies made it all the stranger that the British government should consider handing out even a trifling slice of territory, containing the most negligible British subjects, merely to protect the Ethiopians from the Italian mailed fist.

Now it appears that Mr. Eden was not moved entirely by a feeling of compassion for the subjects of Haile Selassie. As the Ethiopian affair grows more serious less is heard about treaty rights, the honor of nations and duty to humanity and more about British interests. As Mussolini goes to war the British begin dealing from another pack of cards. The conquest of Ethiopia by Italy will be prejudicial to material British interests. It is said that Great Britian cannot have the Italians at the head waters of the Nile and they do not propose to have them there. The entrenchment of a Mediterranean power in an African country the size of Ethiopia is something the British empire would regard with alarm.

It is becoming more probable that if the new Roman Cæsar gets a war he will get a good one, although thus far the African king of kings has been having trouble with his supplies. France and Great Britain, vacillating in their policy, have tied up delivery and the Ethiopian lion can't get even what had been shipped to him. The French put a stop order on goods landed in French Somaliland and the British in trying to persuade Mussolini of their fair and honorable intentions were not permitting war goods to leave England.

The least the British could do would be to relieve the Ethiopian buyer from these restrictions. At that the Ethiopian isn't having a great deal more trouble than the Italian. Mussolini is finding that his cash is wanted with his order. He owes a coal bill in England and Scotland and the operators want to see his money before they give him any more fuel. He is moving gold now to cover his purchases, and if the kings of kings can get enough munitions to stand him off for a while he may lose the war in the counting houses. If he starts it and is repulsed or even held up, then the consequences to Europe will begin to appear. They can be almost anything. A number of the smaller neighboring nations have scores to settle with Italy and peoples, ports and territories to recover. Give them a chance and it is highly probable that they'll make the effort.

OLD TIME MOVIES.

[Danville (Ill.) Commercial-News.]

Workmen with blowtorches, removing paint from buildings on the southeast corner of Vermillion and North streets, have uncovered relics of a quarter-century ago in Danville.

Over the Cotton Shop sign Wednesday faintly appeared the words "Life Moving Pictures." The letters, painted on about 25 years ago, had been covered many times since then, but the paint had hardened to such an extent that the outlines of the letters were still visible.

Seeing the sign "Life Moving Pictures" recalled other theaters of that time. There was the Habit, Luna, Lyric, Grand Opera house, Coliseum, Nickelodeon, Majestic, Olympic, Bijou and U. S. Exhibits. The Lyric was on the Allard circuit, and Max Bloom, with his "That's My Horse," Lillian Russell and Will Rogers appeared there, together with many others who since have gained fame as national amusement stars. In later years Ed Wynn appeared there.

How many can forget when "Birth of a Nation," with its sound accompaniments, appeared, and school children were dismissed so they could see the show? Then there was "The Perils of Pauline," starring Pearl White. How "The Iron Claw" thrilled us youngsters when the scarred villain's ice tong hand threatened the fair heroine. Marguerite Snow was another of the movie thriller stars.

Those were the days when spring was welcomed with bock beer and street cars that opened on the side. Youngsters yerned for the day when they would be old enough to swing on the trolley's running board that extended the length of the car on each side. The big horses pulling the brewery drays always looked so strong, and the beer barrels swinging from the sides of the drays were fascinating. But when it came to passing the saloons with the odor of sour beer coming out of the doors in the summer time it was quite different for this youngster.

The courthouse was being built about that time, and one side of the square was boarded off. Band concerts were given each Sunday at the Soldiers' home, and picnickers filled the grounds on summer days. Fire horses dashing out of the station furnished a thrill that was never forgotten.

All of this was recalled while looking up at that old sign. From the past the mind drifted to the present, and it looked less attractive. Was the manner of living in the old days better than that of today, or were the impressions merely fascinations of boyhood that stand out mostly because they were among the first remembrances?

WAKE-LINE LETTER BOX.

DEAR WAKE-LINE: I ran across a book on civics that I studied 30 years ago and right there, printed in full, was the Constitution of the United States. I got down the old strong box, hurried to a secluded spot, and secretly buried it. I have saved the Constitution.

If any one doubts this I will show it to any proved Republican, Liberty leaguers, or a few selected sane Democrats, beginning with Al Smith. None others need apply. J. B. Henry.

After a tour of the caves in Old Kentucky . . . Kentucky, where the moonlight falls the softest, where friendship is the strongest, where love's light glows the longest, where the moonshine is the clearest, by no means the dearest, and yet it acts the queerest, where the blue grass waves the bluest—that's Kentucky . . .

On our way back we stopped at Dade park, where they are having 26 days of summer racing, and did we enjoy ourselves? Ten dollars more in the poke and a very delightful time. We crossed one toll bridge going into Henderson, Ky., and another bridge over to Dade park. Bridges, bridges, all around, bridges.

"Sir," I inquired, "are we in Kentucky or in Indiana?"

"Well, it does seem kinda queer to think you're in Kentucky when you cross the river north, out you are across the river and in Kentucky. This is an island, you know." No, sir, I didn't know Dade park was on an island. Our Block.

Helper Philip A. Beaker's effort to alibi the Cubs on the ground they haven't a team reminds me of the wife's efforts to plead with the cop for her husband on a charge of reckless driving because he was drunk. That's the worst of it—the Cubs have a ball club. There isn't a better fielding shortstop that Jurges, Hack is nobody's fool at third, and Gabby is still tops among catchers. French, Carleton, Henshaw, and Root have turned in some sweet games. It isn't the best pitching staff in the world, but it is far from being the worst.

No, the trouble is not that the Cubs can't play ball, but sometimes they don't. It seems to be their most aggravating trouble to turn bright yellow and fold up when our hopes are highest or the going gets tough. Just to save somebody the trouble of telling me to get out there and do better I'll reply that I can't, but I don't take good money for not doing it. T. M. Baxter.

OUR STADIUM HAS BEEN bemoaning the paucity of attractive bouts. We suggest Congressman Charles Kramer of California vs. Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas. During a cloakroom discussion at Washington Mr. Kramer socked Mr. Maverick on the jaw. Bystanders prevented Mr. Maverick from responding in kind. No such unfair rules would prevail in a formal bout. Why, the match is a natural! Just think how many people would enjoy seeing two congressmen socking each other instead of socking the public.

WHY THE KIDNEYS FAIL.

THE removal of waste from the body is a highly complex process and is accomplished principally through the lungs, the skin, the intestinal tract, and the urinary tract. Each has its special function, although each will help the others in the event of an overload or a breakdown. The assistance that can be given, however, is small in comparison with the work performed by any one of the special excretory organs.

The essential job of the kidneys is to carry off waste material that accumulates from the breaking down of muscle tissue. The lungs aid in disposing of carbon dioxide from burned starches and sugars. But the kidneys are of vital importance in removing the substances that come from the oxidation of protein, chiefly creatine, urea, and uric acid.

It is perhaps unfortunate that the kidneys become diseased without advising us of the fact. Changes in structure and hence functions of these organs can begin in a quiet manner and progress to a fairly serious stage before we are aware that trouble exists. The signal of pain, which we depend upon for warning in other diseases, will rarely appear unless there is some mechanical obstruction to the outflow of urine—as, for example, a stone in the kidney itself or a blocking of the ureter [the tube that leads from the kidney to the bladder]. We have often seen pictured a bent figure of a man with one hand placed on the lower back. The legend may be, "O, my kidneys are killing me." When any one tells you that he has severe pain in the kidneys put it down for arthritis or some disease of the muscles or bones of the back.

Each kidney is about 4 inches long, 2 inches wide, and 1 inch thick and weighs from 4 to 6 ounces. These important organs do not lie low down in the vicinity of the bladder. In fact, if they were visible [which they are not], the upper half of each kidney would be seen partially covered by the eleventh and twelfth ribs. Although small, the kidneys are masses of tiny tubes and capillaries that total many miles in length.

The kidneys function as filtration plants, and it is only when they become diseased that they fail to take care of their normal load. They have the power of withdrawing certain chemicals from the blood and excreting these substances in the urine. If we could see all the extremely fine, delicate tubes in these organs we would readily understand how disease or toxins can injure them.

If the kidney cells swell they will not function. Sometimes this situation occurs when disease attacks the body and throws a large amount of toxin into the blood stream. The kidneys make a strenuous effort to remove this material, and, as a result, the cells may be overloaded and disintegration may follow. Poisons produced by infections about the teeth, in the tonsils, the throat, or the sinuses, which are slowly absorbed, often prove destructive in the same manner.

Much can be done to relieve kidney load. The diet will help, and removal of focal infection and scrupulous cleanliness of the entire body are imperative. We can drink too much water just as we can eat too much food. Enough water should be taken to insure a thorough flushing of the urinary tract, but not such an amount as will engorge the blood vessels and result in swelling of the tissues. Salts can be regulated and protein will be needed, particularly if there is elimination of protein via the urine [albumin].

Sufferers from kidney disease can so readjust their lives that there will be little if any interference with average body activities. A trace of albumin in the urine of an individual past middle life need not cause undue concern. A fair amount of albumin, however, plus the débris of destroyed kidney tissue, will require careful management. A urine examination, at least once each year, is an evidence of foresight and certifies that you believe you are worth something to your family.

SOY BEANS.

M. E. writes: I would like to learn something about the food value of soy beans. Are they healthful?

REPLY.

Soy beans constitute an unusually well balanced food for human nutrition. As they are easily raised and can be economically prepared for the table, they are a boon to families of small income. They are helpful in cases of chronic constipation.

R. H. Monier says: "I feel that soya as a food, including the flour, oil, and the beans themselves, should be encouraged throughout the country. It requires time to educate and interest the general public in a new food. The transplanting and general introduction of the potato into Europe took nearly 300 years."

In planting soy beans one should bear in mind that there are many varieties, and that some are hard to prepare as human food. Monier found that the Easycook variety is the most practical in every way, but that the Hahto and Mame varieties are satisfactory and are excellent when prepared in the same manner as butter beans or lima beans. These latter are difficult to hull when green and should, after they are brought in from the garden, be allowed to boil in water for 3 to 5 minutes. The hulls and the fine hairlike material will then come off easily. Other varieties require even longer soaking and cooking.

Monier gives the following recipe for "a dish of peculiar and delightful flavor and palatability:

"Soak two cups of Easycook soy beans overnight. Pour off water and cover with fresh water and then cook for 30 minutes. Pour off water again and put in fresh water and cook about one and one-half hours, or until beans are tender. Take about two cups of tomato pulp, one-half medium sized onion cut fine, a slice or two of green pepper cut fine, three large stalks of celery cut fine, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Cook together until vegetables are done. Add these to cooked soy beans, together with a large tablespoonful of molasses; add two slices of bacon on top if desired for flavor, then bake for one hour."

For those who bake bread and cake at home soya flour is economical and nutritious. One part of soy bean flour used with five parts of wheat flour seems to be the most satisfactory mixture for bread, although the proportions may be varied to suit the taste. It is extremely important that the soya flour be fresh, as it deteriorates rapidly in comparison with other flours, due to the high percentage of oil which it contains. Do not buy soy bean flour that smells or tastes the least bit rancid.

ADMINISTRATION OF ESTATE.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am alone in the world and have had bad luck with attorneys who manage to get an order from the judge for a fee and take advantage of a lone woman. 1. The last one got together with the six heirs [children of my husband's first marriage] and their attorneys and said in their petition that I gave them the right to act, and [2] the judge in Probate court signed an order by which they are to pay me in installments which will take five years if they pay at all. I lived with this second husband eight years. The money left stipulated that [3] immediately after his death I was to receive it in cash. He is now dead three years. If the property would go to sale there are plenty of buyers who would pay $50,000 cash. 4. They do not want to sell nor do they want to make a loan. 5. This order was signed without my being present. 6. Can they close this estate without satisfying my claim? 7. Have I a chance to reopen the case? E. G.

1. If you can satisfy the court that you did not acquiesce it seems probable that you would be permitted to nominate some other person to act as administrator, but it is not clear that the point is of real importance to you. We advise you to go over your facts in a personal interview with an attorney.

2. The propriety of the order would depend on facts that are not before us.

3. Since creditors are allowed a year in which to file their claims, the court would not require immediate payment of your full share, but the widow's award which by statute comes ahead of creditors might be paid at once.

4. Where owners of undivided interests in real estate cannot agree any one of them is entitled to force a division or a public sale by partition proceedings. The cost of such proceedings, including the complainant's solicitor's fees, are chargeable against the proceeds of sale.

5. It seems probable that you have been served with notice at some stage in the proceedings.

6. We cannot advise to advantage without having the facts more adequately before us.

7. Yes, if you can prove that your interests have been seriously prejudiced.

Chicago, Aug. 18.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. What is necessary for a person to sell or buy a home that has an HOLC loan on it? 2. Would a warranty deed subject to said HOLC loan made out by myself be sufficient? 3. Would the transfer have to be made out by HOLC or their consent obtained to said transfer? 4. Will the HOLC trade property with their mortgage on it for other property with their mortgage on it? C. W. R.

1. It is substantially the same as any other real estate purchase.

2. It would be sufficient to convey such title as your grantor has, but you should obtain other assurance that the title is good.

3. No.

4. It is nearly always advisable for a purchaser of real estate to employ an attorney throughout, and we advise you to employ one now. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

REPLY TO CORN WALLACE.

Chicago, Aug. 15.—The statement of Corn Wallace, secretary of agriculture, in which he alleges that the slaughter of little pigs and farrow sows has no bearing on the present price of pork and pork products is an insult to the intelligence of every citizen of the republic.

When the corn-hog program was initiated it was with the clear understanding, as ballyhooed by all the Raw Dealers from Franklin Delano Roosevelt on down, that the only way to raise the price of pork was to create a scarcity. Now that this scarcity has been created and prices have been raised to inordinate heights, Corn Wallace denies that his much advertised massacre program has anything to do with it. The packers and the drouth are all to blame. And we are expected to believe that.

The drouth had some slight bearing, of course. But any one but a brilliant brain truster knows that we have drouths in this country in varying cycles, and that it is wise to have some surplus on hand for such a contingency, just as an industry builds up its capital stock reserves. But the facts of the case are the drouth had very little to do with the present price of pork, unless all of the New Deal statements have been wrong from the very beginning. Corn Wallace now says that there would not have been enough feed in the country to have cared for the massacred sows and pigs. This will not stand the slightest bit of intelligent analysis.

When the corn-hog program was initiated the country was told repeatedly that there was an enormous surplus of corn, which in turn kept down the price of corn. Farmers were allowed to seal their corn in cribs and warehouses, and the government made them a loan considerably in excess of the then price of corn to keep this surplus off the market. To top that off the Raw Deal then proceeded to pay the farmers to reduce their corn acreage by one-quarter. If this reduction, which was in excess of the loss by drouth, had not been in effect, with the surplus stock on hand there would not only have been sufficient feed in the country but an actual excess.

Of course the processing tax, which is levied to pay the farmers for their massacred pigs and to sit on their porches and not raise pigs, has no bearing on present prices. Perhaps if the housewife who finds the sales tax of 3 per cent a burden realized that the processing tax adds at least five cents to every pound of bacon and probably six cents to each center slice of ham, and that this money goes to pay for raising less pork in order that she may pay still higher prices, both she and her family would think twice before reelecting a President and a congress who adopt the policy of "prosperity through scarcity." Or "the less you have and the more it costs you the better off you are."

The only thing consistent about the Raw Dealers is their inconsistency. I wonder how long the American people will continue to be fooled. Rhode Island answers, "not much longer."

BUT MANY DID CLOSE THEN.

Chicago, Aug. 19.—THE TRIBUNE'S cartoon of Aug. 19 should be disgusting to many thousands of people, as it was so unfair and, at least in one respect, so untrue. I, for one, know from personal, bitter experience that our nation's banks did not start closing after our presidential election in 1932. The great majority closed in 1930 and 1931. The one we deposited in closed in April, 1931.

In spite of the fact that this woman invaded the privacy of the occupants of the bathhouse she would not cease peeking when so requested by the beach head.

Will some one please explain to me what business this woman had peeking into a men's dressing room, and will they go still further and advise why the park board should pay any attention to a complaint made by a peeper?

NEW DEAL LAND POLICY PROVES UNJUST TO MANY

'Feudal Tenure' Hangs on Officials' Whims.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—The New Deal has revived feudal tenure in the operation of its land policy. This was revealed as amendments to the Taylor grazing act today were sent to the White House for President Roosevelt's signature following approval of conference reports in both the senate and the house.

The act as passed by the last congress threw all public lands into reserve, ending homesteading and prospecting. The amendments, while lifting in a measure the ban on homesteaders and prospectors, continue to give the administration the overlord control it won a year ago.

In the furtherance of its policy of paternalism the New Deal does not want freemen to homestead, but seeks to lease its land in order to dominate and run those on it. Every encouragement is offered under the act and its amendments to ranchers seeking grazing land for rental and rigid requirements are exacted of freemen desirous of obtaining a home.

Must Await Ickes' Favor.

Homesteaders must await classification of land by Secretary of the Interior Ickes and have it designated by him as agricultural land. Mr. Ickes indicated he will not readily throw open land to entry when he ordered a halt to all homesteading last November. Homesteads are limited to 320 acres.

The act and amendments have no acreage limitation on land rented for grazing. Preference is given to adjacent land owners, homesteaders, and lessors. There are almost no homesteaders in a financial position to acquire grazing land, according to members of congress from the west.

An owner or leaseholder is given permission to meet the bid of a distant competitor for no other reason than his proximity. This practice has discouraged opposition bidders and gives the favored, in most instances, the desired land at a smaller rental than the owner of a fee would have to pay in taxes. In other words, holders of leases, greatest beneficiaries of the law, have virtually a feudal tenure, subject only to the whim of the New Deal as overlord.

Tax Rolls Big Sufferers.

Under the general land policy the New Deal prefers to buy land and settle persons on it. This governmental interference with homesteading and orderly development of land has brought many areas into virtual bankruptcy. Tens of thousands of acres have been taken off the taxable rolls of many counties by government purchase in furtherance of subsistence homesteading, rural rehabilitation, migratory bird preserves, and other New Deal programs.

Counties in South Carolina have been hit by the migratory bird reservations. The city of Atlanta has protested against the serious curtailment of its revenue through PWA slum clearance projects.

Aug. 21, 1935.

THE new Herefords which have been brought to the Yorkville experimental farm of THE TRIBUNE are adding considerable "scenery" to the landscape these days. Lush pastures that a few weeks ago were unoccupied now are filled. In fact, I was thinking yesterday that the place is taking on something of the atmosphere of a stock farm with steers being pastured both north and south of the Fox river. Clarence Thurow, manager of the farm, has put 80 Herefords (yearlings) in the roomy pasture near the road which runs through the north half of the farm above the Fox river. The pasture is so good there that this bunch of western cattle will have a hard time mowing it down.

The old herd of 144 Herefords also is on the north side of the river, but in a separate pasture. They are in excellent condition now, many of the animals having filled out appreciably. As Clarence remarked yesterday, there are heavier cattle in that herd than the boys thought they had. The 42 head that have just checked in here on the farm are in a 40 acre field on the south side of the river where they can eat 24 hours a day if they want to and not make anybody feel badly, because there is plenty of food for them.

Silver Victor, the big Shorthorn bull, stands around in the pasture these days as if he were much abused and quite lonesome. If you want to see this good looking white bull you have to go down in the woodland pasture to find him because he has been separated from his old pals, the black Angus cattle, and put in a pasture with just one steer for company. This little steer is a sort of orphan specimen here on the farm. Right now he has the assignment of sticking around with Silver Victor. The two of them are roaming around in the pasture not far from the bank of the river where the grass is knee high.

A regular old fashioned harvest is under way at the farm this week. A steam engine that pours out black smoke and has one of those high pitched, calliope type whistles [the kind I liked to blow when I was a boy and spent my summers on a farm]; extra helpers to bring in the shocks and lend a hand on the threshing; big midday dinners for the threshing crew which will number 20 in all; lots of excitement, hard work and fun among the gang—these are some of the features of the harvest here on the Yorkville farm which will take care of the oat crop. The women have been getting ready for this event for several days, figuring out their menus and stocking up with enough food for a wholesale house.

On the Wheaton farm it looks as though the brood of ring neck pheasants that was hatched under a bantam hen would soon be saying good-by to everybody. The birds are growing fast, are feathering out satisfactorily, and already can fly pretty well. They have the run of the orchard, returning every evening to spend the night with their bantam "mother." But it won't be long until they wander away to be on their own.

NAME FINALISTS IN CONTEST FOR 'NEATEST FARM'

Six dairy farms were named yesterday as district winners in the Pure Milk association's annual "Neatest Farm" contest. The grand winner will be named Saturday, judges announced. District winners were John Cooper Jr., Orland Park; Mrs. John Whitlock, Minooka, M. P. Lies, Naperville; George Olendorf, Crete; A. L. Sommers, Wanatah, Ind., and W. J. Johnson, Beloit, Wis.

Dean Chris L. Christensen of the University of Wisconsin, Dr. H. W. Gregory of Purdue university, and Dr. H. A. Ruehe, University of Illinois, will be the judges of the final contest.

Nearly 200 dairy farms competed.

SEES TIME WHEN LOWLY SPUD WILL BE BOOTLEG CROP

Bootlegging potatoes seems destined to become a profitable side line for farmers when the Agricultural Adjustment administration's new potato control act becomes effective, according to Stanley F. Morse, executive vice president of the Famers' Independent council, which has headquarters here.

Mr. Morse yesterday denied the public assertion made by H. B. Tabb, executive secretary of the National Potato association, that the potato control amendment to the AAA act will not subject potato producers to compulsory control and that it will protect consumers.

"This measure proposes to control potato production by assigning a quota to each commercial grower specifying how many bushels of potatoes he may sell tax free," said Mr. Morse. "On all the potatoes he sells in excess of his quota he will have to pay a tax of 75 cents a hundred pounds.

"Thus, if the farm price of potatoes should be 60 cents a bushel, or 1 cent a pound, the tax would be 75 per cent. This would result in limiting production."

Mr. Morse finds it difficult to understand how this law would protect the consumers' interest, as the main object is to increase the price of potatoes.

MOTHER SLAIN BY DAD, CHILD TELLS A JURY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A 14 year old schoolgirl, Eleanor Kowalski, oldest of seven children, today told a jury of the quarrel in the dark of night which ended in her mother's death, the blows struck, the aid she gave in helping her dying mother back to bed, and of her insistence on calling for help when she said she knew her mother no longer lived.

She testified in the trial of her father, Casimir Kowalski, 34, truck driver, charged with causing the death of his wife Mary by beating her early on the morning of Aug. 11.

The child was on the witness stand when court adjourned tonight. She was being cross-examined by Defense Counsel Cornelius Hanley and will return to the stand in the morning.

A jury of five women and seven men were selected with few objections when the trial opened today. The courtroom was filled with an audience of women. Kowalski has contended that his wife's injuries were caused by a fall when he was trying to persuade her to return to bed. A second child, Margaret, 11, also has been called as a state witness.

SURVEY SHOWS ILLINOIS LAGS IN HIGHWAY PLANS

Lincoln Route Is Archaic; Indiana Leads Way.

BY HAL FOUST.

A survey discloses that Lincoln highway across northern Illinois has become archaic in alignment and rapidly is disintegrating while still only half paid for. The slab was laid about fifteen years ago with money from bonds to be retired in thirty years by revenue from automobile license fees.

State Highway Engineer Lieberman, in listing $42,000,000 worth of modernization work needed on 1,013 miles of Illinois' main trafic carriers, has included 95 miles of construction on U. S. 30, the Lincoln highway, estimated to cost $3,585,000. The distance over this route from Indiana to Iowa is 169 miles, little of it in satisfactory condition.

The Illinois plans call for little widening. However, scheduled for construction this year is a thirty-six foot slab on the four and a half miles from Batavia to Aurora. Most of the other work is not definitly scheduled for any year, despite the excessive cost of maintaining the broken slabs under heavy trafic, the economic loss from the excessive mileage in the tortuous alignment, and the hazard of many sharp curves.

Work Centers Near Geneva.

Forty-five miles of the proposed reconstruction is on Roosevelt road west from Geneva while the other fifty miles is on Illinois 22 in the Fox river valley south of Geneva to Aurora and thence swinging eastward through Joliet to the Indiana line at Dyer.

The Illinois proposal, even if executed in full, is as patchwork when compared with plans under way for the Lincoln highway in Indiana. The Hoosier pavement is much like that in Illinois, antequated in alignment, wavy and cracked, mainly from heavy truck and bus usage.

Indiana has projected a 200 foot right of way for the Lincoln highway across the entire state. Two strips of pavement each twenty-two feet wide are to be built, separated by fifty feet of landscaped parkway. Bids are being received for grading and for bridge structures on the first unit of thirteen miles.

The first unit will extend eastward from the U. S. 41 intersection in Schererville, three miles from the Illinois line. It will be over a new location and will connect with the old pavement south of Deep river, a village seven miles west of Valparaiso. Paving is scheduled for 1936.

New Work Will Span State.

A similar right of way for the same design roadway is to be acquired for the entire 120 miles from Ohio to Illinois. James Adams, chairman of the Indiana highway commission, pointed out that this design will eliminate head-on collisions, reduce the number of side-swipe accidents, and remove the strain and danger from glaring headlights.

Where the present alignment is satisfactory, the Hoosiers propose to lay their new slabs on each side of the old pavement without disrupting trafic. Then the old pavement can be torn out for landscaping.

In tearing out their old pavement, the Indiana engineers will not be destroying an arterial still unpaid for. Indiana paid for its pavements as they were built rather than issuing bonds as did Illinois.

The Illinois slab has lived a useful life, bearing heavy freight and passenger trafic. A mistake was in its financing, and in estimating its life at thirty years. Under one version of the highly controversial problem, Illinois passenger car owners would not be burdened with taxes for another fifteen years for worn out or abandoned pavements had trucks and buses been compelled to pay for the damage they caused to the road.

F. D. SILBER DIES AT 62; INSURANCE BUREAU COUNSEL

Frederick D. Silber, 62 years old, Chicago insurance attorney, died of heart disease yesterday morning at Ogunquit, Me., where he and Mrs. Silber were spending the summer. Mr. Silber was the senior partner in the law firm of Silber, Isaacs, Clausen & Woley. His Chicago residence was the Belden-Stratford hotel. For many years he served as general counsel of the Western Insurance bureau. For the last two years he had been a member of the board of managers of the Chicago Bar association. He was graduated from the University of Wisconsin in 1894 with a degree in electrical engineering, later taking up the study of law in the office of Moses, Pam & Kennedy.

He is survived by his widow, Beatrice C. Silber, and by four children.

Banker Friend of Mellon Leaves Estate of $5,461,000

Pittsburgh, Pa., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Henry Clay McEldowney, close friend of Andrew W. Mellon and highest salaried banker in the United States in 1934, left an estate valued at $5,461,000, according to an inventory filed today with the register of wills. McEldowney died last March 9 without leaving a will. He had headed the $300,000,000 Union Trust company since Mellon recommended him to the position 35 years before when he was a 30 year old assistant cashier of another bank. The government reported McEldowney drew $180,000 salary last year.

Funeral services for Joseph B. Galli, 64 years old, president of the Peanut Specialty company, 400 West Superior street, will be held Saturday from his home at 5329 Lakewood avenue, with mass at the Church of the Assumption. Mr. Galli, a pioneer manufacturer of candies and candy bars, died Monday at his summer home in Eagle River, Wis. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Adelide Galli.

MRS. ANNA DORGARING, 73 years old, a survivor of the Chicago fire of 1871, died at the Old People's home, 4724 Vincennes avenue, of a heart attack yesterday afternoon. She became a resident of the home nine months ago.

GEORGE LOCKIE, 73 years old, 103 Forest avenue, Riverside, a resident of the suburb for 40 years, died yesterday in the West Suburban hospital, Oak Park. Three sons and a daughter survive.

MRS. THOMAS G. ENGLISH'S RITES WILL BE TODAY

Funeral services for Mrs. Thomas G. English, prominent for many years in Catholic women's clubs of the city, will be held this morning from her home, 1348 Hood avenue, to St. Gertrude's church. Burial will be in Calvary cemetery.

MRS. THOMAS ENGLISH.

Mrs. English died Monday in her home. She was born in Chicago 70 years ago. She was a charter member of the Catholic Women's League of Chicago, in which she held many offices. With a small group of women, Mrs. English organized three activities of the club: St. Elizabeth's Day nursery, St. Elizabeth's Business Women's club, and St. Juliana's Day nursery.

Mrs. English was also a charter member of the Children's Benefit league, serving as its president in 1933. She was a charter member of the Lake Shore Women's club. Her other club duties included membership in the Edgewater Catholic Women's club, Buena Park Catholic Women's club, and the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters.

Surviving are two sisters, Mrs. William O'Connell, Mrs. William J. Dunn, and two brothers, John and William.

BRANDON $68,000 WILL GIVES $5,000 TO AID STUDENTS

The will of Mrs. Luella Jenkins Brandon of Flossmoor, disposing of an estate valued at $68,000, was admitted to probate yesterday. Mrs. Brandon, who died on July 6, bequeathed $5,000 to the University of Michigan as a fund "for the comfort and convenience of students as the directors may decide." One third of the residuary estate was left to a niece, Barbara Burrill Jenkins of Madison, Wis., and the remainder was distributed among other relatives.

In an ancillary proceeding the will of Mrs. Mae R. Whiting of Neenah, Wis., and Miami Beach, Fla., was probated yesterday. It disposes of a $250,000 estate. Chief beneficiaries are William Wilkinson, 20 years old, 605 Park boulevard, Glen Ellyn, a nephew, and his sister, Betty Jane, who share equally in a $100,000 trust. The rest of the estate is left to a score of relatives, friends and domestics. Mrs. Whiting, a widow, 65 year old, died on July 25 in the Mayo hospital at Rochester, Minn.

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—J. Edward Krauser, 69, for many years one of Indianapolis' leading hotel operators, is dead at St. Cloud, Fla.

News of the Radio Stations

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Memorial services for Will Rogers in Hollywood bowl this afternoon are to be broadcast exclusively locally by W-G-N from 5 to 6 o'clock. The Tribune station will make its report of the ceremonies available to members of the Mutual Broadcasting system. Rosalind Shaffer, THE TRIBUNE'S motion picture correspondent in Hollywood, will be heard during the broadcast, which is being made with the cooperation of KNX at Hollywood.

Mrs. Shaffer will comment on the scene and tell about motion picture stars and other notables attending the services. All Hollywood studios will be closed throughout the day, and it is expected that many film folk will participate in the memorial program. A crowd of 20,000 is expected at the bowl.

The Singing Lady broadcast at 5:30 will be canceled for today, and Little Orphan Annie will be heard at 6:45 for tonight only.

Paderewski, world famous pianist, will play his first radio concert on Saturday, Oct. 12. The noted Pole will pay tribute to a fellow countryman by playing an all-Chopin program. Paderewski will be seated at the piano in the living room of his villa, Riod Bosson, Morges, Switzerland. The concert will run from 9:30 to 11 a. m., and will be relayed to America by NBC. Thus Fritz Kreisler and Rachmaninoff soon will remain the two major artistic holdouts against radio.

A note from Mrs. Howard Shaw, mother-in-law of John T. McCutcheon, reveals that the cartoonist's two younger sons, Shaw, 13, and Barr, 7, both heard their father's broadcast from Rio the other evening. Shaw tuned in over a battery operated set on a Wyoming ranch. The youngest, at home with his grandmother, was awakened a few minutes before the broadcast and was quite elated to hear his father. Rona, the family Schnauzer, rose from her sleep, sat up with ears erect, and at the close of the talk rushed about the house searching for her master.

When Eddie Cantor returns to CBS on Sunday, Oct. 6, from Los Angeles, Jimmy Wallington will be with him. Wallington is leaving NBC to renew his association with Cantor. They had worked together on NBC for four years. When Cantor's sponsor took him to CBS last spring Ted Husing was assigned as Cantor's stooge. But the arrangement did not suit Cantor. Wallington will continue with Maj. Bowes' show and others on NBC until he leaves for the west coast to join Eddie.

Al Brown, who played the lead in the juvenile show, "Og, Son of Fire," last year, is appearing at the Lake Zurich summer theater. He's in "Ten Nights in a Bar Room" currently. "Og" will be back on CBS Sept. 30.

George Howard Darr, 48, of South Bend, Ind., Is Dead

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—George Howard Darr, 48, died today of heart disease. He had been employed at the Studebaker plant for seven years and previously had been widely known as a pharmacist.

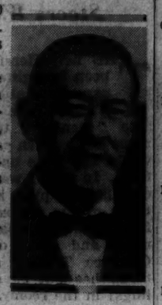
G. W. ZEIGER, 88, DEAD; A PIONEER IN BUSINESS HERE

Gebhardt W. Zeiger, a resident of Chicago since before the fire of 1871, died yesterday in his home at 819 Lafayette street. He was 88 years old.



G. W. ZEIGER.

In 1865 he came to America with his parents, settling in Elmore, O. Later the family moved to Chicago. With his father, Mr. Zeiger established a delicatessen four months before the great fire in which the store was burned down.

Mr. Zeiger then entered the printing business, but 1876 after his marriage to Clara Woelffer, he joined her father, Charles Woelffer, in the Woelffer pork packing plant, which had been established in 1858. Upon the retirement of Mr. Woelffer, the business was incorporated as the G. W. Zeiger company.

Mr. Zeiger was a member of the Masonic order for 65 years. Surviving are two daughters, Elfried, and Mrs. P. W. Seyl, of Gary, Ind.

RITES TODAY FOR OTTO L. SCHMIDT; PLAN TRIBUTES

In respect to Dr. Otto L. Schmidt, its late trustee, benefactor, and former president, the Chicago Historical society will remain closed this afternoon during the period of his funeral service. Dr. Schmidt died Tuesday at the age of 72.

The funeral services will be held at the home at 1547 North Dearborn parkway, with the Rev. Dr. Paul Burrill Jenkins of Williams Bay, Wis., officiating. Dr. Schmidt, a physician, educator, historian, and yachtsman, whose name has been associated with scores of civic enterprises throughout his lifetime, died at his home following a long illness.

In announcing the closing of the historical society Charles B. Pike, the society president, yesterday paid tribute to the work of Dr. Schmidt, who had been a member of the organization since 1894, a director for 36 years, and president from 1923 to 1927.

P. M. RIESTERER, FIRST NAT'L BANK OFFICIAL, DEAD

Funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the Gary Memorial church in Wheaton for Philip Martin Riesterer, 60 years old, assistant vice president of the First National bank of Chicago, who died Tuesday in the Presbyterian hospital after an operation.

Mr. Riesterer lived at 1028 North Wheaton avenue, Wheaton. He was born in Sandusky, O. He had been connected with the First National bank for more than 42 years. He is survived by his widow, Janet; two daughters, Mrs. W. B. Heintz, 656 Forest avenue, Glen Ellyn, and Virginia of Wheaton, and a sister, Mrs. Belle V. Newhall, 3717 North Kildare avenue, Chicago.

HILMA SWAN, 86, MOTHER OF TWO MINISTERS, DIES

Mrs. Hilma Swan, 86 years old, died in her home at 5014 North Ashland avenue yesterday as the result of injury incurred when she fell and fractured her hip in her bedroom on July 24. Mrs. Swan was the widow of Oscar J. Swan, pastor of the Methodist Swedish Episcopal church at Scandia, Kas., who died thirteen years ago. Surviving are six daughters, three sons, forty-two grandchildren and ten great-grandchildren.

Two sons, the Rev. Henry M. and the Rev. Eric R. Swan., are Methodist Episcopal ministers, the former in Calcutta, India, and the latter at Des Moines, Ia. Miss Hilda Swan, a daughter, was for twenty years a missionary in India but returned recently to live with her mother.

Aids Dunham Woods Show

Miss Anne Bryant, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Jay Bryant of Wheaton, will return from Harbor Point, Mich., with her mother in time to assist with the Dunham Woods Riding club horse show, which will be held in Wayne on Sept. 8. Mr. Bryant, who just returned from the Point, will join his wife and daughter over Labor day week-end.

Supper-Dance to Mark Debut of Joan Smith

BY JUDITH CASS.

THAT Dec. 21 will be one of the most festive days of the Christmas season for the debutantes and their beaux is assured this morning with the news that Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Smith will present their youngest daughter, Joan, that evening at a supper-dance at the Blackstone hotel.

Previously Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan decided on Dec. 21 as the date for the Casino dinner-dance they will give for their debutante daughter, Nancy. And that afternoon there will be two interesting receptions, one for Miss Eleonore Thompson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Thompson Jr., and the other for Miss Valeria Harris, the Hayden B. Harris' daughter.

The plans for Miss Smith's debut have been completed by her mother at Charlevoix after a long and frequent correspondence with her daughter, who is in Colorado Springs. Soon after Miss Smith comes home from the west she will be packing her trunk to return to Vassar for her sophomore year. Before entering Vassar she was graduated from Dobbs Ferry.

Another of the Smiths' daughters, Elizabeth, is having a grand vacation on the Douglas Stuarts' ranch, which is in the Rocky mountain country. Still a third daughter, Anne, became the bride of Morrison Waud in a fashionable wedding last spring. The Wauds are spending the summer in the Lake Forest home of Mrs. Waud's parents.

Miss Babbs Burton to Bow Sept. 12.

The Oliver Milton Burtons, who are living in Mrs. Frank J. Bersbach's house on Indian Hill road, Winnetka, this summer, have planned to introduce their daughter, Miss Babbs Anne Burton, at a dinner-dance at the Indian Hill club Thursday night, Sept. 12.

Miss Burton, who is spending the summer in Winnetka, has been attending the Country Day school in Warrenton, Va., for the last two years, and before that she attended the Latin School for Girls in town. Mr. and Mrs. Burton are planning to give a tea later in their town residence on Lake Shore drive at which the debutante will meet their friends because the party in September will be for the young people.

Sept. 12 will be another busy day for the debutantes, for Mrs. William Ogden Green and her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter, will entertain at luncheon for Miss Mary Jean Bartelme, debutante niece of Mrs. Dorothy Bartelme, that noon, and Mr. and Mrs. James S. Kemper will introduce their daughter at a reception with dancing in the afternoon.

Charlevoix Is Gay as Season Nears End.

The Charlevoix summer colony is paying the proper farewell to the vacation season with the gayest two weeks of the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Jaeger Jr. are there as the house guests of Mrs. Jaeger's mother, Mrs. G. B. Douglas. Mrs. Douglas also has as guests her other daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Gail I. Burck of Pasadena, Cal., and Mrs. Charles Pynchon, and Anne and Ralph Ellis of Washington, D. C.

The Howard Linns went up to Charlevoix last week-end and now are pleasantly settled for the remainder of August and at least the beginning of September. The junior Wil-

STARNBERGER SEE, Bavaria.—Here at this lovely German lake we get our first distant view of the Alps. They rise, dim serried peaks, beyond the glittering blue water, above the tops of the green woodland. Across the lake from the terrace where we eat Sunday luncheon the Burg, a castle where Ludwig II. spent much of his time, is visible. We also can see the tops of the trees on the little Rosen Insul [Rose Island], where Ludwig and his Wittelsbach cousin Elizabeth, empress of Austria, used to meet and exchange confidences. Her family lived at Possenhofen, a castle across the lake from the Burg.

It was at Burg that Ludwig, his eccentricities and extravagances having given a long-suffering nation proof of his madness, was finally shut up. And it was in the Starnberger See the next day at evening that the body of the king and the keeper were taken from the water. A tablet marks the spot.

After luncheon we walked down to the shores of the lake through the charming woods that lie along the edge. The little isle of roses, where there are said to be many thousand rose trees, was very close. Ludwig used to sail over in his steam yacht Tristan, pick up Elizabeth, and take her to the isle of roses. . . . Now there was a sail boat on the lake and two youths in canoes. There were yellow water lilies along the shore, and on the bank a German boy and girl eating käse-brot for a picnic luncheon.

We walked back the woodland path to the Hotel Kaiserin Elizabeth, and then it was that the real memory of that visit occurred. There was a sharp rustle in the underbrush not more than twenty paces away and a deer sprang across the path. Its color was soft beige against the green; its leap was a perfect arc; its grace and swiftness were thrilling to see.

IN the garden a little American girl with flying blonde hair was dawdling with a stuffed dog. She was very communicative. It was her first trip abroad, although her parents had been often. They weren't as rich as they used to be. Their apartment in New York was very large and lovely, but she heard her father say they probably would have to give it up. It had lovely furniture and it was to be hers some day. The dining room table was very fine. She was scolded for kicking it up. Her mother had said she would be sorry when she was grown up that she ruined it. Her favorite room was the library, where there were red lether chairs and a red silk chair.

Her mother had lived in Texas. She went back there every winter. She just loved Texas. Her mother's brother was an aviator. He had been down in a submarine, too. Her father worked very hard and had had to take a rest. He was on the stock exchange. She liked the boat they had crossed on. It was as big as the Empire State building—nearly. She was going up to the Empire State building next year. It was a very tall building, taller than any over here.

New York had a great many tall buildings. A subway, too. She liked the subway because you could ride in it. There was a baby in this hotel. A Rockefeller baby. . . . She prattled on, not stopping once in her flow of talk. Then suddenly she said she guessed she'd have to go now and disappeared down the garden, a slim child, in a pink frock, with flying hair.

Short Skirts Bring Era of Dark Hosiery

New Shades Help You Keep Ankles Trim.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

With skirts reaching new high records, lots of them a good fourteen inches off the floor, hosiery assumes a startling new importance. To maintain your well earned reputation of sleek, trim ankles, and well shod feet, you'll buy all the fascinating dark shades.

One shop is all steamed up over a stunning dark green shade called "oriental." It goes with dark green suedes, with swanky dark green alligator oxfords and even though you hardly dare believe it, it's a shade that is perfect with black shoes, too.

And here's good news for the black collectors, a one thread black stocking that is just about the last gasp in sheer flattery for any pair of ankles. If you want to wear black and really create a sensation buy and wear these filmy beauties of inky black, to wear with smart sophisticated afternoon clothes and the new fall velvet gowns.

Another find, a shade called russet. It has a reddish cast that accents red as well as brown footgear. Still another favorite that seemingly never loses its smartness is the obliging Peter Pan tone, a shade that goes with every dress and outfit you own. But Peter Pan, like every other hosiery shade you'll see and wear this fall, comes in dark shades.

A grand red color is called mahogany. It is perfect with wine reds and shades of navy provide some of the outstanding colors to wear with gray. Dark green shades can be worn with dark green pumps and matching bag and even gloves.

The thing to remember is choose all your hosiery much darker than you have been wearing, for then no matter how short your skirts, your ankles will still appear properly slim and trim.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Healthy hair like this is beautiful, too—and brushing with a good brush makes it so.

Now is the time for all good women who've been sunning themselves to wield a hairbrush. If you just want to let things slide and then spend money this fall for reconditioning treatments, it's all right with us; but if you want to take a stitch in time, as it were, you'll get next to a good hairbrush immediately—and you won't just let it decorate your dressing table either. You'll use it, and with a vengeance.

Healthy, lustrous hair will be the fruits of religious brushing. Dandrug, dryness—all ills will disappear if you really put your mind and your elbow to the business.

First thing to do is to have a good brush—not one of those sissy, dressy affairs that looks good with your bedroom color scheme but isn't worth a whoop when it comes to polishing the hair strands and stimulating the scalp. Buy one for business, not for beauty. You can spend a lot of money or a little, as you like.

If you want to get a whole lot of value for a little bit of money, get next to one of the best brushes for the price on the market. It's strictly utilitarian — light weight and light colored wood, with a narrow back that permits the brush to be placed on its side and rolled all over the scalp and out to the end of the hair as you wield it with a vibratory motion. It has uneven, wave-like stiff bristles sufficiently widely placed to permit thorough penetration to the scalp. Properly used this brush gives the scalp a good workout and actually polishes the strands until they glisten.

We recently conducted a remarkable experiment in hair reconditioning using this inexpensive brush. The results were amazing. A dry, dull mop of hair that had been sunburned and badly permanent waved was transformed into a beautiful, gleaming crowning glory.

It's easy to keep this brush clean, too—another point in its favor.

Grabel Leads Concert Band in Novelties

"Jugo-Slavian" Overture Striking Work.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Victor J. Grabel, who was the general musical director of the Chicagoland Music Festival on Saturday night conducted his own concert band in the Grant park band shell last night. Ever on the search for new band music, Mr. Grabel presented several novelties. Among them was the Jugo-Slavian overture by Frank Vognar, a flutist in the band, who was called out of the ranks to bow to the audience at the end of the work.

One infers that it is founded upon music native to the country which it celebrates. At least it presents a succession of melodies and rhythms that sound as though they came out of the soil, striking and attractive in spite of their unfamiliarity.

Leo Sowerby's American Rhapsody, postponed from a former concert by this band, presents a different case. Here the composer seems not to have followed the easiest way of picking up American tunes, but to have written his own while striving to keep them in the character of the goal at which he was aiming. It was an admirable ambition, and Mr. Sowerby accomplished his task with rather extraordinary skill. Incidentally both he and Mr. Vognar are expert in the art of scoring for the band.

So with these pieces and others, two sections from a suite out of Richard Strauss' "Der Rosenkavalier," the polka from "The Bartered Bride," and similar works, Mr. Grabel put on a program of unusual character.

Of the announced three soloists, two were heard. Milo Luka, a baritone gifted with a fine natural voice, sang the prologue from "Pagliacci" to great applause, and the song, "Elli, Elli," to greater. Belle Forbes Cutter, whose soprano voice never fails to charm, sang the "Voi lo sapete" aria from "Cavalleria Rusticana" and was called back by unanimous consent to sing "A Little Gray Home in the West."

The Chicago Opera orchestra will play tonight under the direction of Joseph Raffaelli. The soloists will be Hilda Ohlin, soprano; Ada Paggi, mezzo-soprano, and John Panegasser, tenor. The program:

1. March, "Queen of Sheba".....Goldmark
2. [a] "Brindisi" from "Cavalleria Rusticana".....Mascagni
   [b] "Di Quella Pira" from "Il Trovatore".....Verdi
   Mr. Panegasser
3. "Pace" from "Force of Destiny".Verdi
   Miss Ohlin
4. Suite, opus 42.....MacDowell
5. Prelude to Act I., "Lohengrin"..Wagner
6. Introduction to 1st act and entré Act III. from "Carmen".....Bizet
7. Largo from "New World Symphony".....Dvorak
8. Overture, "Sicilian Vespers".....Verdi
9. Overture, "Ruy Blas".....Mendelssohn
10. "Voce di Donna" from "La Gioconda".....Ponchielli
    Miss Paggi.
11. Intermezzo, Act II., "Jewel of the Madonna".....Wolf-Ferrari
12. Duet, 2d act from "Aida".....Verdi
    Misses Ohlin and Paggi

Good Morning!

How do you take your melodrama? Lusty? Redolent of romance? Spiked with humor and excitement? Garnished with suspense?

Oke! The very thing you're looking for is over at the United Artists, Alannas!

"China Seas," forerunner of the new fall output of photoplays, makes one contemplate the coming season with happy anticipation. Because—if it's a sample of what we're to expect, why, we're in for a run of worth while cinemas.

The action of this movie occurs on a ship plying between Hongkong and Singapore. Clark Gable is the English captain of the boat. Jean Harlow is the Sadie Thompson he's loved and lived with for six years. Rosalind Russell is a clean cut English girl he'd loved and lost to another man in days of yore. Wallace Beery is a pirateer in disguise who is nuts about Jean. Louis Stone is—hard to believe it!—a cowardly officer. . . . I hasten to say he makes reparation.

The voyage with which the film is concerned is a tempestuous one in every conceivable way. A typhoon—of the sea—and several sorts of emotional typhoons sweep the vessel. Pirates raid, and from start to finish suspense is kept running high, wide, and handsome by a director who knew how to get the best from his expert cast and good scenario.

Clark Gable, sans makeup, is convincing and likable. Miss Harlow gives her finest performance in months—one remindful of that in "Bombshell." Miss Russell is charming as the clean cut English widow. Beery is IM-mense as the raider.

As for Robert Benchley — ah, THERE is a comedian! During the entire trip he is seen in a state of befogged and hilarious inebriation, and everything he does and everything he says is funny as the dickens.

"Don't look now," he whispers confidingly to a s...tled fellow passenger, "but I think I have butterflies in my stomach." [It may not look funny in print—but wait till you see the picture!] The dialog throughout is just one more reason why you should take in "China Seas" at the very first opportunity.

And I guess that's saying just about all that needs to be said, isn't it?

Loretta Young Is Ill on Her Return from Europe

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Suffering from a nervous disorder, Loretta Young, blonde movie actress, has been confined to her home, Dr. Walter M. Holleran said today. The actress returned Tuesday from a vacation in Europe, and was ill when she arrived, he said.

WEDDINGS

At 6 o'clock this evening in the gardens of her mother's Highland Park home Miss Marjorie Mae Spiegel, daughter of Mrs. Arthur H. Spiegel, will become the bride of Richard W. Dammann, son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Dammann of Bedford Hills, N. Y. A supper at home will follow the ceremony.

The bride's brother, Arthur, will give her in marriage, and two bridesmaids, Miss Janet Welt of Detroit and Miss Margaret Dammann, the bridegroom's sister, will precede her to the altar. Mr. Dammann Sr. will serve his son as best man. Following a wedding trip to Bermuda Mr. Dammann and his bride will make their home in New York.

Mrs. George William Hill of Dundee announces the marriage of her daughter, Helen Margaret, to Wilbur S. Grant of Boone, Ia. The ceremony took place on Aug. 18 in the garden of the home of the bride's parents. Mr. and Mrs. Grant will make their home in Boone.

Dodge Heiress Wed Third Time; No Honeymoon?

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—The third wedding of Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell Baker, 36, heiress to the Dodge motor millions, got off to a strange start today. The snag was, of all things, the honeymoon.

Timothy M. Godde, New York expatriate, the bashful bridegroom, said he was leaving immediately for the continent—alone. Horace E. Dodge, the bride's brother, said that was poppycock—that Godde was scared of crowds and afraid of getting rice in his shoes.

The ceremony was in the quietude of the local registry office at Bracknell, Berkshire. Its simplicity was in sharp contrast to the 1920 wedding of the beauty to James H. R. Cromwell, now the husband of Doris Duke, in Detroit. It was far simpler, too, than her marriage to the late Raymond T. Baker, former director of the United States mint.

The wedding party drove to Bracknell from Dodge's palatial estate, St. Leonard's castle at Windsor, returning for a small reception afterward.

"I am not taking a honeymoon yet," said Godde. "I am compelled to leave alone for the continent immediately for important interviews with bankers. I will be away about a fortnight. When I return, we will fix up the details of the honeymoon."

Godde is London representative of American companies as an import agent.

Rockford College Adds 5 Members to School Faculty

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Miss Virginia Grant of Highland Park, a Rockford college graduate, will return to the college this fall as freshman counsellor and assistant in dramatics.

Four other new faculty members will be added. Miss Erma Gebhardt, who has been engaged in research work at Harvard and Columbia universities, will be assistant in the English department. Miss Sarah L. Staples, for 13 years head of Woodbridge and Bridgman resident houses at Mount Holyoke college, will be resident nurse here. Dr. Charles D. Goff, Rockford pastor, will be lecturer in religion. Dr. Dorothy Richardson, formerly of the Mount Holyoke college faculty, will become associate professor of zoölogy.

Hays Bans "Maedchen in Uniform" in English

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Circulation of the English dialog version of "Maedchen in Uniform" in American theaters was banned today in an order issued by the office of Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America. The order said the version was in violation of the administration code and "unacceptable in theaters before mixed audiences." The picture previously had been shown with German dialog.

The Husband Snatcher

By Elizabeth York Miller.

SYNOPSIS.

After two years of marriage, Nancy and Dick Heritage are still greatly in love. Though Nancy is hated by Edith Heritage, her mother-in-law she has come to live with them in their little house in Primrose Dene, near London. There is a gap of four years in Nancy's life which she had not satisfactorily accounted for. Nancy is informed by Mr. Sam Digger, attorney, that she has been bequeathed £5,000 by Miss Agnes Satchell, late governor of a girls' reformatory, where Nancy had been committed for four years. Nancy had been employed by a Mrs. Lane and was accused of theft. Sylvia, Mrs. Lane's daughter, was the real culprit. Sylvia threatened to kill herself if Nancy exposed her. Nancy foolishly took the blame, though she possessed a signed confession from Sylvia. Miss Satchell believed in Nancy's innocence. Nancy learns that her sole remaining relative, an aunt, has been killed in China. Dick and his mother are displeased when they learn that Nancy is expecting a baby. Edith Heritage invites a friend, Mrs. Lane, and her daughter, Sylvia, for tea. Nancy pleads a dentist's appointment. The Lanes arrive just as Dick comes home. They are startled when they see Nancy's photograph, but Sylvia, who is interested in Dick, explains that Nancy had lived with them and they'd had a misunderstanding, but bygones were bygones. Nancy returns home after the Lanes had left. That evening Dick disappears. He returns later intoxicated. A taxi driver calls the next morning to collect fare for two girls and two men. That evening Sylvia Lane calls Dick at the architect's office where he is employed, asks him to plan a house for her, and boldly invites herself to his home for dinner. Sylvia assures Nancy that her secret of the reformatory is safe. She asks Nancy for the written confession, but Nancy tells her she had torn it up. Sylvia's new home is started and Dick spends most of his time with her. Dick gets a message from Mr. Digger asking Nancy to call at his office.

INSTALMENT XXII.

HER DESPERATE HOPE.

It was all wrong and it hurt like blazes, but subtly Sylvia had managed from the beginning to get the upper hand of Nancy. They shared a secret that Dick must never discover. When one came to consider it in its true proportions, it was just as much in Sylvia's interest to keep it dark as in Nancy's. Sylvia was the thief, and Nancy had paid the penalty.

"It might be a good idea," said Edith Heritage, "for us to have lunch in town and call upon the solicitor afterwards. I wouldn't count upon Dick's getting back in time, if I were you. Remember what happened yesterday. When he and Sylvia put their heads together over that precious house of hers they seem to forget that time exists."

"It does seem to absorb them," Nancy said in a strangled voice.

She followed her mother-in-law into the house wondering what excuse she could make about going to those offices in Gray's Inn, or if she could screw up sufficient courage to dispense with excuses and stand on her right to go alone.

For some time she had forseen the possibility of having to tell Dick about the lost four years, but she had hoped desperately to be able to postpone doing so until after the baby's arrival. In spite of everything—which meant the secret antagonism of her mother-in-law and the open intention of Sylvia to steal Dick's love from her—Nancy pinned her desperate hope on the baby.

When it came everything would be different, and one must manage to hold out somehow. Nancy dared not allow herself to believe that the baby would not prove to be a champion little peacemaker.

But this business of the odious Mr. Digger's ringing up and wanting to see her looked like rushing the issue. To mention Miss Satchell's name in connection with a legacy of £5,000 meant that Edith, at least—and perhaps Dick—would want to know considerably more about Miss Satchell. One would have to admit something which had never been mentioned before, namely, that Miss Satchell had been the lady governor of a reformatory. After that had been admitted, Dick's mother could be trusted to unearth the rest of it.

"How soon do you think you will be ready?" asked Edith.

"I'm ready now," Nancy replied. "All but my hat and handbag."

"I'm afraid, dear, it will take me half an hour to make myself presentable."

"Mother—it's awfully kind of you, but I'd rather you didn't come."

Edith stared at her with growing suspicion.

"I had an idea you were going to say that," she remarked. "And you didn't want Dick to go with you, either. Otherwise, I think your jealousy would have got the better of you just now when dear Sylvia appropriated him in the way she did."

So Edith had seen through her, and had seen, too, that Dick and Sylvia were consolidating what appeared to be a closer friendship than their merely business relations waranted.

Nancy's breast heaved, and she repressed with difficulty an almost overwhelming desire to burst into tears.

"Mother, I—I believe you'd be glad if Dick stopped . . . caring for me."

"Really," Edith looked indignant and offended. "Such a remark coming from you about your own husband astonishes me. What could have put such an idea into your head?"

"I don't quite know," Nancy said with a wretched little laugh. "Please forgive me if——"

"All the same, Nancy, it must have occurred to you now and again—from observation of other people's lives if from nothing else—that the woman a man marries, particularly if she is older than he and he marries when he is too young to know his own mind, is not always the woman he finds he really loves. When that happens, it must be a terrible tragedy to him."

"What can you mean!" Nancy said in a frightened whisper.

Her eyes dilated; her lips parted; plainly enough the thrust had gone home and she was mortally wounded.

"Dear me, Nancy—I didn't intend you to take it personally."

"Yes, I think you did."

"In that case, we won't discuss it any further."

Edith passed her with a sweeping gesture which implied—to put it mildly—that Nancy had now offended her almost beyond forgiveness.

Nancy was in such a rush to get out of the house that she forgot to arrange with Minnie about the meals and only remembered when she was well on her way to the city that her mother-in-law would have to lunch off a scrap of cold mutton and precious little else. Edith Heritage was fond of her food and feeding her to satisfaction was not only expensive but a worrying business. Fortunately, the expense did not so much matter, since Nancy had the secret wealth to draw upon and so far neither Dick nor his mother had commented upon the fact that she managed her housekeeping allowance surprisingly well. Edith would probably think she had neglected making plans for a tasty lunch on purpose, out of spite because of their little disagreement.

Well, it couldn't be helped!

How often of late Nancy had made use of that expression; there were so many things which it seemed could not be helped. Sylvia Lane was one of them.

It was not Sylvia, however, who hung heavy upon Nancy's mind this morning, but Mr. Digger. Since yesterday afternoon when Dick told her, she had been living on her already overstrung nerves. She felt as though at any moment she would fly to pieces.

By the time she actually arrived at Gary's Inn, however, Nancy was in a slightly calmer frame of mind. As she told herself, the man could not eat her, and if he set out with the idea of blackmailing her he would soon discover where he stood.

As she climbed the two flights of stairs to the suite of offices a new and no less anxious thought struck her. Possibly there had been some mistake about Miss Satchell's legacy; they might have discovered, for instance, a later will in which the former Nancy Akers was not remembered so handsomely, or perhaps had not been remembered at all. And she had already drawn out £50 in cash, most of which was spent. Suppose she had to return it?

So when the office boy did betray his deep interest as before, Nancy had no heart left to give him the smacking she felt he deserved, and she was much too worried to think about having hysterics when Mr. Digger came forward with a beaming smile and outstretched hand to greet her.

"My dear Mrs. Heritage, you are in luck!" he exclaimed. "Something that sounds like a miracle has happened. Sit ye down. A beautiful day, isn't it? A cigaret? O, I remember, you don't smoke."

Nancy looked at him with a question in her eyes. His hearty manner of friendliness did nothing to soften her hostility.

"I know," he said, with a fat chuckle. "You've been cursing me because I happened to catch your husband on the telephone. I hope, in consequence, you didn't feel it was necessary to 'spill the beans.'"

Nancy ignored this persiflage.

"I'd be glad to know why you felt it was necessary to ring me up at all?" she said.

"Because I've got—or shall be in receipt of—some more money for you," said Mr. Digger. "A small matter, indeed, compared with Miss Satchell's legacy—apparently no more than a couple of hundred pounds or so. But there you are! It never rains but it pours, they say."

To Develop Too Thin Ankles.

N. W. M.: Massage with a nourishing cream and exercise will help to develop too thin ankles. I have the exercises in illustrated form, and ask that you send a stamped, addressed envelope for them.

Brown Mascara for Blondes.

V. McD.: Brown mascara would be a better selection for the blonde. The black gives too great a contrast. It's rather startling. The woman with black hair or dark brown hair may use black.

Miss Michael Going to N. Y. for Romance

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Most any day now Gertrude Michael will be boarding a TWA airliner for a fast trip to New York which will mark a resumption of her romance with Rouben Mamoulian, the director. The temporary lapse was caused by Mamoulian's departure a couple of weeks ago to direct a Broadway play. However, the couple have lost no time corresponding via telephone and telegraph.

Miss Michael will pack her suitcase as soon as Paramount gives the word that all is well with her latest picture, "The Last Outpost." Mamoulian will be absent from Hollywood for about three months and Miss Michael says she will devote all her spare time away from the studio in the big city to be near him.

Whether there will be a marriage before she comes back home Miss Michael refrained from saying, but she indicated one can never tell.

It's all in a day's work. Today Maureen O'Sullivan and William Henry were filming scenes for "The Capture of Tarzan" in the big pond on the M. G. M. lot. Along with James McKay, the director; Art Smith, assistant director, and Elmer Sheeley, art director, they were being canoed to a boat in the middle of the huge make-believe lake. The canoe capsized. Luckily they are all good swimmers.

Lucille Watson, Broadway actress, brought here for a part in "The Bishop Misbehaves" today relegated her 12 year old sedan to the junk heap for a new model.

Stanton MacDonald Wright, noted American painter, is doing the murals at the Santa Monica public library. One section is on the arts, another on sciences and a third on the motion picture. It developed today that the figure depicting dance will be a likeness of Tatiana Tuttle, while the director in the film murals will be her husband, Frank Tuttle, and the players Gloria Stuart and Leo Carrillo. Dedication of the murals will be held at an early date.

liam B. McIlvaines are with the elder McIlvaines in a cottage on the Chicago club grounds.

Mrs. C. Morse Ely, who has the Edward D. Shumway cottage for the season, is entertaining Mr. and Mrs. John Hamline. Douglas Laird of Winnipeg, Canada, and his daughters, Betty and Kathleen, also his mother, Mrs. Alexander Laird, are with Mrs. Robert Stuart. Mrs. Stuart and Mrs. Laird are sisters.

Solomon A. Smith returned to Chicago last week-end after a short Charlevoix vacation, but Mrs. Solomon Smith and her daughter, Mrs. M. Scott Bromwell, will occupy their cottage through the remainder of August.

The Lyman T. Walkers and Mrs. Charles I. Pierce all have rooms at the clubhouse. Dr. and Mrs. Eugene S. Talbot, who had David I. Hillis with them the last week-end, have been following the yacht races which were started last week. Miss Jane Allen of Hartford, Conn., and her hostess, Miss Nancy Whiting, are others keeping close tab on the yacht races. They also are playing a good deal of golf.

The Cyrus H. Adamses and Mrs. James H. Douglas and her daughter-in-law, Mrs. Donald B. Douglas, have been at Charlevoix most of the summer and have no immediate plans for coming home. Others enjoying long vacations in the colony are the John P. Kelloggs, the Joseph H. Kings, the Frederick H. Scotts, and the junior John P. Wilsons.

News of Americans Traveling in Europe.

News of Americans and Anglo-Americans in Europe has come to Chicago in various letters. Miss Muriel Winston, Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor and her brother, Richard Blow, were in Dublin, Ireland, for the horse show, which drew an attendance of 34,000 on the day of the international military jumping for the Aga Khan cup.

The Cuthbert Ross-Cuthberts [Beatrice Kirk] left London for Scotland, where they are visiting. They have no plans for returning to the United States, although Mrs. Cuthbert's mother, Mrs. Hambleton Kirk, is expecting them some time next month.

The Bartle Bulls are on an extended trip through Poland and Russia, and Mrs. Bull's mother, Mrs. Jacob Baur, is in London with her grandchild. Mr. Bull is "nursing" a constituency at Enfield, near London, and hopes to be elected to the house at the next parliamentary election. Mrs. Baur will return to Chicago Oct. 1.

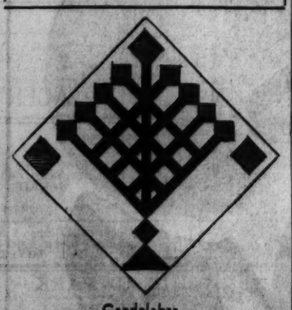
Miss Helen Fulton, who is playing in several tennis tournaments in the east, will spend this winter in Chicago, taking an active part in the Service club and continuing her music studies here. Mrs. Fulton is in the east with Miss Fulton. Mr. Fulton and another daughter, Mrs. Lawrence BeBout, will motor east to join them at Forest Hills for the matches there.

Clifford Barneses to Entertain Dean.

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford W. Barnes and their daughter, Miss Lilace Barnes, of Lake Forest, are now at their summer home, Cairn-Wood, in Northwest Harbor, Me. Over the coming week-end they will have as their guest Shailer Mathews, dean emeritus of the University of Chicago divinity school, who will address the Northeast Harbor Sunday Evening club Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will give a luncheon the next day for Dean Mathews, and among the guests who will meet the Chicagoan are Henry Morgenthau, former ambassador to Turkey; Theodore Marburg, former ambassador to Belgium; John D. Rockefeller Jr., Bishop William Lawrence of Boston, Dean Francis G. Peabody of Cambridge, President James R. Angell of Yale university, Dr. Richard Cabot of Harvard university, Dr. Samuel Eliot of Boston, the Rev. Tertius Van Dyke of Princeton university, Dr. Samuel S. Drury, headmaster of St. Paul's school; Dr. Roscoe Brown of Columbia university, and Dean William Draper Lewis of the University of Pennsylvania.

Candelabra Are Motif of Quilt with Soft Colors



Candelabra.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Candelabra" is a recent quilt to be added to the fold, being first made at the turn of the century. Gold and rose are two suggested colors to be used against a white ground. The block is large, measuring 18 inches square. Ten plain and 10 applique blocks are required for one quilt. A suggested block arrangement accompanies this pattern, which enables the quilt maker to visualize her completed coverlet.

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

GIRL'S SCHOOL DRESS.

Attractive "suit-like" dresses are being made for schoolgirls this season. Cravat and woolly effects in cotton prints are especially favored. Lightweight woolens and printed rayon washable crêpes also are well liked. The original of this dress was in brown, red, and white woolly cotton, with plain brown to show off the smart bolero bodice.

The pattern, No. 2887, comes in sizes 6, 8, 10, and 12 years. Size 8 requires 2 yards of 39 inch material, with ½ yard of 35 inch contrasting, and ¼ yard of 1 inch wide ribbon for the neck bow.

Persistent Case of Blackheads Often Index of Acne Condition

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

A fairly good rule to recognize in connection with blackheads is that after 20, if they still persist, a good medical skin specialist should be consulted. It is assumed that when blackheads persist after 20 there is an acne condition which may be associated with some internal upset. It is not the ordinary acne vulgaris, correctible by external measures. And the older the person gets the more difficult it becomes to eradicate acne.

External measures alone are rarely sufficient.

The truth is that one cannot separate the skin from the general make-up of the body. So, in the treatment of prolonged acne, a study of the general health, combined with knowledge of the skin and its disorders is the way to obtain permanent relief.

External measures are of help, no doubt. In fact, they're necessary. Excessive cleanliness is the first requirement. A good complexion brush, for one's own private use, naturally, and with frequent sterilizations, helps. Instead of one fearing soap and water, it is best to know that the blackhead infected skin can take a great deal of this kind of punishment.

There is a famous lotion called lotio alba, highly recommended for this facial trouble. But have it made up by a reliable pharmacist. All good pharmacists are familiar with the lotion's ingredients, and it has been suggested to me by several of the most important skin specialists. It is important, too, to apply the lotion properly. The skin must first be washed clean.

The lotion should be well shaken and a little poured in the saucer, then applied to the face from the saucer. A light film may be left on overnight. However, in serious acne cases I would certainly recommend a medical skin specialist's advice and his recommendation as to how long to continue the lotion's use.

To hurry along corrective results, the blackhead victim is urged to drink a good deal of liquid during the day, and to be most meticulous in matters of internal hygiene. Then the diet plays a great part in clearing up the skin. Better get the starchy foods down to a minimum. A little butter is advisable at each meal, for its digestive and eliminative merits. But fat meats and gravies may be passed by with good results, and vegetables and fruits made to act as substitute foods where possible.

Children Can Not Do Without Adult Guidance

Freedom Does Not Mean Running Wild.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

"When we do the catering for the big high school affair in our handsome hall," a successful woman dietitian and manager in a western city remarked the other day, "we have to put guards on duty to protect the place and our equipment."

Curiously enough another woman from the same town had earlier said, in talking of her son's education: "I took Newt out of the ——— school. I was uneasy about the boys and girls there. We're new to the city and naturally his schoolmates were his logical companions. The boys and girls come from what the school calls the 'best families,' but after these children pile into the school bus to be taken home many of their parents don't know where they are until 10 or 11 o'clock at night. So I decided that that was no place for my son."

With all the modern child training talk about making children independent, developing their self-reliance, helping them to stand on their own feet, and giving them their freedom never for one moment is anything like this implied.

To turn boys and girls of any age loose to let them run wild, to have their leisure spent unsupervised, to have them away from the direct or subtle guidance of wise grownups, is only jeopardizing their present and paving the way for future trouble. This trouble may eventually be open conflict with law or society, or it may mean trouble in the boy's or girl's personal life in a lack of high standards of behavior and manners. Or it may mean the absence of real education and cultural development, superficial and distorted ideas of human relationships, and an absence of spiritual values.

Young things, played upon by the many influences of our many sided civilization, need the best guidance that our vigilant affection and intelligence can work out for them.

Those parents who neglect their children and ignore their real responsibilities [well fed and clothed and schooled as their offspring may be] are doing them and society at large a great wrong.

CONQUERING CONTRACT

By P. HAL SIMS

END PLAY.

We have been nobly avoiding the common garden variety of end play for the last month or so. It is true that we have recorded end play situations, but we have disguised them under the sheltering cloak of a squeeze or tried to show how South got out of an end play, which is quite a different thing from finding yourself irrevocably trapped in the jaws.

The following hand cannot slink about under any other nomenclature, however. It is a stark end play, and congratulations are definitly in order for South. South guessed this and that and wound up making three no trumps.

SOUTH

♣ J-9-7-6

The bidding had best be passed over lightly. There is no good bidding that finishes with South the declarer at three no trumps, especially when East has stuck in a diamond bid. Be that as it may, that's the contract that South played.

So far as West was concerned, seven no trumps was merely a matter of guessing the location of the queen of spades. He dutifully opened the four of diamonds and South was permitted to win the trick with the king. South didn't care for it. One could see that lots of queens had to be picked up.

With a wild, abandoned gesture, South played a small spade and took an immediate finesse of the jack. When it held, South felt a trifle better. He cashed the king and ace of spades. East was a little put to it for a discard and finally made his best choice—the ten of diamonds. A diamond was played. East took the ace and queen and put his partner in with the six, but when West cashed the high spade, East was forced to—there, you see what happens to all my simon-pure end plays. They turn into squeezes.

Howsoever, if East does not discard the ten of diamonds, but relinquishes the deuce, he will be end played. Now he can't exit, but must lead from one of his queens into the A-K-J combinations.

If the spades break, South has no further worries. He has a choice of finessing either hearts or spades and trying for a break in the suit. That he chose spades, said South afterward, was only in keeping with his gloomy viewpoint toward the whole hand.

The hand cannot be defeated once West opens diamonds and East ducks. The ace of diamonds and a diamond back would annoy South no end.

Children Will See 'Curly Top' at Party Today

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Today isn't just an ordinary day, is it, boys and girls? No, indeed—because it's Thursday, and Thursday brings with it two important events.

First of all it's the day when you'd better carry around your rabbit's foot, keep your fingers crossed and say all the magic words you know, because the winners of invitations to our gay party at the Stevens hotel, on Aug. 29, will be selected today. Fifty boys and fifty girls will be selected to be my guests at a new and novel entertainment.

The second reason why Thursday is an important day is because it's party day! All the youngsters who were selected a week ago will come with me to the Chicago theater today to see "Curly Top." We're going to have a grand time and see little Shirley Temple in one of her best pictures today.

Not only that, but we'll see short subjects and huge stage show, which is just the right kind for youngsters. There'll be music and dancing, and clowns and midgets, and I know you're all going to love it.

Please be prompt, boys and girls, because we don't want to miss any of this big show by waiting for a few slow pokes. Don't forget to bring your invitations either, because you must have them with you to join our party. That's all you have to do; bring the letters I sent you and be at the appointed place on time, and we'll take care of all the rest. See you later, kids!

City Puts Ban on Butter from Unaccredited Cows

Butter sold in Chicago in the future must be made from cream produced by healthy cows in herds from officially accredited tuberculin tested areas, according to the board of health's new regulation which became effective yesterday. Dr. Herman N. Bundesen, president of the board, said that one of the main purposes of the regulation was to protect Chicagoans against the influx of butter rejected by Cleveland and Cincinnati, O., and several other cities which now demand butter from healthy cows.

BY MARY MEADE.

If fresh, crisp, homemade potato chips are a frequent adjunct of your summer meals there's a new product on the market in which you're sure to be interested. It's packaged potato flakes, all ready for a thirty-second skirmish with the frying basket, and boasting a delightful new hybrid flavor—a sort of cross between the regulation chip flavor and that of well baked potatoes, so it seems.

The flakes are merely paper thin slices [their uniformity is despairing to amateur slicers] of partly cooked potatoes, which have been dehydrated. Only the thin outer skin has been removed in order to preserve the mineral content of the vegetable. We're told that the flakes are then lightly coated with gelatin, but it's nothing that in any way changes the potato flavor, for a quick dipping in cold water before frying removes this protective substance. Incidentally the flakes won't prove something to worry about should you leave for a week-end with a half-used package still on the pantry shelf. Their makers assure us that they are set to keep indefinitly under all possible conditions.

The frying of the flakes is almost as simple as opening the package. After the second's dip in cold water the excess water is shaken off and they go [a few at a time] into a kettle of hot cooking oil or fat. The temperature isn't quite as hot as that which you'd have for regular French fried potatoes—350 degrees F. If you haven't a thermometer it's easy to test for the proper temperature by dropping in just one flake. If it has turned a golden brown in 30 seconds the fat is of the right heat. A higher temperature than that will scorch the flakes, while a lower one may mean that they'll be tough instead of correctly crispy.

After the flakes have turned a delicate brown [you'll want to stir them lightly after the first few seconds of frying to prevent their sticking together] they ask a bit of shaking or draining to remove the surplus fat and a sprinkling of salt. And that's all there is to it!

One clever trick with these large flakes is to turn them into firm little baskets for hot, creamed chicken or seafood, or for salads. With two small strainers, one a little larger than the other, it's easy to shape a trig basket from overlapping, moistened slices. One large flake forms the bottom, while smaller ones overlap around the inside of the larger strainer. The smaller strainer holds the basket firmly in place while it's immersed for frying.

In case you're wondering just how much all this is going to set back the food budget, take heart. The flakes come in large packages at a price that needn't mean any revamping of the week's menus.

Wife Must Be Help to Mate in Adversity

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Discouraged" writes that he's been married for five years. When they first were married he had a good position and received a good salary. Everything went along smoothly. They were happy. They had a comfortable home, which they enjoyed, having their friends in for dinner and evening bridge parties. Several times each month they would take in a good show and go dancing. Everything was lovely.

Like many others, his salary was cut, and cut again. That meant they had to forego many of their little pleasures. Finally an occasional movie was all the budget permitted. Unfortunately his wife did not accept the situation philosophically. She began to feel sorry for herself because they couldn't go out as they had been accustomed to do. She ranted on and on until the poor fellow became so discouraged he dreaded his return home each evening.

It's a mighty selfish wife who won't stand by her husband when things are breaking badly for him.

Hers is the wrong attitude. How can she expect him to keep up his spirits when she shows not the slightest bit of confidence in him? It is a woman's duty to make the man feel she has faith in him. That's what gives him the courage to keep on trying. She must tell him she believes in him and even though things look discouraging now, everything will turn out right later on and he will get the break to which he is entitled.

Her complaining kills his confidence and robs him of his natural desire to keep on fighting. If he turns out to be a failure, she has only herself to blame.

30,000 TROOPS STAGE 'BATTLES' IN RAIN AND MUD

Pine Camp Taxicab Army Takes Part.

Pine Camp, N. Y., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Thirty thousand troops slogged for miles across muddy roads today and pushed their way across stubbled fields, tangled forests, and green meadows as four National Guard divisions "fought," in a drenching downpour, the greatest mimic battles in American peacetime history.

Today's maneuvers, the first in a series of "engagements" in which troops actually opposed troops instead of shadow boxing with imaginary enemies, centered around two hills.

The National Guardsmen, mobilized here for two weeks' training from New England, New York, and New Jersey, trudged "route step" across back roads deep in sand, took cover in pine forests, waded brooks, stumbled across plowed fields, and "died" —upon umpire orders—in some farmer's hay field.

Taxicab Army Takes Part.

The "taxicab army" again took part, and New York taxi drivers in their radio cabs drove, swearing, forth to "battle." Many of the cabs and other motor vehicles became mired and jammed in confusion in narrow backwoods roads.

An advance element of the 43d division had a brief skirmish with a swarm of hornets and retired, routed. Even the umpires, who waved the red and white flags, tagged the "wounded" and disposed of the "prisoners," paid the price of war. The plight of one of them was particularly pathetic, for in full view of a battalion he was chased at an undignified speed by two cows as, clutching his red flag, he crossed a rocky pasture.

Two Separate Engagements.

The maneuvers, which were witnessed by high ranking officers of the army and military attachés of foreign nations, were divided, for the purposes of training, into two separate engagements, each independent of the other, though in both cases blue in the north opposed red in the south.

The 27th New York division commanded by Maj. Gen. William N. Haskell was pitted in the eastern portion of the 100 square mile maneuver area against the 43d New England division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Morris B. Payne. In the western portion of the changing terrain the 44th New Jersey and New York division, commanded by Maj. Gen. John J. Toffey, opposed the 26th Massachusetts division, commanded by Maj. Gen. Daniel Needham. In both sectors the southern or red troops were the 27th and 44th; the northern or blue enemies were, respectively, the 43d and the 26th.

VICTIM OF BLAST GUARDED AFTER WRECKING HOME

John Kovach, 54 years old, was under guard last night at the Southtown hospital, where he was taken early yesterday after a terrific gas explosion demolished his two story frame home at 5735 South Seeley avenue and damaged two neighboring cottages. Kovach was injured seriously, three persons incurred minor hurts, and eleven others escaped uninjured, although they were thrown from their beds by the force of the blast.

Capt. Barton Moran of the Chicago Lawn police said Kovach admitted withdrawing a plug in the gas main in the basement of the house, intending to "blow everybody up." Kovach was suffering from a persecution mania, Capt. Moran said. The accumulated gas apparently was ignited by a pilot light in a stove, Capt. Moran declared.

Sally Sadler, 7 years old, who lived on the second floor of the house with her mother and father, was blown from her studio couch across the room and against the only wall of the building that was not wrecked. The wall prevented the débris from falling on her. Those injured were residents of the first floor. Kovach occupied a room at the rear. Every one living in the adjoining cottages was jarred from bed by the explosion.

AUTO DAY PICNIC IN PARK AFFORDS 3,500 A GAY TIME

A bright blue sky, a cool lake breeze and five heaping truckloads of food contributed to the happiness of 3,500 guests at the 31st annual outing of the Orphans' Automobile Day association yesterday in Lincoln park.

As early as 8:30 a. m. the first carloads of merry makers began arriving, as late as 5:30 p. m. the last carloads were leaving, yet during the nine hours only one person of the entire 3,500 was "lost." She, a tiny yellow-haired orphan 5 years old, was found ten minutes later trailing Bozo, the policeman-clown-tumbler.

Throughout the entire day gayety was the keynote of expression of all three participating factions—and all for different reasons. The white haired inmates of homes for the aged rejoiced in the 40 act program, prepared by Joe Coffey. The wide-eyed children, crippled or orphaned, reveled in the bottomless fountain of orangeade, the fat box lunches, the bright paper hats and the loud, loud horns.

U. S. TO HOLD '36 NAVY MANEUVERS NEAR THE CANAL

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—In a conciliatory gesture to Japan, Acting Secretary of the Navy Henry L. Roosevelt today announced the United States fleet maneuvers will be held at the Panama canal and on the western coast of Central America in 1936.

Mr. Roosevelt and the navy high command insisted that the shift of the navy games from Hawaii and the Alaskan coast was not in response to Japanese unofficial criticism. This insistence was taken with a grain of salt by well informed observers.

Stop Mass Navy Flight.

For the last two years the holding of war games off Hawaii and the Aleutian Islands has stirred the Japanese press into loud denunciation against what they termed an "unfriendly demonstration" against Japan. The Japanese government made no official protest against the exercises, but made quiet representations to the navy and state departments that the gathering of the American fleet in war array might be "misunderstood" in Japan.

These representations succeeding in halting a projected mass flight of navy planes to the Philippines in conjunction with the maneuvers of last May. On the strength of this concession Japan insisted, though not through official channels, that it would be to the best interest of friendship between the nations to hold the war games elsewhere in 1936.

Just "Varying Training."

Today as a result of the cycle of events of the last six years the return of the navy to the Canal Zone is seen as a friendly gesture to Japan. According to Admiral William H. Standley, chief of navy operations, the navy is merely following a well defined policy in making the change in order to vary training.

Secretary Roosevelt said that after the maneuvers some units of the fleet will visit Atlantic ports and return to the base at San Diego in the fall.

Charges of Tavern Owners Cause Ouster of 2 Police

Two policemen were discharged yesterday by the civil service commission, sitting as the police trial board. Alfred Hammer, patrolman at the Stanton avenue station, was ordered dropped on a charge of trying to extort $1,200 from Neil Duffy, owner of a tavern at 10600 Torrence avenue. James T. Graham of the First district was discharged on testimony of John Daly, owner of the tavern at 4156 West Van Buren street, who said Graham was intoxicated and threatened to shoot him on June 18.

POLICE GET NEW CLEW IN MURDER OF MORRISON

CRIMINAL COURT.

STANLEY LEWANDOWSKI, robbery with a gun; sentenced to Joliet prison for life under habitual criminal act; WALTER FISCHER, EMIL CONRAD, automobile larceny, 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary; EUGENE CHURCHILL, ARTHUR HODGE, larceny, 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary, by Judge Grover C. Niemeyer.

Discovery of a new clew which is being kept secret yesterday gave police new hope of solving the mysterious murder, Aug. 13 of Kenneth A. Morrison, assistant controler of the Chicago park district, who was found slain in his auto in front of 628 Alaska street.

Capt. Andrew Barry of the Hudson avenue station, who is in charge of the murder investigation, said he could disclose no hint as to the nature of the new evidence, but he admitted that it may require his making a trip outside Chicago. He and Assistant State's Attorney John A. Boyle will start work on the new line of investigation today, he said.

To date the investigation has failed to turn up the slightest indication of a murder motive in Morrison's personal or business affairs. Robbery has been discounted as a motive for $25 was still in Morrison's pockets when his body propped up in the back seat and bearing three bullet holes was found in his auto.

NEW PRESIDENT IS INSTALLED BY ECUADOR ARMY

QUITO, Ecuador, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Ecuador appeared orderly tonight after Antonio Pons, former minister of government [premier], was installed by the army as president to succeed José M. Velasco Ibarra, president yesterday and a prisoner today, as a result of his attempt to make himself dictator.

Apparently only one shot was fired during the brief turnover in government. This wounded a foreigner, Dr. De La Rosa, minister to this country from Venezuela. When Carlos Arroyo Del Rio, president of the senate and leader opposing president Velasco Ibarra, was arrested Monday, the Venezuelan offered him asylum. Some one shot at Del Rio, but struck the minister in the hand.

Some of the authentic University fashions for fall, 1935. There's more in the "Back-to-School Clothes" display on our first floor and in the ten Monroe Street windows. Based on trends, we are introducing a few ideas of our own that wait only to be introduced to become contagious.

4-PIECE SUITS run to tweeds and homespun fabrics with checks and plaids carrying the bulk of the pattern responsibilities—all have sports backs—with and without center vent—the types of coats that are easy going, informal and pair up well with odd trousers. $28.50 and $34.50.

NECKTIES of imported English Macclesfield silks and patterns, and allover neatly sized squares and checks along with the new, deep toned diagonal striped reps are the ringleaders for fall. $1.50.

SHIRTS topped off with the new widespread Duke of Kent collar are deserving of a good share of the space in your shirt drawer—it's the newest idea in collar attached shirts since the tab, and for all its comfort creates an exceptionally well dressed impression. $2.50.

HOSIERY continues to show an attachment for patterns with a Scotch background—and in place of the large Argyle plaids of last fall, there are Tartans and small checks in blue, black, brown, and maroon. 50c pair.

PAJAMAS that have a decided edge on good looks, washability and wearability are these of Imported Striped English Twill. 4-button coat top—and English collar. $2.85.

HATS in small shapes—with 2 and 2 1/8 inch brim—either bound or welt edge. The colors are on the dark side. Deep brown with black band; dark gray, and lovat — which is a cross between green and grey. $5.

DRILL ALL-AMERICANS TO STOP BEARS' THREE ACES

FEATHERS AND NAGURSKI PERIL VICTORY HOPES

Then Coaches Worry About Hewitt.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

How would you plan a defense to stop Bill Hewitt, the greatest end in professional football? Now that you've figured that problem, go ahead and place your men to halt Bronko Nagurski's smashing plunges and Beattie Feathers' galloping end runs.

BILL HEWITT.

The All-Americans, who are drilling twice a day at Dyche stadium for their battle Aug. 29 with the Chicago Bears at Soldiers' field, face these problems. So do the coaches, and their discussions have been long and thorough.

Don't ask how the All-Americans will deploy next Thursday night. If George Halas of the Bears knew he undoubtedly would change his offensive plans and then it would be another merry-go-round. But the All-Stars have definite ideas and yesterday they spent the morning and evening hours in perfecting plans. Scrimmage was the order last night, and the All-Americans worked against forward passes, lateral passes, and sharp off-tackle thrusts. They'll keep at this kind of practice from now until game time, with occasional bursts of intensive effort to smooth out their own attack.

Bohn Hilliard, triple threat half back from the University of Texas, dominated the scrimmage last night. He proved to be an elusive target for the tacklers and by his impressive showing became a candidate for a starting position against the Bears.

Study Bears' Attack.

The world of professional fans know that the Bears have used a man in motion in their back field for the past several years. They may not use this style of attack Thursday night, but the All-Americans are planning defenses against it. Other plays from set formations are perhaps more easily defended against, particularly since the collegiate forward pass rule will handicap Nagurski's passing over the line of scrimmage.

The Bears' attack has been diagrammed, discussed, talked over until the coaches have exhausted all possibilities. Now they are striving to teach the players their assignments. The truth is that in the morning practice yesterday, all too many passes were completed by the team which imitated the Bears. No one is worried, but improvement must be

BEARS MOVE TO NEW SITE FOR NIGHT PRACTICE

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lake Mills, Wis., Aug. 21.—The Chicago Bears motored here today from their training camp at St. John's Military academy and held their first practice under lights tonight on the municipal athletic field.

At least one more workout, an intrasquad game at Waukesha, Wis., on Friday night, will be held under the lights before the pros break camp to meet the All-Stars on Soldiers' field in Chicago Aug. 29. A light practice will be held on Soldiers' field the night before the game.

Get New Formation Today.

Tonight's drill was devoted exclusively to acquainting ball handlers with shadows and to accustom the squad to night atmosphere. Coach George Halas believes it is more exacting physically to play at night than in the daytime.

One more formation, which will bring the Bears' offense for the All-Star game to 118 plays, will be given the squad tomorrow at St. John's, where two drills will be held. If all assignments are thoroughly learned by Sunday Halas will limit the remainder of practice to one session a day. He is anxious to curtail work as much as possible next week to enable the men to become fully rested and recovered from injuries incurred in the arduous drill imposed the last ten days.

Bears Work on Many Plays.

Halas realizes the All-Stars are at an advantage inasmuch as they have only a few plays to master, while the Bears are attempting to perfect more than a hundred. He has decided, however, that the Bears will be more successful if they play the game as if it were a league contest and therefore has made no attempt to fashion a special offense for the All-Stars.

College coaches who give a team a 100 or more plays usually let themselves in for criticism. In the pro league, however, the defense is so formidable, Halas explains, that an extensive offensive alignment is imperative. Most college teams are given one play and instructed how to vary it several ways to meet emergencies that arise from shifting of defensive linemen and backs.

Every Play Distinct.

The Bears do not trifle with these variations. They make each one a distinct play with definite assignments. The path of the ball carrier in one Bear play may vary only the width of a man's hips, compared to that traveled in another.

DISCOVERY LOSES TO TOP ROW IN $25,000 STAKE

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Discovery, holder of two world turf records, which had won eight major stakes in a row, was beaten today by Top Row, 4 year old colt owned by A. A. Baroni of Reno, Nev., in the $25,000 Narragansett Special handicap.

The Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt racer, which had made the circuit of eastern and midwestern tracks taking down one rich prize after another, found his impost of 139 pounds too much. Top Row carried only 110 and won by a length and a half.

Winner Pays $18.50.

Top Row, ridden by Wayne Wright, paid $18.50 to win, $3.40 to place, and $2.60 to show. Discovery, made the 1 to 4 favorite by the crowd of 45,000, was at $2.40 to place, $2.20 to show, and Howard, which came in third, paid $3.20 to show. Time Supply and Fidells completed the field.

Top Row, which also holds a world's record, that for a mile and one-sixteenth, was timed in 1:55 4-5 in today's race at 1 3-16 miles, just 4-5 of a second off the world mark held by Discovery.

Jocky Johnny Bejshak got Discovery away from the barrier fast and he took a lead of two lengths at the quarter pole. At the half Top Row moved up and pushed his head in front of Discovery. He gradually pulled out as they came into the stretch and at the finish was going away from the Vanderbilt champion.

He's Pretty Good.

MIKE JACOBS TO ANNOUNCE LOUIS, BAER SITE TODAY

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Mike Jacobs, secretary of the Twentieth Century Sporting club, tomorrow will announce the site and date of the heavyweight bout between Joe Louis and Max Baer. Jacobs, who has sole control of the boxers' services, has received alluring offers to stage the bout in Chicago and Detroit, but it is expected that he will pick New York.

He will appear before the state athletic commission tomorrow morning and name the site. It is predicted that Jacobs will declare that the bout will be staged at the Yankee stadium on the night of Sept. 24.

Senators Pound Three Sox Pitchers for 15-7 Victory

BY EDWARD BURNS.

The White Sox were in a rollicking mood offensively again yesterday but made the mistake of sending forth three pitchers who weren't in a mood to pitch, while their second baseman played with a pneumatic chair pad instead of a glove. As a result of these defensive oversights the seventh place Washington Senators licked the Chicagoans, 15 to 7, in the opener of the series.

Despite the eminently unsatisfactory afternoon, the White Sox held their third place berth by virtue of happenings in other ports. The Sox finished the day with a percentage of .51818. The Cleveland Indians, who split a double-header with the A's, have a mark of .51754. The Red Sox lost two games and dropped to fifth with .513.

Just Have Their Gloves.

Babe Phelps was the first of the inadequate Sox pitchers, but it perhaps would be unfair to say he was as bad as Les Tietje and Whit Wyatt, for he was injured and had to retire in the second inning. But he went out in a blaze of unsteadiness that gave little promise that he would have survived even if he hadn't hurt a finger. Tietje had nothing whatsoever, and promptly blew, aided by some of Jack Hayes' great amount of inept second basing, after the Sox has supplied him a surprise 5 to 4 lead with a five run rally in the fourth inning.

Wyatt staggered through the seventh inning but after the Sox had moved up for an 8 to 7 count in the seventh, ascended in a great big way in the eighth, the seventh placers whirling around the bases for no fewer than seven runs.

Gifts for Senators.

The Senators scored on a combination of sloppy events in the second inning. The first was the hitting of Manush with a pitched ball. Travis then singled to center, Manush taking third. Manush and Travis held their bases while Conlan was retiring Powell, but Manush scored and Travis went to second on a wild pitch and when Sewell made a wide throw to Phelps at the plate in an effort to get Manush, Travis reached third. Phelps scuffed a finger in the maneuver and hastily retired.

Tietje was warmed up and promptly finished the pass to Kress, who took second on the second wild pitch of the inning and stopped at third on Holbrook's single to center. Whitehill shot a perfect double play ball to Hayes, who elected to punt, Kress scoring, Holbrook stopping at second, and Whitehill reaching first on the boot. Kuhel and Miles filed to Simmons.

Hayes got the first hit off Whitehill, a single to left, with one out in the Sox second, but Conlan tapped into a double play.

Sewell opened the Sox third with a single to center. Tietje and Radcliff fanned and Simmons walked. Piet tapped to Myer and that threat was over.

Holbrook rolled a single past Hayes with one out in the fourth, paused while Whitehill lined to Conlan, and scored on Kuhel's triple to right. Miles flied to Simmons.

Sox Pick Up Five.

The Sox scored five runs in the fourth to supply themselves with a short lived lead. Appling and Dykes walked and held on while Hayes sent a short fly to Manush. Conlan singled to left, Appling scoring and Dykes stopping at second. Sewell also singled, Dykes scoring and Conlan stopping at second. Tietje whiffed for the second time, but Radcliff dropped a triple on the right foul line, scoring Conlan and Sewell with the tying runs. Radcliff scored on Simmons' single past third, giving the Sox a 5 to 4 edge. Piet forced Simmons.

With one out in the Washington fifth Manush lifted a high fly to right which Conlan misjudged by 15 or 20 feet, but it bounced into the boxes and Manush was held to a double. Travis singled to left, scoring Manush with the tying run. Powell also singled to left, Travis stopping at second. Tietje got in the hole with Kress and tried to lob over the sucker ball. Red socked a triple to right center, scoring Travis and Powell.

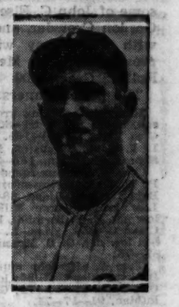
BRUINS BEATEN IN FIRST, 13-12; THEN WIN, 19-5

Drop to Four Games Behind Giants.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 21.—The Cubs, who at times appear to have pennant ideas, piled up a total of 31 runs today, but their near record breaking enterprise failed to get them anything better than an even break in the double-header with the funny Phillies. The Chicagoans, after harvesting a healthy lead, sloughed off the first battle by the modest score of 13 to 12. Then they rallied themselves mentally and took a wild, wooly nightcap by 19 to 5, the high spot in this spectacle being twelve runs in the sixth inning.



FRANK DEMAREE.

The even break, in view of the way in which the Giants and Cardinals conducted themselves in their day's work, failed to bring any improvement for the third place Cubs in the percentage column. The Giants, who must be tackled in their own stronghold tomorrow, now top the Chicago entry by four games and the second place world champion Cards have a one game edge on Grimm's erratic troops.

Great Start, Anyway.

The first battle started off like a Cubs' holiday. Charley Root had a 4 to 0 lead in the opening inning, partly because of the Phils' crazy fielding. The veteran had a 5 to 2 advantage in the second, this also being contributed to by the Phils' generosity. Five more Cubs paraded across the plate in the fourth and fifth, three of them because Hartnett hit homer No. 10, and the two others because Billy Herman notched homer No. 5. This meant a 10 to 4 edge, but with the start of the home fifth the panic set in. From then to the finish the Cubs were babes in the woods and blindfolded in the bargain.

Root surrendered in the fifth after a salvo of hits had scored three runs. Roy Henshaw came tearing in and although wild, southpawed his way through the inning. But the Phils caught up with him in the sixth and two more scored before Tex Carleton could adjust the situation. That left the Cubs with a one run lead and this went glimmering in the seventh and eighth when four scored, thus assuring Carleton of his sixth triumming of the year.

Easy for Lee.

Bill Lee picked up his season's thirteenth victory in the second game and it was sort of an easy job for him. By the end of five innings his mates had scored up six runs. Then to make sure there wouldn't be a repetition of the first game fadeout they blasted over the dozen in the sixth.

FIRST GAME

Four runs for the Cubs in the opening inning of the first game came easily. The Cubs just hit the ball and the Phils assisted with some of their comics. Galan, Herman, and Klein

BEVERLY RETAINS TEAM TROPHY IN GLEN VIEW GOLF

William S. Wilson Wins Individual Title.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Beverly Country club quartet, old timers on the circuit, played an encore yesterday at the 22d annual Club Relations day of the Chicago District Golf association at the Glen View club to win the team trophy for the third consecutive year.

In the meantime a new individual champion, William S. Wilson, South Shore, was being crowned the head man of the yearly family party of the local governing body.

Winners Post Score of 338.

A goodly gathering of officers and directors of member clubs, past and present, found the south side foursome, composed of J. A. Middleton Jr., 79; Don Hamilton, 80; Gray Tuthill, 87, and Philip Lenz, 92, too much on the subject of retaining the trophy which has been suspended on the walls of the Beverly locker room these last two years. The winners had an aggregate of 338.

Next in line was Midlothian's foursome of John C. Else, J. E. McMahon, Gordon Crowder, and Carl Overaker, with 363. They were followed by Flossmoor, 369; Medinah, 373, and Rolling Green, 400.

Thirty-six holes low gross—William M. Wilson, South Shore, 84—80—164; C. E. Yegge, Glen View, 85—80—165. Low net 36 holes—L. E. Gould, Evanston, 193—44—149; Leroy Shonts, Evanston, 185—34—151.

Class A, morning round—Low gross—Charles P. Thompson, Flossmoor, 92; low net, C. S. Baker, Sunset Ridge, 98—19—79. Class B—Low gross—George Miller, Midlothian, 84; low net, E. V. Bertolini, Elmhurst, 84—6—78. Class C—Low gross—A. W. Hale, Medinah, 94; low net, G. D. McAninich, Medinah, 88—12—76.

Class A, afternoon round—Low gross—John Hackett, Glen Oak, 86; low net, J. K. Walker, Oak Park, 88—14—74; Gordon Crowder, Midlothian, 91—17—74.

Class B—Low gross—J. A. Middleton Jr., Beverly, 79; low net, John C. Else, Midlothian, 86—14—72, and John G. Searle, Barrington Hills, 83—9—72.

Class C—Low gross—Ray H. Matson, Westmoreland, 81; low net, Dwight Bennett, Westmoreland, 85—10—75.

Team champions—Beverly, 338—J. A. Middleton Jr., 79; Don Hamilton, 80; Gray Tuthill, 87, and Phil Lenz, 92. Midlothian, 363; Flossmoor, 369; Medinah, 373; Rolling Green, 400; Butterfield, 408.

'ALLISON, VAN RYN ADVANCE IN U. S. DOUBLES EVENT

Brookline, Mass., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The United States Davis cup delegation to the national doubles tennis tournament at Longwood registered impressive straight set victories today and entered the semi-finals.

Wilmer Allison and Johnny Van Ryn gave a consistent performance, turning back Robert Bryan of Chattanooga, Tenn., and John McDiarmid of Fort Worth, Tex., 9-7, 6-3, 6-4. The other internationalists, Don Budge and Gene Mako, eliminated Henry Prusoff and Sam Lee, 6-2, 6-2, 6-1.

Having qualified Freda James and Kay Stammers, the all-England champions, for the semi-finals yesterday, the women's division spent the day deciding that round's other occupants.

The defending champions, Helen Jacobs and Mrs. Sarah Palfrey Fabyan, gained a 6-1, 6-1 victory over a Brookline team, Mrs. Betty Corbiere and Mrs. Virginia Mabley.

Eastern Writer Confused About Wisconsin Pike

BY BOB BECKER.

What is the average size of a wall-eyed pike taken in the Wisconsin lake region? After reading the description of wall-eyes that an eastern fishing authority has been writing about we are wondering if we have been in the wrong state when we thought we were in Wisconsin.

In discussing the average size of a Wisconsin wall-eye (notice we say average) the eastern fishing authority says in a recent publication:

"The size of wall-eyes varies considerably. A good average in Wisconsin is probably 8 pounds, and 9 to 10 pounders give no one heart failure. Up in Ontario, where there are lots and lots of wall-eyes, fish do not run nearly so large. Two and three pounders are common enough.

"In Michigan, Ohio, New York, and other states they run as a rule somewhere between the Wisconsin and the Ontario averages. Four and five pounders are good fish."

Returning to the first part of the eastern writer's statement notice that he says that a good average for the Wisconsin wall-eye is 8 pounds. In other words, you go out day after day to pick up a mess of pike and the fish will average 8 pounders. Fisherman who spend a lot of time in Wisconsin waters will want to join us, I am sure, on a hunt for a series of lakes in Wisconsin where the wall-eyes will average 8 pounds.

In fact, after reading this flattering appreciation of the 8 pound average wall-eyes in Wisconsin we are sure that the sun hasn't been shining on us these many years. Somehow or other neither our wall-eyes caught in Wisconsin for the last 12 years, nor the fish of our friends have averaged 8 pounds. So something is wrong somewhere!

It is a known fact, of course, that Wisconsin grows some mighty big wall-eyes. Prize winning specimens are taken nearly every summer. We know of lakes where one can expect to pick up 4 or 5 pounders without a tremendous amount of effort.

Medinah Club Officers Hold Golf Tourney Today

The sixty officers and governors of the Medinah club will hold their annual summer golf jamboree at the Calumet Country club, 175th and Western avenue, this afternoon. Jess L. McKee, president of the club, is in charge of the arrangements.

Westland and Lain Top U.S. Golf Trials

The prolonged Chicago district trials for the national amateur golf tournament, scheduled to have been finished at dusk Tuesday, finally arrived at a definite conclusion yesterday at the Beverly Country club.

The 36 hole battle for the twenty local places in the tournament proper, to be held at the Country club of Cleveland from Sept. 9 to 14, inclusive, was interrupted for about 40 of the field at the 27 hole juncture because of Tuesday morning's rain, coupled with tardiness in getting the field away.

The interrupted troupe played the remaining nine yesterday morning, with the result that the leaders of the original field of 122 are Jack Westland of Sunset Ridge, 1931 runner-up and twice a Walker cup player, and Bill Lain, Beverly club champion. Westland was one of the fortunate entrants permitted to finish the 36 holes Tuesday, reaching the home hole with 152. Lain, one of those halted at the 27th, shot a 38 on his nine yesterday morning to match Jack's score.

Only eight of those who had played the 36 holes on Tuesday qualified, thirteen others who were forced to play the fourth nine yesterday morning crowding in. The thirteenth was Bob Baldwin of Big Oaks, who qualified with 156, but withdrew because of business reasons at the last minute.

The qualifiers:

DuBOUCHETT SLOE GIN FOR FIZZES & RICKEYS

Feldman Is Due Sunday to Box Christy Thursday

Lew Feldman, New York 132 pound boxer, will arrive Sunday to finish preparations for his ten round bout with Jimmy Christy at Mills stadium next Thursday. The match is of importance to Feldman. It is not half as important for Lew as it is for Christy, however.

Inasmuch as the veteran Feldman is a stablemate of Tony Canzoneri he may never get a crack at the lightweight crown held by the latter. On the other hand, ever since his conquest of Mike Belloise at the Stadium last May, Christy has had the idea he can whip Canzoneri. His triumph over Jackie Sharkey at Marigold Gardens recently has strengthened this belief. He must continue his victory march at the expense of Feldman, however, if he hopes to be able to obtain proper recognition as a challenger of Tony's right to the crown.

Maurice Lasky, manager of Art Lasky, announced yesterday that Art had been signed by the Twentieth Century Sporting club for a scrap with Joe Louis at New York or Los Angeles in November. . . . Ray Impellittiere and Ford Smith, heavyweight rivals, are likely to clash at New York next month.

Chairman Joe Triner and Secretary Gene Meany of the state athletic commission have gone to Springfield, Ill., to attend Governor's day ceremonies today in honor of Gov. Horner. . . . Lorenzo Pack, who won the international Golden Gloves heavyweight title at the Stadium last May, is set for his return encounter with Al Boros of Bridgeport, Conn., at New York tonight on the program headed by a six rounder between Jack Doyle and Buddy Baer.

Pete Andrews and Jackie Reed yesterday agreed to meet in a five round match on the amateur card tomorrow at Northwest stadium. . . . Tom Kenneally faces Tony Musto at five rounds and Christ Boulahanis opposes Jack Janis at three rounds. . . . Lou Thomas, Indianapolis, Ind., has recovered from an infected foot, the result of an injury in his knockout of Chuck Burns six weeks ago. . . . Sam Buxbaum, Denver, Colo., fight manager, now residing in Chicago, and George Engel, Plymouth, Ind., junior welterweight, have signed a five year management pact. . . . Mickey Beal, local bantamweight who has been campaigning on the Pacific coast during most of the summer with a measure of success, has returned and will rest awhile before resuming fighting. . . . Adolph Wiater, Green Bayl heavyweight, is spending his time during an enforced layoff operating a sawmill at Loretta, Wis. F. M.

All-Americans Drill to Stop Bears' 3 Aces

Bears Are Ex-Pupils.

Strangely enough, three of the All-American coaches taught several of the Bears during their collegiate days. Joe Kopcha, the Bears' great guard, played under Frank Thomas at Chattanooga university. Art Buss came from Michigan State where Charley Bachman is head coach, and Dr. Spears gave Nagurski his start at Minnesota. Buss and Kopcha are expected to be main spring gents for the Bears in the line and Nagurski needs no introduction.

This is an All-American team, but when individual ability is measured for each of the plays it's difficult to fit the men together for a tight defense.

Ends who excel at pass catching may not be outstanding at defensive assignments. The coaches have planned to the best of their ability and knowledge. The defenses may hold. Again they may not be worth the paper on which the plans were drawn up. The final answer will be given Thursday night.

Get Tickets Now!

Have you bought your tickets? Only $1.65 and $1.10 seats are left. These are splendid locations and cost two and three times as much for such games as the Army-Navy and Notre Dame-Southern California. No matter where you sit you can see the All-Americans and the Bears. And if you want to be a member of football's greatest crowd visit The Tribune's Public Service offices at 1 South Dearborn street and in the lobby of Tribune Tower. These offices are open until 10 o'clock each evening. Mail orders are accepted by the ticket manager in Room 530, Tribune Tower.

At noon today the players and coaches will be the guests of the Interfraternity club of Chicago at luncheon. It will be the only time when the entire squad makes its appearance.

CHICAGO BEATEN IN JUNIOR LEGION BASEBALL, 4 TO 1

Stockton, Cal., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Tulsa and Sacramento will meet here tomorrow for the American Legion junior baseball championship of the western half of the United States.

Oklahoma defeated Denver 10 to 9 this morning and California took the measure of the Neighborhood Boys' Club of Chicago this afternoon 4 to 1. Excellent pitching by Wakefield gave Sacramento its victory. He did not allow a hit until the seventh when Third Baseman Anderson of Chicago hit to center. Chicago bunched three hits for its tally in the ninth.

The winner of tomorrow's final will enter the "little world's series" at Gastonia, N. C., next week.

JIMMY JORDAN OF DODGERS TO WED LADY EAVES

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Jimmy Jordan, Brooklyn Dodger shortstop, will be married next Tuesday to Lady Eaves, the former Dorothy Luckie of a wealthy Texas family. An announcement was made today by the prospective bride.

Lady Eaves, whose parents reside in San Antonio, was married to Lord Hastings Eaves of England in 1930, as he lay in a Missouri hospital suffering from critical injuries in an airplane crash. The nobleman died ten days later.

The widow, 24, met Jordan, who is 23, at the beginning of the present baseball season. Lady Eaves, red headed and dimpled, said Jimmy would play out the season. Later, they will visit his parents in North Carolina, then hers in San Antonio. After that they will wind up the honeymoon in Puerto Rico. She is a licensed pilot, and the couple are considering making their delayed wedding trip in an airplane, with the bride at the controls.

IN CAIRO it sometimes reaches 105° in the shade, but JOHNNIE WALKER Red Label still brings refreshing coolness

FOR a very good reason the English depend on Johnnie Walker in sections of the world where it gets really hot. In Egypt, India, Sumatra . . . a long, tall drink of Johnnie Walker Red Label is the answer to the hottest day.

Cool and inviting . . . there's nothing like it for refreshment. It ranks with the linen suit and the cork helmet of the tropics.

Try Johnnie Walker Red Label, yourself, this evening after work. Settle down with a long, cool, frosty highball. Sip it slowly and feel it refresh you. Take a tip from the tropics these warm days. There's no better whisky than Scotch—and no better Scotch under the sun than Johnnie Walker.

TIGERS CAPTURE TWO GAMES FROM RED SOX, 4-1, 3-2

Crowder Yields 4 Hits in Opener.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The Detroit Tigers increased their American league lead to seven games today by defeating Boston, 4 to 1 and 3 to 2, while the New York Yankees broke even at St. Louis.

Alvin Crowder set the Red Sox down with four hits in the opener for his fifteenth victory of the season. Elden Auker got credit for the second game, although he yielded 11 hits while John Welch was holding the Tigers to six.

In the second game the score was tied at 2 to 2 until the eighth, when Gehringer tripled and scored on Cronin's throw to retire Goslin at first.

BROWNS, YANKS SPLIT.

St. Louis, Mo., Aug. 21.—(AP)—After taking a 14 to 2 beating in the first game, the Browns went on a hitting spree against Johnny Murphy, Jimmy Deshong, and Pat Malone to rout the Yankees, 14 to 3, in the second contest of today's double-header. Gehrig hit a homer in each game to bring his season's total to 21. Lou's first home run came with the bases full.

singled in order, Galan scoring. Hartnett sacrificed. Demaree bounced to short and Gomez fumbled, Herman scoring. Cavarretta singled and Klein registered, whereupon Jorgens was removed for Pezzullo. Hack rolled to Camilli, but the Phils forgot to retire anybody, so the bags were filled. Demaree scored the last run of the inning on Jurges' force of Hack at second.

The Phils bounced back with two runs in their opening stand. Root got the first two men out, after which the runs registered on doubles by Moore and Camilli and a single by Allen.

One Hit, One Run.

Galan opened the second with a single that bounced off Pezzullo's shin. This was the only hit of the inning, but it was enough to score a run. Herman flied out and Galan was safe at second when Chiozza threw wild trying to force him on Klein's grounder. Galan went to third on the error and home while Demaree was forcing Hartnett, who had been purposely passed. This put the Cubs ahead, 5 to 2.

Three additional runs fell into the Cub basket in the fourth, a happening handled almost exclusively by Hartnett. Herman led off with a single and Klein was safe on Pezzullo's fumble of a bunt. Gabby then hoisted his No. 10 homer over the wall in right center. This furnished Root with a six run lead, but the Phils reduced this by two in their portion of the fourth, when Todd, Gomez, and Pezzullo singled and Chiozza hit a fly ball.

The heavy firing continued in the fifth, the Cubs scoring two to make their lead 10 to 4. This was done on a double by Root and Herman's No. 5 homer, which drifted well into the seats in left. Pezzullo was gone before the inning ended, Bivin taking over the pitching.

Phils Chase Root.

The disturbance that forced Root to relinquish his job in the fifth got under way after the first two men had been retired. Allen doubled to right and Vergez walked. Both scored on Todd's double to left. Todd scored when Gomez singled and that finished Root. Henshaw ended the inning.

The next thing the Phils did was to knock out Henshaw and score two in the fifth, leaving them behind by only 10 to 9. Moore led off with a double and Camilli walked. Good-by Henshaw. Carleton strolled in and Allen singled, Moore scoring. Vergez was thrown out by Hack. Todd singled to center and Camilli scored.

It didn't take the Phils long to get the tying run as well as a couple of others in the seventh. Haslin started it with a single. Carleton threw out Watkins on a bunt. Moore's single put Haslin on third. Camilli doubled off the right field wall, Haslin scoring the Phils' tenth run and Moore stopping at third. Allen was purposely passed, filling the bases. Vergez promptly singled past third, scoring Moore and Camilli.

For good measure the Phils scored one more in the eighth on a pass to Bivin, a sacrifice and Watkins' single off the right field barrier. And this run proved of vast importance. It kept the Phils ahead after the Cubs had completed a two run rally in the ninth. Their dying gasp started with Galan doubling after O'Dea, batting for Carleton, had fouled out. Herman singled to right, Galan stopping at third. Klein forced Herman and Galan scored. Hartnett singled to left, whereupon Bowman came to the relief of Bivin. Demaree singled to score Klein, but Cavarretta rolled to Gomez and the show was over.

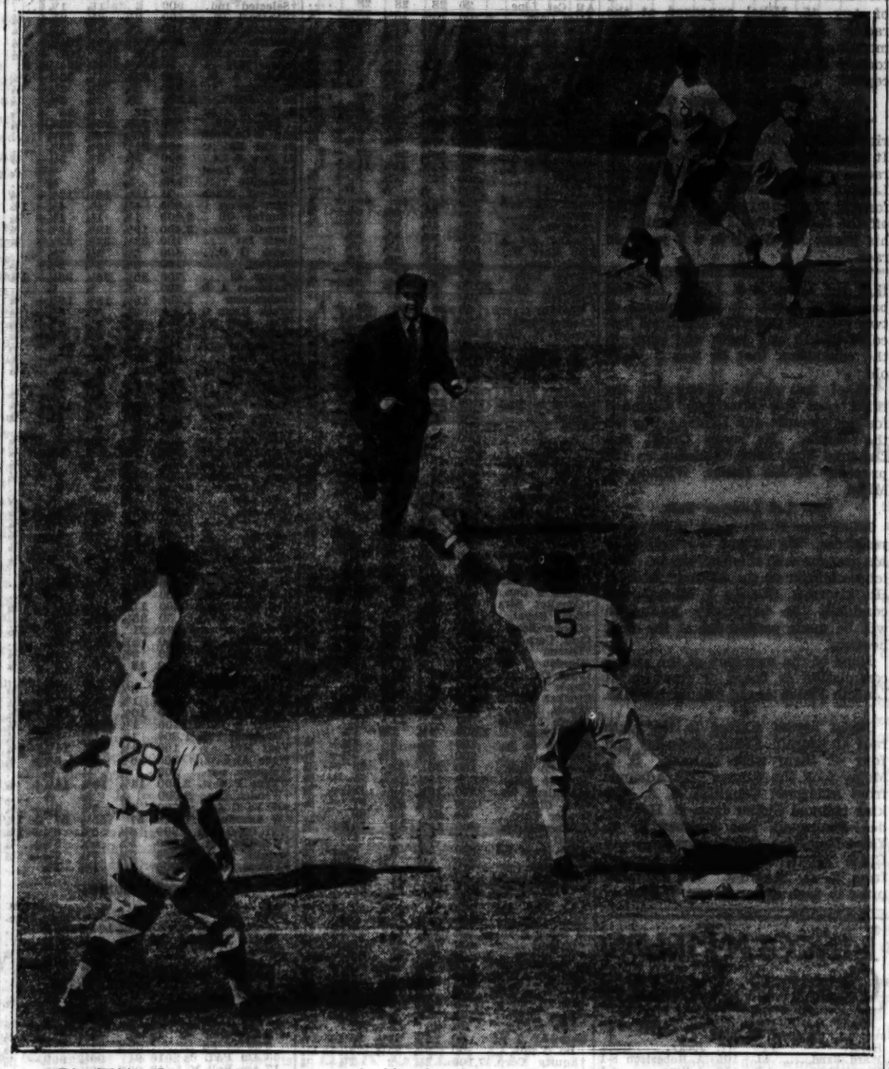
AND THAT MAKES TWO OUT



The White Sox complete a snappy double play in the first inning of yesterday's game with the Senators. Kuhel, first up, had beat out a bunt. Miles then grounded to Luke Appling, who stepped on second, forcing Kuhel, and rifled the ball to Jimmy Dykes to complete the play. Jackie Hayes is shown backing up the play at second while Umpire Donnelly dashes over to call the out at first. The Washington coach is Strange. The Senators won, 15 to 7. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

walked Jurges. He also walked Lee, Cavarretta scoring.

Keep on Hitting.

Galan kept things moving by singling. Herman popped to deep short, but deep enough to let a run score from third after the catch. Klein singled for the second time. Hartnett singled in his second appearance. Demaree doubled for the second time. Cavarretta singled again. Then Hack flied to Moore for the third out.

Lee yielded a run on successive hits by Camilli, Allen, and Vergez in the home sixth, but nobody cared.

The Phillies were comical in the field again in the eighth and the Cubs were given another run. This preceded a somewhat rude jolt for Lee in the home half when he was apparently aching to blow up. He surrendered four hits and one pass and made two wild pitches before getting through the inning with three runs across.

Senators Hit 3 Pitchers to Beat Sox, 15-7

Holbrook tapped gently to Hayes, playing in, and Kress seemed like a cinch to be out at the plate until Hayes juggled the ball. Hayes was able to recover in time to throw out Holbrook. Whitehill popped to Appling.

Hayes Is Shakey.

The Sox managed to hold the Senators away from the plate in the sixth even though three of the visitors grounded to Hayes, who juggled every ball, including another double play roller which caused him to be chalked with his second error.

Wyatt was the Chicago pitcher in the seventh and though he gave up an infield scratch single and hit a batsman was in no serious trouble during the inning.

The Sox made a couple of runs in a hurry in the seventh, but the splurge faded out fast thereafter. Radcliff was hit by a pitched ball. Simmons then lined a double off the right field wall, Radcliff stopping at third. When Miles made a wide throw to the plate, Radcliff scored and Simmons went to third. Simmons scored while Myer was tossing out Piet. Appling fouled to Kuhel and Dykes filed to Powell.

Here's a Nightmare.

Wyatt pitched some doubles and what not in the eighth. With one down Myer doubled to left and after Manush had popped to Hayes, scored on Travis' third hit, a double to right. Powell singled to left, scoring Travis, and took second on the throw to the plate. Kress walked, and he and Powell executed a double steal. Holbrook walked, filling the bases. Then Whitehill, Kuhel, Miles, and Myer rattled off singles. Manush humanely supplied his second out of the inning. The net of the inning was seven runs and seven hits.

Sam Jones will go after his sixth victory this afternoon in the second game of the White Sox-Senator series. He will be opposed by Ed Linke.

Zeke Bonura yesterday continued to cling to his microphone, but is expected to don a uniform today.

Warneke and Cubs Battle Giants Today

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 21.—The Cubs moved over to New York this evening and tomorrow will go into conference with the leading Giants in the first of a four game series. Lon Warneke, with a record of 13 victories and 13 defeats, will be entrusted with the job of whittling into the New Yorkers' lead.

By making five hits in eight times at bat Chuck Klein reached the .300 mark in what has been a hard uphill fight.

Rudy Laskowski, the Chicago lad who performs as batting practice catcher for the Cubs, met with a slight mishap before the first game. He was cracked on the side of the head by Galan's bat and had to be taken away for repairs. Nothing serious.

About 6,000 were present, one of them being Cliff Heathcote, former Cub outfielder who came down from York, Pa., to see how his old mates looked.

Vlk Leaves Catholic U. to Help Coach at Tulsa

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The resignation of George Vlk, former Notre Dame player, as assistant football coach of Catholic university was announced today by Athletic Director A. J. Bergman. Vlk will become assistant coach at the University of Tulsa, Okla., he said.

TED CLARK WINS MILE EVENT AT LINCOLN FIELDS

Leads Cotton Club Home by Three Lengths.

BY FRENCH LANE.

Ted Clark tuned up for the $5,000 Lincoln handicap at Lincoln Fields yesterday and made a runaway of the Morrison handicap. He galloped in front from start to finish and was stealing steadily away from his field at the line of finish.

Three lengths was his margin of victory over Cotton Club, which finished second and he was nine lengths in advance of On Rush, the third horse, when it ended.

It was the first victory Ted Clark has scored since last January but he performed in such excellent fashion that he perhaps will go to the post as the favorite in the Lincoln to be run on Saturday despite the presence in that race of the speedy Myrtlewood.

Pays $4.40 to Win.

Ted registered his victory over a heavy track and the largest week day crowd of the Lincoln Fields season watched him do it. He mustered a horde of backers and after running the mile in the difficult going in 1:42 4-5 paid $4.40 to win, $4.20 to place and $2.60 to show. Cotton Club was at $4.80 to place and $3.00 to show. On Rush paid $3.40 to show.

Jocky A. Robertson didn't ask Ted Clark for his best speed lick at any stage of the journey. He kept a snug hold on the son of Chatterton all the way around and in the early stages had to take him under strong restraint, otherwise Ted might have run away and hidden from his rivals. In the final furlong Robertson shook him up a bit when Cotton Club made a challenge. Then Robertson was content to hand ride him on home to the easy victory.

Favorites Have Bad Day.

The positions of the leaders did not change at any stage of the struggle. Cotton Club had been second all the way and On Rush was in third place for the entire trip. Spanish Babe, Glittering, and Cold Shoulder completed the field, but never were dangerous.

The favorite players encountered rough going throughout the afternoon until Ted Clark came along to give them some relief. They were back in the rut again just as soon as the next race was run.

This mile and a sixteenth dash was won by Alderman Coughlin's Fire Advance which paid off at $29.40 in the two dollar betting. Alderman Coughlin and many of his henchmen were out to wager on the 3 year old. They watched the race from the "poor man's" clubhouse down near the head of the stretch but their cheers could be heard all over the place.

Fire Advance was a trailer until the last stages of the race but moved up and smothered the leaders at the top of the stretch. He had enough left after a furious drive through the final furlong to beat Coffier and Flag Wave by half a length.

There were 15 lucky holders of daily double tickets yesterday who had coupled Dandy Dancer and Some Boy to win the second and third races. Each received $617.80.

PIERRE ANDRE, away fast, worked his way clear before reaching the turn, sustained good speed throughout and won handily. DUSKY PRINCE, well up from the start and on inside early, was taken to outside on stretch turn and closed well under severe pressure. DORAN, away in a tangle and rushed to a contending position with a tremendous loss of ground weakened from the effort, yet appeared best.

$4.60 show; Joda, $4.20 show. Start good from Bahr gate. Won driving, place same. Winner trained by R. E. Cooper.

DANDY DANCER, suited by the going and having speed from the start, was under steadying restraint for five-eighths and weakened after coming away in stretch, but held UNLAWFUL safe. Later, also showing good speed from the start and under strong riding the final quarter, held on well. JODA, a factor throughout and forced to lost considerable ground, wore down ALBERT D. in closing strides.

SOME BOY, fractious at post and slow to begin, bettered his position under strong need of strong pressure on the turn, and closing with determination under strong hand riding, slowly wore down the leaders. NATALIE ALICE, well up in early stages but forced back on stretch turn, from which she recovered quickly, held on well after racing to the lead on inside but was not good enough. FAN AWAY, also rank at post, displayed speed under hustling tactics, but weakened in late stages.

TED CLARK, going in his best form made the early pace under strong restraint, increased his advantage gradually and without strong urging, but Robertson, taking no chances, shook him up briefly in final eighth. COTTON CLUB, entering stretch and while no match for winner, held on well. ONRUSH, raced wide throughout, was never strongly persevered with and dropped back steadily in stretch but outsavved SPANISH BABE.

MIGHTY QUICK, having an advantage in the going and coming well won easily. BYRDINE, with a good start, raced into an easy lead when ready and continuing well won second. ROYAL ROVER, in close quarters on first turn and again when under mild pressure in final eighth, moved slow to get going and slightly forced back but was not good enough. CHICASHA on far turn lost much ground entering stretch and bore over badly and was tiring when slightly impeded by BYRDINE in stretch.

Time: :24 4-5, :51, 1:18 3-5, 1:46 4-5, 2:07 2-5. Two dollar mutuels paid: Six Bells, $16.60 straight, $8.00 place, $3.60 show; Snobeedo, $4.40 place, $3.40 show; Bataille, $3.00 show. Winner trained by C. Troutt. Went to post at 5:46½. At post ¼ minute. Start good. Won easily, place driving.

SIX BELLS, improved and under strong restraint entering stretch, moved up with leaders gradually and without need of strong riding and drew out fast in final eighth. SNOBEEDO, taken over sharply at first turn and kept up the pace to the end, was well rated, held on gamely to final sixteenth before faltering badly. BATAILLE, in the worst part of track throughout, weakened in the drive.

INJUNCTION LETS MIKEL RACE HIS HORSES TODAY

Court Blocks Commission on Age Ruling.

Despite the ruling of the Illinois Fields Jocky club board of stewards barring John D. Mikel, Carlock, Ill., farmer and horse breeder, from the turf, the downstate turfman expects to saddle some horses for races at Lincoln Fields this afternoon.

Protected by a court order restraining the Illinois racing commission and the Lincoln Fields Jocky club stewards from enforcing their ruling of Aug. 15, Mikel appeared at the racing secretary's office yesterday morning and made three entries for today's races. The entries were accepted.

Judge Schwaba Grants Order.

The injunction was granted in Superior court by Judge Peter H. Schwaba. It temporarily enjoins members of the racing commission and officials of the Lincoln Fields Jocky club from enforcing the ruling which put Mikel off the turf following the running of his horse, My Bane, in a 2 year old race.

The Lincoln Fields stewards allege that the horse is a 3 year old and base their ruling on the findings of two veterinarians who examined the colt's mouth and teeth and came to the conclusion that he was 3 years old.

Mikel will saddle Oneill for the third race this afternoon, Culloden for the seventh, and Dancing Boy for the eighth. He owns Oneill and Dancing Boy, while Culloden is the property of his father, William A. Mikel.

Will Let Lawyer Talk.

Mikel was at the track throughout yesterday. He refused to reveal what his next move in the case will be. "I'll let my lawyer do the talking," he said. His attorney, Charles J. Michal, was confident the temporary injunction will be made permanent at the next hearing.

None of the members of the racing commission or board of stewards at Lincoln Fields would discuss the case.

Eight horses started in the sixth race at Lincoln Fields yesterday and four of them were claimed. S. J. Molay took the winner Fire Advance from Alderman Coughlin, G. A. Wilkins claimed Cofiler from B. Hernandez, Peedeeque was grabbed by B. Yates from Mrs. Charles Grayson, and Clyde Troutt secured Lady Federal from R. C. Thatcher. The claiming price in each instance was $1,600.

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO EASE TEXTILE WORKER REVOLT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—With an eye toward checking the revolt of New England cotton textile workers against the New Deal as evinced in the Rhode Island election returns, President Roosevelt today submitted to congress recommendations of his cotton textile committee to better the affairs of the industry.

SECRETARY ROPER

The report, drafted by four cabinet members, suggested that a friendly agreement be sought with Japan to limit the export of Japanese cotton textiles to this country. The committee found that, although the Japanese imports have been small, the American market has been disturbed, with a resultant depression in the industry here.

Suggest NRA Standards.

A continuance of the labor standards provided under the NRA code was suggested. To this end it was recommended that the government supplement such voluntary efforts as are being made by administrative and legislative measures which may be feasible to aid workers.

The committee failed to approve a request of representatives of the industry that raw cotton now financed by the government be made available to the producers for the purpose of manufacturing articles for export. The representatives asked an allowance of 7 cents per pound upon exportation of the finished product.

The proposal in effect would subsidize cotton textile exports. In view of possible retaliatory measures which might be taken in foreign countries against such a subsidy, the committee said it rejected the suggestion.

Favors Processing Tax.

The committee recommended against discontinuance of the cotton processing tax "during the existing economic emergency as reflected by existing price disparities." The committee held that the tax increases the purchasing power of farmers and thus benefits workers in the cotton textile industry.

The government's cotton loan policy was found to be primarily important to the textile industry through its possible stabilizing effect. This phase of the report was taken as an indication that the administration, which is hesitating over this feature of its price pegging program for 1936, may announce continuance of the 12 per cent loans in a few days.

In view of the critical nature of the cotton loan policy, the cabinet members said a substitute for such stabilization "might be obtained through the hedging of mill holding of cotton which would afford considerable protection against inventory losses."

Group Urges Inquiry.

The committee suggested investigation of mill hedging requirements for possible revision or addition to the functions of the cotton futures market.

In the report it was urged that the committee be continued and include representatives of government, labor, and industry in an enlarged group which would carry on the recommendations.

Members of the committee are Secretary of Commerce Roper, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace, Secretary of Labor Perkins, and Secretary of State Hull.

The committee also found that excess capacity and obsolescence are serious problems of the industry and recommended that legislative and administrative action limit the hours of machine operation, a leasing system for retiring surplus equipment and purchase and retirement of most obsolete units.

CCC IGNORES PROTESTS; TO BUY NEW TYPE SHOES

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—In the face of strenuous protests from lether and cattle interests, the Civilian Conservation Corps has ordered bids on 187,500 pairs of shoes with composition heels and soles. The order represents a 50 per cent reduction from original plans. Bids will be received at the same time on 562,500 pairs of shoes with full lether heels and soles to determine which are cheaper.

Robert Fechner, director of the corps, in replying to charges that his office would be in opposition to the general policy of the government with respect to improving the lether market, declared:

"My primary duty is to the Civilian Conservation Corps and by whatever amount I can reduce the cost of shoes or of anything else entering into its maintenance by just so much can I take more young men off the street and rehabilitate them."

Gasoline Demand Estimate Raised; Withdrawals Heavy

Due to continued heavy withdrawals of gasoline from storage, the bureau of mines has raised its calculation of prospective September demand to 39,250,000 barrels.

Wheat Extends Upturn 2c on World News

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

An extremely pessimistic report on Canadian crop conditions, the war talk in Europe, and a strong commercial demand in the cash markets made up the background yesterday for a further rise in wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade.

Prices went up more than 2 cents a bushel. At the close wheat was worth 4¼ cents a bushel more than it was 48 hours earlier. December wheat, the principal future, finished the day at 92 cents a bushel.

All Markets Advance.

Wheat advanced in all principal world markets. Liverpool quotations were bid up nearly 2 cents a bushel as a corresponding advance occurred in Winnipeg. In Rotterdam gains amounted to over a cent and in the Buenos Aires market prices were a half cent higher.

World-wide strength in prices reflected the influence of war talk. Because of other bullish factors, however, the market is an uncertain barometer of the speculator's appraisal of the war possibilities. The Canadian crop report, issued by the dominion bureau of statistics, was of more immediate market significance in Chicago, Winnipeg, and Liverpool.

Canadian Condition Mixed.

The condition of the crop in the Canadian prairie provinces was described as highly irregular. Comment on frost damage from last week's freezing weather in Alberta got most attention. Over a 250 mile stretch of country from Edmonton, Alta., to Scott, Sask., where the crop was still green, heaviest damage was found.

Only moderate hedging selling was reported in the wheat pit here. As a result prices responded more rapidly to buying demand. Orders executed by brokers for big commission houses indicated an expanding public interest in the market.

Closing quotations on December futures, with comparative prices, follow:

	Yesterday.	Tuesday.	Wk. ago.
Wheat	$ .92	$ .89⅝	$ .88⅝
Corn	.56⅝	.55¾	.56⅜
Oats	.28⅞	.27⅞	.28¼
Rye	.45½	.44	.43⅝

Corn prices advanced moderately yesterday. New crop futures were the strongest on the strength of unfavorable crop news in the western part of the corn belt. In the middle west prospects are still excellent.

BEARS PLEASED, BULLS ANGRY IN SUGAR ACTION

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Bulls bellowed their indignation today and bears expressed gratification at the speedy action of the New York Coffee and Sugar exchange in suspending dealings in the September No. 1 sugar contract and ordering its liquidation at 2.58 cents a pound. Opinion in trade was about evenly divided.

"I paid 2.62 cents a pound for the purchase of my September contract," said one trader. "By the time commissions and taxes are taken care of it will have cost me 2.64 cents. The board's action has cost me just six points a pound and saved the seller heaven knows how much."

Many other bulls who had bought the closed option at 2.58 cents or more also lost out. Old traders could not recall when a market bull had lost money in a squeeze before.

Sugar longs were also indignant that the board did not allow the September delivery to open yesterday morning. The December option jumped 14 points at the opening and many bulls hoped that the September option would rise at least above the purchase price and allow them to escape with a whole skin. The shorts, of course, were jubilant, as otherwise they would have been forced to take a higher settlement price and loss.

18 OF CHICAGO STOCKS REACH NEW 1935 HIGHS

The Chicago stock market gained strength yesterday after two days of sagging prices. Eighteen issues moved forward to new highs for the year, and only 26 of the 104 issues traded lost ground. Fifty-four registered gains, eleven of a point or more, and twenty-six closed unchanged.

Trading, however, was the slowest in some time, volume being only 54,000 shares. The low priced utility shares, some no longer with an equity in the company, were in comparatively little demand yesterday, as the recent flurry appeared to have died out. Most of them were steady to lower, but National Electric Power was an exception, its preferred rising 1⅛ to a 1935 high of 1½.

Kellogg Switchboard preferred scored a 4 point advance to lead the shares, and the common was up ¾. Others up a point or more included Associates Investment, Borg-Warner, Central Illinois Public Service preferred, Cherry Burrell, Commonwealth Edison, McGraw Electric, Monroe Chemical, Walgreen, and Reliance International A.

New York Stock Seat Price Falls $20,000 to $105,000

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—A $20,000 break in the value of New York Stock exchange memberships was disclosed today in the sale of a seat at $105,000. The last sale was made at $125,000, the 1935 peak, on Aug. 9. In April this year a seat was sold at $65,000, the year's low.

Moffett Again Postpones Resignation as FHA Head

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—The resignation of James A. Moffett, Federal Housing administrator, has been again postponed at the request of President Roosevelt. Moffett has agreed to remain with the administration at least another month.

Roosevelt Rule of 6 New Deal Units Tightens

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt today ladled out bitter medicine to the head of six New Deal alphabetical units. By executive order, he placed the units more directly under his control in bringing them under the budget and accounting act of 1921.

The six units are the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, the Federal Surplus Relief administration, the Export-Import bank, the Second Export-Import bank, the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and the Electric Farm and Home authority.

Lay It to Morgenthau.

When continuing acts for the units were sent to congress early this year, the President suggested they be placed under the budget act, which would require them to submit to the budget bureau estimates covering expenditures and go on a month to month spending basis. The suggestion was carried to Capitol hill by Secretary Morgenthau.

The officials, resenting such control over their departments, succeeded in having the provision stricken quietly on representation that it was a Morgenthau idea. One by one they lobbied against the item. The lobbyists included RFC Chairman Jones, Federal Relief Administrator Hopkins, and FDIC Chairman Crowley.

Recently, the officials learned that they had not been fighting Morgenthau, but the President.

So They Submit Quietly.

Today, they submitted quietly to the order, even though there is no authority vested in the President for the procedure. They are not expected to make any outcry in the future. So long as no one challenges the order it will stand.

The order strengthens Mr. Roosevelt's hands over the agencies in that it will enable him to call on one man—the director of the budget—rather than on six to learn about their financial affairs. Also by putting the units on a month to month spending basis through the budget director, the President has a club over their operation.

The order followed one of last Aug. 7 by which the President put the seven lending agencies of his New Deal under the budget act. Mr. Roosevelt said today that in a few days he will complete this reform in an order affecting seven more units.

Trafic Reports Show Volume Ahead of 1934

Additional reports of freight loadings for last week show further improvement over the preceding week and a year ago. This is the first time in ten weeks that trafic is running ahead of the 1934 period. Following are totals with comparative figures:

Carrier—	Week ended Aug. 17.	Aug. 10	Year ago.

USE OF ADVERTISING URGED TO COMBAT FIRE OF DEMAGOGS

"Every business man has on his desk sufficient facts and material to answer and combat all demagogs, but he must get his message across to the public," said I. I. Sperling, president of the Financial Advertisers' Association of America and assistant vice president of the Cleveland Trust company, in an address yesterday to the Chicago Financial Advertisers at the La Salle hotel.

Institutional as well as individual advertising must be used, he pointed out, asserting that no industry had done a better job in refuting propaganda than the banks in proving false the charges that they were refusing to lend money. He referred to their quoting government agencies, themselves, to show that the difficulty was in finding willing and responsible borrowers.

Commercial advertisers might learn from financial advertisers, Sperling asserted. The latter, he said, are standing less on their dignity now, but not to the extent of being familiar or in bad taste. They are leaning backward to stay within legal and ethical bounds. If others had done likewise, he asserted, there might not now be the agitation there is for new food and drug legislation.

BAR GOLD HITS NEW LOW MARK; DOLLAR RALLIES

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Bar gold in London reached a new low for the year today as European gold bloc currencies moved lower against the dollar. Silver remained in the background with trading quiet and prices steady.

The drop in gold prices amounted to 1½ pence with the close at 139 shillings 11½ pence a fine ounce, equivalent to $34.87, which compares with the United States treasury's fixed price of $35 an ounce. An amount valued at 406,000 pounds was purchased in the open market.

The dollar was nearly up to its parity with the franc as the latter dropped ⅛ point to 6.63⅜ cents, placing the value of the dollar against francs at slightly less than 100 cents, compared with 99.98 cents yesterday. Based on the value of the dollar prior to devaluation its value against the franc was nearly 59.06 cents, compared with 59.05 cents yesterday.

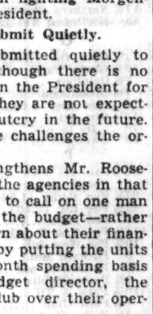
Swiss francs were off 2 points at 32.73 cents and guilders dipped 3 points to 67.82 cents. The pound was unchanged while Canadian dollars gained 3⅛ points to 99.81¼ cents. Italian lire were unchanged at 8.22 points lower at 40.37 cents.

Motor Bus Revenues Best in Last Five Years

Motor bus revenues for the first half of 1935 are the highest in five years, says Bus Transportation. Many individual carriers actually show 15 to 20 per cent increase in operating revenues for the first half of 1935.

Nationwide Truck System Formed Around Chicago Firm

New York, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Plans for a nation-wide coördinated motor transport organization centering in Chicago were revealed today by Lehman Brothers, New York Stock exchange firm. The enterprise, to be known as the Keeshin Transcontinental Freight Lines, will be built around the Keeshin Motor Express company of Chicago.



JOHN HERTZ.

J. L. Keeshin, long identified with the trucking business, is president of the new freight lines company. He is being aided in the organization by John D. Hertz, a partner in Lehman Brothers, who has been active in transportation fields.

System Similar to Bus Lines.

In making the announcement it was stated "the expanded organization is to carry on a nation-wide trucking business similar to that of the Transcontinental Bus companies, so as to offer to the shipping public a coördinated transportation service of unquestioned financial responsibility."

It is planned to make long distance hauling one of the principal businesses of the new system, with main lines radiating from Chicago, but the company also intends to maintain store door pickup and delivery service on all lines and branches.

Asserts Service Succeeds.

Keeshin in a statement declared: "In this long distance haulage business a coördinated service with the rail carriers of the United States will be effected, as well as with the air and motor agencies.

"It has proven that coördinated service of this character between rail and truck is not only logical but actually works out successfully in operation. It will form the foundation of our operation in our nation-wide system of coördinated service."

Keeshin said he recently had placed an order for 150 highway semi-trailers with the Fruehauf Trailer company of Detroit and that additional motive equipment had been purchased.

Suit Attacks Park District Funding Plan

An attack on the legality of the Chicago Park district's plan for refunding the bonds of its predecessor units was made in the Circuit court yesterday. The suit, brought on behalf of a taxpayer in the West Pullman park district, challenged the right of the new consolidated park district to assume debts of the districts which it superseded.

The refunding program, approved by the park commissioners last July, calls for the refinancing of approximately $108,000,000 of bonds and floating debt outstanding against the 22 park districts which were consolidated under a special act of the state legislature.

Question Legality of Deal.

The suit questions the state right to permit one of its political subdivisions to assume the obligations of another. It is alleged that taxpayers in the districts which had the smallest debts will be shouldered with additional taxes as a result of the consolidation.

The bill was filed by Attorney Clyde L. Day who represents Joseph Kocsis, a building contractor and a taxpayer in the West Pullman district.

Total bonded debt which the park board voted to refund was $103,707,760. In addition the floating debt of the various districts, aggregating $4,956,000, was also to be refinanced.

Refunding Plan Vetoed.

The $48,000,000 county refunding plan died officially yesterday when President Clayton F. Smith of the county board formally delivered his veto message to the commissioners. It was indicated that banks and investment houses will be invited to submit new bids for handling the refunding. The county wants to sell $10,000,000 of new bonds to clear up defaulted interest and principal and to refund $38,000,000 of unmatured bonds so as to distribute maturities evenly over a period of years.

New bids submitted before the next board meeting on Sept. 5 are expected to be referred to the Ryan committee, which approved the disputed refunding program.

OPPOSING FORCES RETARD PASSAGE OF OIL CURB BILL

Washington, D. C., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Strong opposing forces still at loggerheads caused a new hitch today in plans for passage of an oil control bill before adjournment. Senator Connally [Dem., Tex.], author of a three-point bill approved by the senate last week, said he understood an oil bill would be passed by the house in a few days but added he had no definite assurances.

Chairman Cole [Dem., Md.], of the house oil investigating sub-committee said he hoped his bill, going much farther than Connally's, would be approved, and suggested that the best way out of the difficulty would be for the house to pass it and leave disagreement to a conference committee.

Connally would seek only to ratify the interstate compact method of keeping crude oil production within reasonable bounds, "peg" oil imports at about the 1932 level and make his "hot oil" law permanent. Cole's proposal includes these three with a different scheme of import regulation, would recreate the petroleum administrative board, and would authorize oil companies to enter into voluntary agreements, with suspension of the anti-trust laws if necessary.

Better Business Bureau to Have Security Service

The Chicago better business bureau announced yesterday it will extend the scope of its activities to include the compilation of data on securities. This action follows announcement Tuesday that the investors' protective bureau will suspend operations Oct. 1. The business bureau has asked for the investors' bureau files, but the latter organization has taken no action on the matter.

Westinghouse Gets Order for Mining Locomotives

Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company announced yesterday the receipt of an order for six six-ton mining locomotives from the Kingston-Pocahontas Coal company at Welch, W. Va.

AM. TELEPHONE AGAIN DECLARES $2.25 DIVIDEND

Maintains Unbroken Payment Record.

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—American Telephone and Telegraph company today maintained its record of leaving the $9 annual dividend undisturbed through the depression years, when directors authorized payment of the usual quarterly distribution of $2.25 a share.

The distribution will be made Oct. 15 to shareholders of record Sept. 16. A total of 18,662,275 shares is outstanding in the hands of some 675,000 stockholders, who will share in the payment which aggregates approximately $42,000,000.

With the dividend checks will be mailed a statement of earnings of the company for the third quarter of the year.

Expect Some Improvement.

Although earnings are expected to show some improvement over the third quarter last year, there is no expectation that the net for the period will be equal to the amount of the dividend.

One of the few large industrial corporations to go through the depression without lowering its dividend rate, A. T. & T. has maintained its disbursements of $9 annually since 1921. Since 1930, however, the company has been forced to dip into surplus in order to meet the difference between earnings and the dividend requirements. In spite of this cash reserves at the end of 1934 were in excess of $250,000,000.

Net income amounted to $59,034,406 in the first six months of 1935, compared with $61,916,697 in the like period of 1934. Earnings of the Bell system, applicable to American Telephone stock, however, were equal to $2.72 a share in the first five months this year, as against $2.68 in the same period of 1934.

Gain in Number of Phones.

The system reported a net gain of 201,000 telephones in service during the first half of 1935 and on June 30 the total was 13,580,000, or approximately 13 per cent less than the maximum development reached in 1930. Although there was a net loss of stations in July, the decline is of a seasonal nature and usually is followed by a large gain in September.

Michigan Steel Tube Products resumed dividends with the declaration of 25 cents a share, payable Sept. 10. The last previous disbursement, of 10 cents, was made Oct. 1, 1931.

Dominion Scottish Investment declared a payment of 25 cents a share on the 5 per cent preferred on arrears, payable Sept. 1. This leaves accumulations of $4.87½ a share.

HEAVY ORDERS BOOST COPPER AND LEAD PRICES

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Release of pent-up orders for copper and lead to an extent that current sales are about the heaviest since the war continued today and brought about further advances in prices. Domestic copper sales alone on Monday at 69,000 tons came near that for the full month of July.

Lead, on exceptionally heavy demand, was advanced another 5 points to a level of 4.15 cents a pound in St. Louis and 4.35 a pound in New York. This increase, engineered by the St. Joseph Lead company, and followed by other producers, is in addition to a 5 point advance made in both territories yesterday.

While the domestic price of copper remained unchanged at 8.5 cents a pound, another boost in the foreign level to 8.25 cents a pound presaged another possible early advance of the former "Blue Eagle" grade copper. Sales in the domestic market continued heavy, according to trade reports. Not counting yesterday's turnover, sales so far this month are in excess of 100,000 tons.

AGRICULTURAL CHEMICAL'S NET PROFIT HIGHER

New York, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Operations of the American Agricultural Chemical company of Delaware and subsidiaries for the fiscal year ended June 30 resulted in a net profit of $1,427,603. These earnings were equivalent to $6.37 a share on 224,239 shares of no-par capital stock, excluding 8,967 shares held in the treasury. For the preceding year, the company showed a net profit of $977,119, or $4.19 a share on 233,206 shares, excluding 84,669 in the treasury.

The balance sheet on June 30 showed current assets, including $5,338,569 cash, amounting to $13,232,685 and current liabilities of $749,284. These figures compared with cash of $4,461,151, current assets of $12,193,739, and current liabilities of $581,012 at the close of the preceding fiscal year. The net quick assets were shown to be $12,483,401, equal to $55.67 a share, compared with $49.80 on June 30, 1934, an increase of $5.87 a share on the present net outstanding stock.

B. F. Fairless of Republic Will Join U. S. Steel Corp.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Tom M. Girdler, chairman of the Republic Steel corporation, announced today the resignation of B. F. Fairless, executive vice president of the company, effective Sept. 15. Fairless, Girdler said, will become associated with the United States Steel corporation.

Pig Slaughter Anniversary Cheerless Day

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Tomorrow will be the second anniversary of the beginning of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's pig and sow destruction campaign of 1933, but there will be no celebration.

SEC. WALLACE.

The second anniversary of the "destroy wealth to bring back prosperity" program finds hog and pork prices the highest in many years, but it also finds the farmers with so few hogs to sell that buyers are scouring the country in search of the animals with meager results.

It finds consumers turning to other foods because of the high cost of pork. It finds foreign meats pouring over the high tarif walls to offset the shortage in the domestic market. It finds a bumper corn crop coming on with few hogs to eat the corn. And it finds small packers and commission men going broke because of lack of business, railroad freight business reduced by the decrease in live stock shipments, half of the hog alleys closed at the Chicago stockyards, and thousands of former employés of packing plants and stockyards throughout the country jobless.

Farmers who two years ago sold their pigs and sows to the government at $6 to $9.50 per hundred pounds—a price above the market at that time—are now paying $9 to $15 per hundred pounds to rebuilt their depleted droves, just as the farmers who sold their steers to the government last year at $13 per head are now paying $35 to $65 to add to their herds of cattle.

Corn, hay, other crops used by the live stock raisers are all flourishing this year, but there isn't enough live stock to consume them. With barns filled with hay and prospects excellent for a big corn crop, farmers find their feedlots almost empty.

And to top the woes of the hog producers, processors, and consumers the forces of nature this year are adding an epidemic of cholera to last year's drouth. Outbreaks of the dread disease in many localities through the central west are threatening to reduce further the already pitifully small supplies of hogs.

In one recent week there were imported at the port of New York alone more than 6 million pounds of beef, 125,000 pounds of pork, and almost 1 million pounds of tallow. For all of August last year imports for the entire nation totaled only 113,124 pounds of beef, 117,248 pounds of pork, and no tallow. On the other hand, in August, 1934, the United States exported 2,121,853 pounds of beef and veal, 14,900,289 pounds of pork, and 28,799 pounds of tallow.

The full effects of the pig and sow destruction campaign are only beginning to be felt this year. It is a cumulative proposition. One year's idle grain acres can be put to full use the next, given good growing weather, but once the nation's droves of hogs are severely depleted it takes several years to restore lost production. Cattle herds take even longer to rebuild. The absence of the second and third generation of pigs knocked in the head by government agents two years ago has resulted in an acute shortage of pork.

Americans are eating Polish hams and New Zealand beef.

No, there won't be any celebration.

LONDON STOCKS DROP SHARPLY IN LATE TRADING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Political influences caused a sharp setback to prices in almost every section of the stock exchange late this afternoon, but the city of London generally remains calm.

It is understood one of the "big five" banks recalled the whole of its Italian credits. As the credits which are now utilized mature, they will not be renewed and will have to be repaid by the Italian banks or commercial firms to which they were granted.

It is considered probable that this lead will be followed by the other big British banks. The move was not due to dictation of any kind from the Bank of England or the treasury, but is a precautionary measure in view of the serious deterioration of the Italian exchange position.

Dealings in Italian lire became more difficult to transact in London today and although the spot quotation was rigidly controled at 60 9-16 to the pound, the rate for three months forward delivery fell to 67.

Weekly Food Price Index Near High Reached in '30

A third consecutive weekly gain of 4 cents in the Dun & Bradstreet weekly food index has brought the current figure to within 1 cent of the 1935 high point established in the week of Feb. 12. With this one exception this week's index of $2.75 stands at the highest level since Sept. 18, 1930, when it was $2.77.

STEEL OUTPUT, SCRAP PRICES SURGE UPWARD

Mills Gain Seventh Straight Week.

Steel mill operations and scrap prices continue to show one of the most unexpected upward swings in the history of the trade, the magazine Iron Age said yesterday. The journal placed the operating rate at 50½ per cent of capacity, or 1½ points above a week ago.

This is the seventh consecutive week in which mill operations have risen, and the advance has been in the face of reduced demand from the automobile industry and tapering operations of tin plate mills, which previously were the two outstanding supports of ingot output.

Tin plate production has slumped from 85 to 78 per cent, according to the review, and further seasonal curtailment is expected. Automotive releases have dropped sharply in certain centers, especially the Cleveland-Lorain area, where ingot output has declined from 50 to 43 per cent, but there are beginning to be traces of improvement in other districts.

Heavy Miscellaneous Demand.

"The explanation for the sustained advance in steel production," the journal says, "lies among the minor and less conspicuous outlets which, for want of a better term have been labeled 'miscellaneous'. Part of the gain in unclassified business is directly traceable to improved farmer buying. In industrial centers, orders which are small in size but imposing in the aggregate, are on the increase."

Since miscellaneous bookings are making such an impressive showing, the producers look forward to the day when excess capacity in their mills will shrink under the weight of normal business from the heavy industries.

"While the iron and steel consuming trade is apparently not apprehensive of price advances," says the review, "the uninterrupted advances in steel works operations and scrap prices, together with the possibilities inherent in the Italian-Ethiopian war scare, have unquestionably given the market a steadier tone.

Italy Imports Scrap.

"Italy has been a heavy importer of American scrap for several years, but at present is buying less material than usual because of difficulties in financing orders. But presumably both belligerents, in the event of war, will find ways of obtaining the wherewithal for purchases of needed materials."

The journal's composite for heavy melting steel has risen from $12.08 to $12.50 a gross ton, the highest level since the third week of April, 1934, and the composite prices for finished steel and pig iron are steady at 2.124 cents a pound and $17.84 a ton, respectively.

Sears Officials Silent on $2 Dividend Report

Reports circulated in New York yesterday asserted that Sears Roebuck & Co. directors will place the big Chicago mail order concern's capital stock on a $2 annual dividend basis and will declare a 25 cent a share extra dividend late in September, but high officials of the company in Chicago declined last night to comment on the report. Sears Roebuck paid a dividend of 75 cents a share on May 1, the first distribution on the stock since the third quarter of 1932.

STOCK PRICES CONTINUE GAINS; STEELS STRONG

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 21.—Industrial shares led the stock market into still higher ground today. The best showing was made by the steels. Mail order and farm implements were strong and building issues enjoyed some revival. The coppers did better and a group of miscellaneous shares were bought on war talk aroused by the Italo-European crisis.

Trading was at a somewhat slower pace than that of yesterday and a note of caution, due to the continued grind of congress and the prospects of further New Deal "must" legislation, was still in evidence. Turnover amounted to 1,757,380 shares.

Industrial News Favorable.

Industrial and trade news in the main favored the constructive side of the market. The regular $2.25 payment was authorized by the American Telephone board, and it was estimated in the financial district that carloadings for the week ended Aug. 17 would be the best in months, exceeding by a substantial margin the corresponding week last year. Iron Age, discussing the steel industry, said the rise in operations and in scrap prices is "one of the most unexpected upward swings in the history of the trade."

Meanwhile more industrial and mercantile leaders join the group of optimistic prophets. Brokers agree there is no question but that hope for greater business activity now is running high.

Steel Issues Improve.

There was a liberal sprinkling of small time items to help individual issues or groups. New York City Tractions came in for some activity as reports continued to go the rounds that the unification plan would be completed soon. BMT was a feature of the division.

Reports that United States Steel preferred would go back on a $7 dividend basis at the October meeting of the corporation's directorate helped the issue to score a rise of nearly 5 points. The common finished the day a point better off. Otis preferred rose 7 points. Bethlehem, Inland, and other issues were active at better prices. Sloss-Sheffield preferred climbed 4 to 5 points.

An individual climber to attract attention was Coca Cola, with a jump of more than 4 points.

Gain in Late Dealings.

Some nervousness was displayed at times by the utilities and rails, but even these groups gave a better account of themselves in the late dealings. The first half dozen rail earnings' reports for July show a decline of about 4 per cent in operating revenues and 40 per cent in net operating income from a year ago.

Utilities were held back to some extent by the administration's persistent efforts to get its holding company bill through congress.

Strength in wheat helped the farm implements.

Some confident buying took place in General Motors and the airplanes had a fairly good day. Boeing was prominent in dealings in the plane group.

HIDE FUTURES.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—[Special.]—Commission house profit taking caused a setback of 4 to 7 points in hide futures. Sales were 65 lots or 3,600,000 lbs. Closing bids in cents per pounds: September, 10.55c; December, 10.89c; March, 11.21c; June, 11.60c.

COTTON FUTURES DECLINE ON LIQUIDATION BY LONGS

Official announcement that the government would shortly set the amount it was willing to loan on cotton produced this season caused a moderate upturn in the market at one time yesterday, but the advance brought in scattered liquidation by longs, also some hedging sales, and the finish was about the bottom. Chicago closed 3 to 6 points lower and other markets were off 4 to 7 points.

Southern congressmen continue to predict a 12 cent per pound loan level, but the trade is not inclined to take a decided position on the buying side despite the fact futures are selling well below that price. Spot cotton closed 5 points lower, with New Orleans 11.50 cents, Galveston and Houston 11.45 cents, and New York 11.65 cents per pound. Prices in cents per pound follow:

BUTTER AND EGG FUTURES ARE FIRM, UP ¼ TO ¾ CENT

Butter and egg futures showed a firm undertone on the Chicago Mercantile exchange yesterday, gaining ⅛ to ¼ cent with November butter closing at 25⅝ cents per pound and eggs at 25½ cents per dozen.

While the movement of eggs out of cold storage continues to run under the withdrawals of last year, there is a marked shortage in the aggregate stock as compared with 1934, and the total business passing is regarded as about in line with normal years. The Land O' Lakes report showed butter production last week was 2 per cent less than the preceding week, although 1 per cent in excess of the corresponding period last year. Sales were 10 cars of butter and 37 cars of eggs. Prices follow:

DRY GOODS.

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP)—Cotton goods were firm and quiet today in the unfinished cloth division. Finished goods sold steadily with prices rising. Silk hosiery manufacturers were large buyers of raw silk to meet needs for orders recently placed. Silk fabrics were firm. Rayon fabrics were in active demand. Fall men's wear orders running are out and new spring business is being shaped up. Burlaps were quiet and barely steady.

ELECTRIC POWER PRODUCTION SETS MORE NEW HIGHS

Output Is Best in History for Summer Period.

New records were again established in national electrical power production last week. Total output of 1,832,695,000 kilowatt hours showed a more than seasonal gain of 0.7 per cent over the preceding week, the highest level on record for a summer week and the best for any seven day period since that ended Jan. 18, 1930, when the total was 1,834,000,000 kilowatt hours.

The week's total, reported by the Edison Electric institute, was the fourth highest for any week on record, the best level ever attained being 1,860,021,000 kilowatt hours in the week ended Dec. 21, 1929.

Rate of Gain Lower.

Compared with a year ago, output showed a gain of 9.5 per cent, against an increase of 9.7 per cent in the preceding seven days. Totals for the corresponding weeks of other years were as follows:

Year.	Output in KWH.
1934	1,674,345,000
1933	1,650,000,000
1932	1,432,000,000
1931	1,643,000,000
1930	1,677,000,000
1929	1,733,000,000

At the present rate of increase August is expected to show the largest gain over last year made during any previous month in 1935. The highest percentage gain was in January, when production rose 8.9 per cent over the corresponding month of last year.

Chicago Reports Rise.

The Chicago area also shared in the rise, and for the fourth consecutive week set a new high level for the particular week, compared with previous years. Abnormally hot weather and a continued upturn in the amount of power consumed by industry were responsible.

Output here amounted to 103,644,000 kilowatt hours, according to the Commonwealth Edison company, compared with 103,644,000 in the preceding week and 100,331,000 in the corresponding period of 1934.

The actual gain over a year ago amounted to 3.3 per cent, but excluding the total used by A Century of Progress in the 1934 week the increase amounted to 5.1 per cent.

Compare Production.

Following are output and percentage comparisons with last year for the district:

Wk. ended.	1935.	1934.	Actual.	*
Aug. 17	..103,664,000	100,331,000	+3.3	+5.1
Aug. 10	..103,644,000	101,574,000	+2.0	+3.7
Aug. 3	..102,950,000	99,148,000	+3.8	+4.9

*Sales to A Century of Progress excluded.

All sections of the country participated in last week's rise over 1934.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP)—SUGAR. Raw, was firm today. Spot prices advanced another 2 points, while shipment sugars were unchanged both being quoted at 3.45c per lb. Sales confirmed included a distress lot of 9,000 bags of Puerto Rican due Sept. 2 at 3.40c, and 63,000 bags of Philippines for September arrival at 3.45c. At the close there were further buyers in September position at the 3.45c level, with nothing available under 3.50c. Firmness in the spot market was reflected by further advances in futures on renewed covering and buying by trade and commission houses. Final prices were 3 to 5 points net higher for the No. 3 contract and 1 to 2 higher for the No. 1. Sales were 17,050 tons in the No. 3 and 100 tons in the other.

The refined market was unchanged with all refiners listing at 5.10c per lb for fine granulated.

NEARBY LARD DELIVERIES CONTINUE TO MOVE LOWER

Nearby deliveries of lard dropped as much as 40 cents during the early trading yesterday, liquidation of a fair sized line of the October future being a factor. The break to the lowest level since Aug. 8 brought in trade buying and a rally followed, although the finish was at net losses of 5 to 25 cents, with the September leading the decline. Investment buying was in evidence in the distant deliveries, which showed increased activity, and they gained 7½ to 32½ cents per 100 pounds. Clear bellies [salt pork] regained an early loss and closed unchanged.

Weakness in hogs and a continued slow cash demand attracted some attention from the trade. Reserves of lard in Europe are understood to be short, as normally this country is exporting around 10,000,000 pounds or more per week at this season of the year, while clearances in the past few weeks have been around 500,000 pounds. Cash lard closed at $16.15; loose, $16.25; leaf, $16.50, and bellies at $19.75 per 100 pounds. Prices in dollars per 100 pounds follow:

DECKER CONCERN IN IOWA BOUGHT BY ARMOUR & CO.

Continues Extension Into Producing Area.

Purchase of the properties of Jacob E. Decker & Sons, including the meat packing plant at Mason City, Ia., and several branch houses, was announced yesterday by Armour & Co. The official statement by Robert H. Cabell, Armour president, marks the end of many months of negotiations, during which numerous reports seeped out to the public. One went so far as to say that Armour was to take over Adolph Gobel, Inc., which owned the Decker concern. Armour officials consistently have denied this, although at times admitted negotiations for the Decker plants.

Terms of the purchases were not disclosed, but the sale is expected to enable Gobel to effect its proposed reorganization under section 77b of the amended bankruptcy laws. Steps to this end were begun when the company failed to meet bond interests.

Enter Producing Areas.

"Acquisition of the Decker plant is in line with Armour's policy of extending its operations to the best live stock producing districts," said Cabell. "The property at Mason City is in the center of one of the principal hog raising areas and we are glad we can be more closely identified with this important section of the country."

This purchase is the eleventh completed by Armour since this policy was placed in effect by Frederick H. Prince, chairman, and his nominee, Cabell, who became head of the company late in 1934.

"The Decker company and its products have a splendid reputation in the meat trade," said Cabell, "and operation of the unit will continue without any important changes in personnel or sales policies and outlets.

Continue Decker Brand.

"We will continue to produce Decker branded products and the high standards of this merchandise will be maintained and improved if possible by the introduction of Armour research and distribution service.

"The Decker plant is thoroughly modern. A new beefhouse and a new powerhouse have been completed since 1933. A new sewage system insures the highest standards of sanitation.

"Primarily a pork packing plant with an annual capacity of 750,000 hogs, the property also has produced beef for the last two years. Capacity for the latter is 50,000 cattle and 25,000 lambs and calves annually."

RAIL BANKRUPTCY CHANGE VIEWED AS CONSTRUCTIVE

New Measure Expected to Aid Reorganizations.

A belief that the senate amendment to section 77 of the bankruptcy act will accomplish its purpose of speeding railroad reorganizations was expressed yesterday by a number of Chicago railroad officials participating in reorganizations. The amendment, sponsored by Senator Wheeler [Rad.-Dem., Mont.], is expected to be among the acts which congress will send to the President for signature shortly.

There are now six important railroads with headquarters in Chicago which have applied to the court for relief under section 77 of the bankruptcy act, enacted just before President Hoover retired from office. None has yet worked out a reorganization plan which will remove it from court jurisdiction.

Six Roads in Difficulty.

The six roads are: Rock Island, Milwaukee, North Western, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Monon, and Great Western. Their combined assets are in excess of 2 billion dollars.

The principal benefit expected to be derived from the amendment will be the placing of a lid on the activities of minorities refusing to go along with majorities and curtailment of the activities of "sharp shooters" who buy up securities for the purpose of making trouble.

The old act provided that the consent of two-thirds of the security holders was necessary to place a reorganization plan into effect. Those security holders who failed to vote under the old plan were included in the group that did not assent to the plan. Under the amendment approval of a plan is given when two-thirds of the security holders actually voting approve it.

Legality Questioned.

One railroad attorney said that the old act was deficient in certain material respects, but the amendment as passed by the senate rectifies this. Another railroad attorney said he believed the amendments should work out well. However, he was doubtful as to the constitutionality of the provision which authorizes the court to declare a plan effective when the interested parties are unable to reach an agreement.

Among other important changes made by the amendment are:

Authority is granted for the issuance of options or warants to junior creditors and stockholders in order to avoid the wiping out of their claims because of conditions which are considered to be temporary. The theory of this is that if and when conditions improve junior creditors and stockholders will be enabled to retain something of value based upon improved conditions and earnings.

The amendment makes it unlawful for any person or group of persons to solicit deposits of securities under protective committee agreements unless the interstate commerce commission authorizes such action. This provision does not apply to committees already formed.

$46,345,058 LOAN ASKED FOR NATURAL GAS LINE TO DETROIT

Fort Worth, Tex., Aug. 21.—(AP)—Application for a loan and grant of $46,345,058 for construction of a natural gas pipe line from the Texas Panhandle to Detroit, Mich., was on file with the PWA office here today.

The application was submitted by Gov. James V. Allred and the public works committee. The project would provide employment for 20,920 men daily for 251,040 man-months, it was said.

Purposes of construction of the pipeline as outlined by Hawley, Freese, and Nichols, consulting engineers, are: [1] Provide a more profitable market for gas which was wasted into the air during the last year at the rate of more than a billion cubic feet per day after its gasoline content had been extracted; [2] enable a reduction in the house heating rate at Detroit from approximately 10 cents per therm for manufactured gas to 5 cents per therm for natural gas, and [3] create a large amount of employment in steel mills, compressor and manufacturing plants and in construction of the line.

PERMIT APPEAL ON ROSENBAUM ELEVATOR ORDER

Permission to appeal the order of Federal Judge William H. Holly, transferring the Rosenbaum Grain corporation's lease on the North Western elevator in South Chicago to the Cargill Grain company, was granted yesterday to attorneys representing former officials of the Rosenbaum firm by Judge George T. Page of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

The transfer was made several weeks ago in consideration of a $70,000 payment by the Cargill company and its offer to purchase the grain in the warehouse owned by Rosenbaum Grain. Orville J. Taylor, counsel for E. F. Rosenbaum, who asked leave to file the appeal, said Judge Holly had no right to authorize the disposition of any of the company's property until a final plan of reorganization had been adopted. A hearing on the matter is expected within another 10 days.

Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan yesterday continued until Sept. 24 the motion for appointment of a permanent trustee for Chicago Elevator Properties, Inc., subsidiary of Rosenbaum Grain corporation.

Montgomery Ward Leases Merchandise Mart Space

Montgomery Ward & Co. yesterday announced it has taken 3,000 feet of space on the sixteenth floor of the Merchandise Mart, where its buyers will view all furniture and household furnishings before placing any orders. Manufacturers hereafter are to send samples directly to the mart headquarters, where buyers will be able to see goods in a setting similar to that in a home. H. J. Stentiford represented Ward in negotiations with George B. Atkinson, manager of the mart's furniture division.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT — PROCUREMENT DIVISION—PUBLIC WORKS BRANCH, Washington, D. C., August 16, 1935. Proposals are hereby solicited for a site for a Federal building at Chicago (Northcenter Sta.), Ill., to be opened publicly in the office of the Postmaster at Chicago, Ill., at 9 o'clock A. M., on September 3, 1935, for the sale, or donation, to the United States of a lot conveniently located. Approximate dimensions: Corner lots, 175 foot frontage, 230 foot depth. Interior lots, 200 foot frontage, 230 foot depth.

Sites having different street frontage dimensions will be considered provided the area is approximately the same. In all cases where possible bids should be submitted by actual owners of properties and not by agents. Documentary evidence of agent's authority must be attached to proposals. Upon application, The Postmaster will supply prospective bidders with proposal blanks and a circular giving particulars as to requirements and instructions for preparation of bids and data to accompany same. C. J. PEOPLES, Director of Procurement.
